Welcome Disciples.

Riding On a Bullet.
Why Did Dinosaurs Die?

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 14.—Hot and dry in Washington. Arrivals at the railroad station read in gigantic red letters: "WELCOME DISCIPLES OF CHRIST."

A man, faith shining in his blue eyes, tells you:

"We are not the only Christians, but we are Christians only."

IN 1795 Alexander Campbell decided that there were too many Christian religions, and started another, planning to unite them all. That didn't happen, but his new church lasted, and has spent $1,500,000 on a new building just completed in Washington.

THOSE THAT have seen the President recently report that he is working very hard, has lost about 15 pounds, thanks to a summer spent in Washington's heat. He is interested primarily in business conditions and particularly in the fact that certain Wall Street patriots selling stock short are increasing public anxiety for profit.

IT WILL interest some Wall Street men to know that their stock selling manipulations are known in detail. One man, for instance, who sold great quantities of an amusement stock short, then wired all his branch houses that the amusement company's annual report was falsified and advised customers to sell the stock, that he might cover his short sales.

THE DEPARTMENT of Justice may interest itself in vicious short selling, and if it does, some big firms may read in public print details of their transactions and those of customers that ordinarily they would not make public.

HENRY NORMAN MILBURN, whose picture appears on the front page of the Baltimore Evening News, will never see the excellent likeness. Found dead in a clump of woods, his last message to his wife said:

"I have lost everything in the stock market and am nearly crazy. Please bury my body in St. Marys County."

Refraining from gambling would have saved him.

MRS. ELIZABETH CONVERSE, only twenty-seven, was picked up dead near Falls Church, Virginia, returning from a coon hunt at six o'clock in the morning.

A powerful automobile driven by her left the road on a curve, knocked over two trees, cut off a telephone pole at the base. The unfortunate young woman was killed instantly, her head crushed, both legs and arms broken. Her companion died later.

The impact tore the shoes from her feet. They were found 100 feet apart.

When you drive a car at 50 or 60 miles an hour you are riding on a bullet weighing from five to eight thousand pounds, going about 100 feet a second. Motorists should remember that.

DINOSAUR EGGS found originally in Thibet have been discovered in America. The "hen" dinosaur that laid them was about 80 feet long. Standing up she could look over tall trees.

These strange animals of all sizes once covered and apparently dominated the earth. Some, carniverous, lived on the others, peaceful vegetarians.

SUDDENLY THEY vanished, at about the same time, and science wonders why.

Swarms of savage rats gnawed their feet, thus destroying them, according to one theory, and, according to another, animals of higher intelligence killed them off, as British and American bipeds are killing off elephants, giraffes and rhinoceroses, in Africa.

A third theory describes an outbreak of volcanic eruptions in various parts of the world that filled the atmosphere with dust and made it impossible for the dinosaurs to breathe.

AT THE OPENING of the Reichstag in Berlin the Hitlerite Fascists celebrated their recent political victory with anti-Jewish riots.

Mr. Hitler and his rowdies will not last. History will convince them of it, if they will read what happened to Spain and Portugal.

NO MORE waving of flags and lanterns on long freight trains. The engineer and conductor talk to each other by radio. This means simplified and safer operation of trains sometimes a mile long. But romance goes as railroad efficiency increases. Old trainmen and passengers remember mournfully the days when a smokestack was shaped like a hoop skirt upside down, and brakemen rushed out on open platforms to turn the brakes when they heard the engineer's whistle.

NOT LONG AGO Jack, alias "Legs" Diamond, went to Europe, and, Germany sent him back.

Evidently "Legs" knew why he went. He is in the hospital now with many bullets and slugs from sawed-off shotguns in his body.

HIS CLOTHES were found hanging in the closet of a room occupied by a young lady, in the hotel in which he was shot.

Police are "grilling" the young woman, suspecting that she may have put the unfortunate "Legs" conveniently on the spot. She says: "I was always a good girl, this is just my luck." Coldly truthful reports of modern crime make Eugene Sue's "Mysteries of Paris" with his Chourineur and Squellette look tame.

TWO WOMEN, MAN HELD UP IN STREET

Gunmen Seeking Payroll Crowd Car to Curb, Find No Cash, in 2nd Robbery

Two chagrined young bandits fled empty-handed today after holding up two women and a male employe of the South Side Laundry Company only to learn that, since a previous payroll holdup in August, the company had changed pay-off days.

The bandits, both armed, driving a small sedan, crowded to the curb at Island avenue and Success street an automobile in which F. E. Davis, manager; Margaret Hood, clerk, 313 Hutchinson avenue, Edgewood, and Mrs. A. Boucek, bookkeeper, of Perry highway, were returning from lunch.

DEMAND CASH

One of the robbers demanded:

"Where's the payroll."

Davis replied:

"We don't have any money."

The bandits were incredulous. They compelled Davis to move over in the front seat and searched the seat. They ordered the two women to alight and searched the pockets of the machine. They also examined packages which the two had purchased while shopping at the noon hour.

One grabbed Mrs. Boucek's purse, but finding it contained only a small sum, flung it back into the car.

FOIL PURSUIT

Snatching the ignition keys from Davis' machine the robbers threw them across the street, to prevent pursuit, then leaped into their car and sped away.

The car, bearing license plates 8004-B, was later found abandoned at Eleventh street and Duquesne way. A check up revealed it was stolen from G. Mackey, 14 Freeport street, Etna.

Mrs. Boucek and Miss Hood were held up near the same spot August 19 and robbed of a $3,777 payroll. Both holdups took place about a block from the laundry company's plant, Success and Winifred streets.

DRY REPEAL FIGHT FACES WOMEN

State Federation May Ask Change; Allentown Group To Urge Modification

SCRANTON, Pa., Oct. 14.—The State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, which has consistently and unanimously stood for prohibition enforcement and adopted resolutions to that effect year after year, may change the form of its resolution this year and vote for repeal of the dry law when the question comes up before the thirty-fifth annual convention now in assembly here.

A group of women from Allentown, the home town of the president, Mrs. John A. Frick, have lined up against the dry law and plan to to oppose any move to have the Federation uphold the Eighteenth Amendment.

GROUP FOR REPEAL

Should they succeed, they will introduce a resolution asking its repeal. A canvass among the Allentown delegates showed they stand two to one in favor of repeal.

With Mrs. Frick in the chair, the meeting was formally opened today in Elm Park Church. More than 500 women were present, every part of the state being represented.

MRS. DIEHL ATTENDS

Mrs. James A. Linen, president of the Scranton Century Club, delivered the address of welcome, Mrs. Frick responding.

Reports of the various committees and officers, including Mrs. Ambrose N. Diehl, Pittsburgh, vice president and chairman of membership, followed.

'LEGS' DIAMOND DYING, MUM

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN,
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Death crept closer to Jack (Legs) Diamond, bullet-riddled gangster and racketeer, as he tossed feverishly on his bed in Polyclinic Hospital today—and Diamond seemed to know it.

Coming out of a coma, he turned to the bluecoats at his bedside and remarked:

"Goodby, boys."

Yet he fought grimly for his life as the crisis in his condition neared.

Hospital authorities were not unduly pessimistic. They issued an official bulletin, shortly after 1 o'clock this morning, saying:

"No change in the patient. Condition still serious."

TWO PRIESTS VISIT

The belief that Diamond was near death grew when a priest was admitted to the patient's bedside The police guard temporarily

BONFIRES KILL 2 SMALL GIRLS

Bon fires of autumn leaves claimed the lives of two little girls today. Gloria Ogden, 3, of 2336 Maple avenue, North Side, igniting leaves in front of her home yesterday, suffered burns which caused her death in Presbyterian Hospital.

Jeannette St. Clair, 7, of 102 Estella street, died this morning in South Side Hospital. Her clothing ignited while she was playing in the rear yard of her home. Two youths smothered the flames by throwing a blanket around her, but not until she had been fatally burned.

Scaffold Collapse Injures 4 Workers

When a scaffold on the first floor of the new county office building collapsed today, four plasterers fell and were seriously injured.

They are R. Smeltzer, 45; Ray Henderson, 40, and Paul Heiles, 35. Police were unable to learn the fourth man's name. He just started to work today, it was said.

Prisoner Dies After Injury During Fit

Investigation in the death of W. J. Holland, 42, of 88 Washington place, in county jail today, first reported as an alcoholic case, revealed acute meningitis resulting from a fractured skull caused death.

At the jail it was said Holland, during a fit Saturday, threw himself against a stone wall and had been treated since then in the prison hospital.

Aged Physician Dies Week After Divorcing Wife, 17

Dr. Isaac N. Boyd, 71, of 71 Knox avenue, died today—a week after a divorce decree ended the romance he found in the winter of his life with 17-year-old Mary Louise Boyd.

The aged physician became ill last Wednesday after receiving the divorce decree. He had been confined to his bed since that time.

A barrage of heated charges and counter-charges let loose by both principals in cross [illegible] during the past year brought the Boyd divorce before the public.

After admitting in court that her marriage was the culmination of a street car flirtation, the physician's wife testified her husband maltreated her to the extent that she lost 30 of her 138 pounds.

Both principals, agreeing only that their six months of married life had cooled their ardor, spurned reconciliation attempts by the court.

HOW HEAVY TRUCK FAILED TO MAKE CURVE IN FOG AT LINCOLN AVE. AND POKETA ROAD, HIT TERRACE, TURNED OVER

2 DIE, 16 HURT IN TRUCK UPSET

Eighteen men employed by the John F. Casey Company on the Allegheny River boulevard were injured, two of them fatally, early today when the truck in which they were en route to work failed to make a left turn at Lincoln avenue extension and Poketa road, crashed into a terrace and turned over.

The truck was driven by Timothy Kelleher, 31, of 713 Sarah street, and was making good speed, police said.

Several of the victims were pinned beneath the five-ton truck as it toppled. Residents of the neighborhood rushed to the scene and helped the less seriously injured to lift the vehicle sufficiently to allow the pinioned men to be released.

All the injured were removed to Pittsburgh Hospital. Kelleher was arrested on a reckless driving charge.

REDS IN BATTLE AT LABOR HALL

BOSTON, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Communists and police engaged in a hand-to-hand battle outside the convention hall of the American Federation of Labor today. Several arrests were made.

During the melee, police used their clubs freely. A number of women were included in the Communists ranks and their screams added to the general confusion. All traffic on Tremont street at this point was paralyzed, and a crowd of several thousand filled the street.

The disorder started when police attempted to break up a demonstration by the Communists, after having denied them admittance to the Hotel Bradford, in which the Federation of Labor sessions are being held.

When police arrested one speaker, who tried to address the crowd, other Communists attempted to rescue him.

Secretary Wilbur To Stay in Cabinet

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—(INS.)—Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur will remain in his cabinet post beyond the two-year period which he agreed to serve, President Hoover announced today.

Stanford University, of which Dr. Wilbur is president, has agreed to extend Wilbur's leave, Mr. Hoover said.

HUNT KIDNAPED HEIRESS

GREENFIELD, Mo., Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Kidnaping of Mrs. Alma Wilson McKinley, 24-year-old heiress and expectant mother, stirred Southwest Missouri today.

Enraged friends joined officers of a score of cities and towns in a patrol of highways from the foothills of the Ozarks to the Missouri River, seeking a small masked man who abducted the woman last night from the ranch home of her father, Benton Wilson, oil millionaire.

The kidnaper, armed with a shotgun, Sheriff Olin Killingsworth said, entered the Wilson home where Mrs. McKinley and her mother were alone. According to the sheriff, he demanded money, but was told there was none in the house. He then forced the young woman to accompany him in the family car.

Man Found Guilty In Fight at Pool

Leon Martin, Negro, of 6607 Bower street, was found guilty of aggravated assault and battery in Criminal Court today in connection with a fight at the Paulson avenue swimming pool August 3. He is alleged to have wielded a knife in the crowd, slashing J. J. Heh, of 1340 Paulson avenue. He claimed self-defense. Judge James B. Drew suspended a sentence of three months' imprisonment on payment of the costs.

MYER SWITCHES TO PINCHOT

Gilbert F. Myer, of McKeesport, former Democratic county commissioner and postmaster of McKeesport under Grover Cleveland's administration, today announced he would support Gifford Pinchot, the Republican nominee, for governor of Pennsylvania.

He issued this statement:

"After consistently having voted the Democratic ticket for over 50 years, I have reached the point where I now regard myself more or less as an independent voter.

"I feel that Gifford Pinchot has proved himself to be a capable, progressive, fearless and honest executive and I believe that the affairs of this great commonwealth can better be entrusted to his care than to an untried man concerning whose qualifications to deal with public affairs we know nothing.

"I therefore have decided to support Mr. Pinchot in this campaign."

Wales to Be Best Man At Boris' Wedding

ROME, Oct. 14.—(Universal.)—Great Britain's popular Prince of Wales will act as best man to King Boris, of Bulgaria, when the monarch weds Princess Giovanna, of Italy, this month, Universal Service was reliably informed last night.

The heir to the English throne will be present in a dual role, it was learned. He will act as his country's representative at the ceremony, to which office he has been appointed by King George, and in the more personal service to King Boris.

Meanwhile, although no official announcement has been made, it is understood that the wedding is now scheduled to be celebrated in the Cathedral of St. Francis Assisi, in Assisi, on the morning of October 26.

SAN ROSSORE, Italy, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—King Boris took part today in a hunting party with the royal family, including his future bride, Princess Giovanna, and afterward went fishing.

500 DEVICES ADJUDGED FAULTY

Won't Be Used in Election As Result of Ruling; Judge Orders Changes

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 14.—As the result of a ruling of Judge Harry S. McDevitt in Common Pleas Court No. 1 here today, the 500 voting machines purchased by the Philadelphia County Commissioners at a cost of over $600,000 will not be used as the general elections next month.

The elimination of the machines from use at the next election was the outcome of proceedings brought before Judge McDevitt by John W. Glover, on a taxpayer's bill in equity, to restrain the commissioners from paying out city money for the machines or the use of them because they did not fully conform with the requirements of the law.

MACHINES IN STORAGE

The machines are now in a storage house in this city, having been received from the manufacturers, the Automatic Voting Machine Corporation, of Jamestown, N. Y., but they will have to remain there and will not be distributed in as many divisions for use on election day.

Judge McDevitt refused to grant the injunction, but gave a time allowance of 60 days so that the Jamestown company could place proper additional devices on the machines to bring them within the specifications of the contract and the law. Judge McDevitt said:

"The court will not grant an injunction at this time, but will give to the company 60 days in which to perfect its machine to the satisfaction of the County Commissioners."

NOT FOR ELECTION

William T. Connor, counsel for the County Commissioners, interposed:

"We understand that the machines are not to be used at the election next month."

Judge McDevitt replied:

"If I thought that the machines were intended for use at

PAROLE GUILTY VOTE OFFICERS

The judge of election, two inspectors and the clerk of the election board of the Third district of the Third Ward were found guilty of negligence in the September primaries, and were paroled for 18 months by Judge George V. Moore.

Those paroled were Dewey Abdula, judge; Mike Cozza and Francis Haeck, inspectors, and Marion Mondalek, clerk.

It was testified by County Detective Davis Drexler that discrepancies were found in the ballots. The members of the board pleaded that they became tired near the end of the day, and admitted that negligence might have resulted.

FEDERAL JUDGE SCORES DRY AGENTS FOR ILLEGAL RAID

HOME NOT 'CLUB,' HE HOLDS

Denounces Subterfuge in Obtaining Warrant Where Evidence of Sale Failed

Judge R. M. Gibson, in an opinion in Federal Court today, assailed prohibition agents for what he termed evasion of the law in raiding a home on the pretext that it was a club, without evidence of liquor sales.

The court quashed a search and seizure warrant executed February 22 and suppressed the evidence, consisting mostly of bottled liquor, confiscated in a raid on the home of Herman Murdough, 812 Wilson way, East Pittsburgh.

In the search warrant, the agents had described the premises as a "club," the court pointed out, and had stated they had seen men coming from the place intoxicated and also smelled "a strong odor of alcoholic character."

The court held:

"It is clear from the testimony that the defendant had received liquor for no lawful purpose. On the other hand, it is equally clear that the word 'club' used in the affidavits upon which the search warrant was issued was a mere device to evade that provision of the prohibition act which required evidence of sale as a pre-requisite to the issuance of a search warrant for private premises."

HUNT PRESSED FOR SLAYER

A state-wide search was under way today for Oliva Diepeitro, 28, an Italian, who, police say, shot to death another Italian during a quarrel in Bricelyn street, near Dornbush avenue, last night.

The victim, Joseph Carello, 46, of 161 Vidette street, was pronounced dead at Pittsburgh Hospital.

From Carello's relatives, police said they learned that the victim had accused the assailant, who came here from Detroit Sunday, of stealing his revolver. The accusation led to a quarrel, climaxed by the shooting. After shooting Carello, the killer tossed away the revolver and fled, witnesses told police.

Search of Carello's home, a one-story frame building of two rooms, yielded homicide detectives two shotguns. Carello, said to have been separated from his wife, Mary, for two years, was employed at the Union Switch and Signal Company. Mrs. Carello, employed in a Center avenue apartment house, told detectives their six children were in a home.

MAL DAUGHERTY INDICTED

WASHINGTON COURT HOUSE, O., Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Mal S. Daugherty, banker, who figured in the fringes of the investigation into the Teapot Dome oil lease of the Harding administration, was under $40,000 bond today charged with embezzlement, misapplication of funds and falsification of statements.

Daugherty was indicted on 58 counts yesterday by the Fayette County grand jury which investigated the closing last summer of the Ohio State Bank, of which Daugherty was president, and the Peoples and Drovers Bank.

His brother, former Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty, of Columbus, and his mother, Mrs. Jane Daugherty, of this city, signed the bond for his release. Date for arraignment was not set.

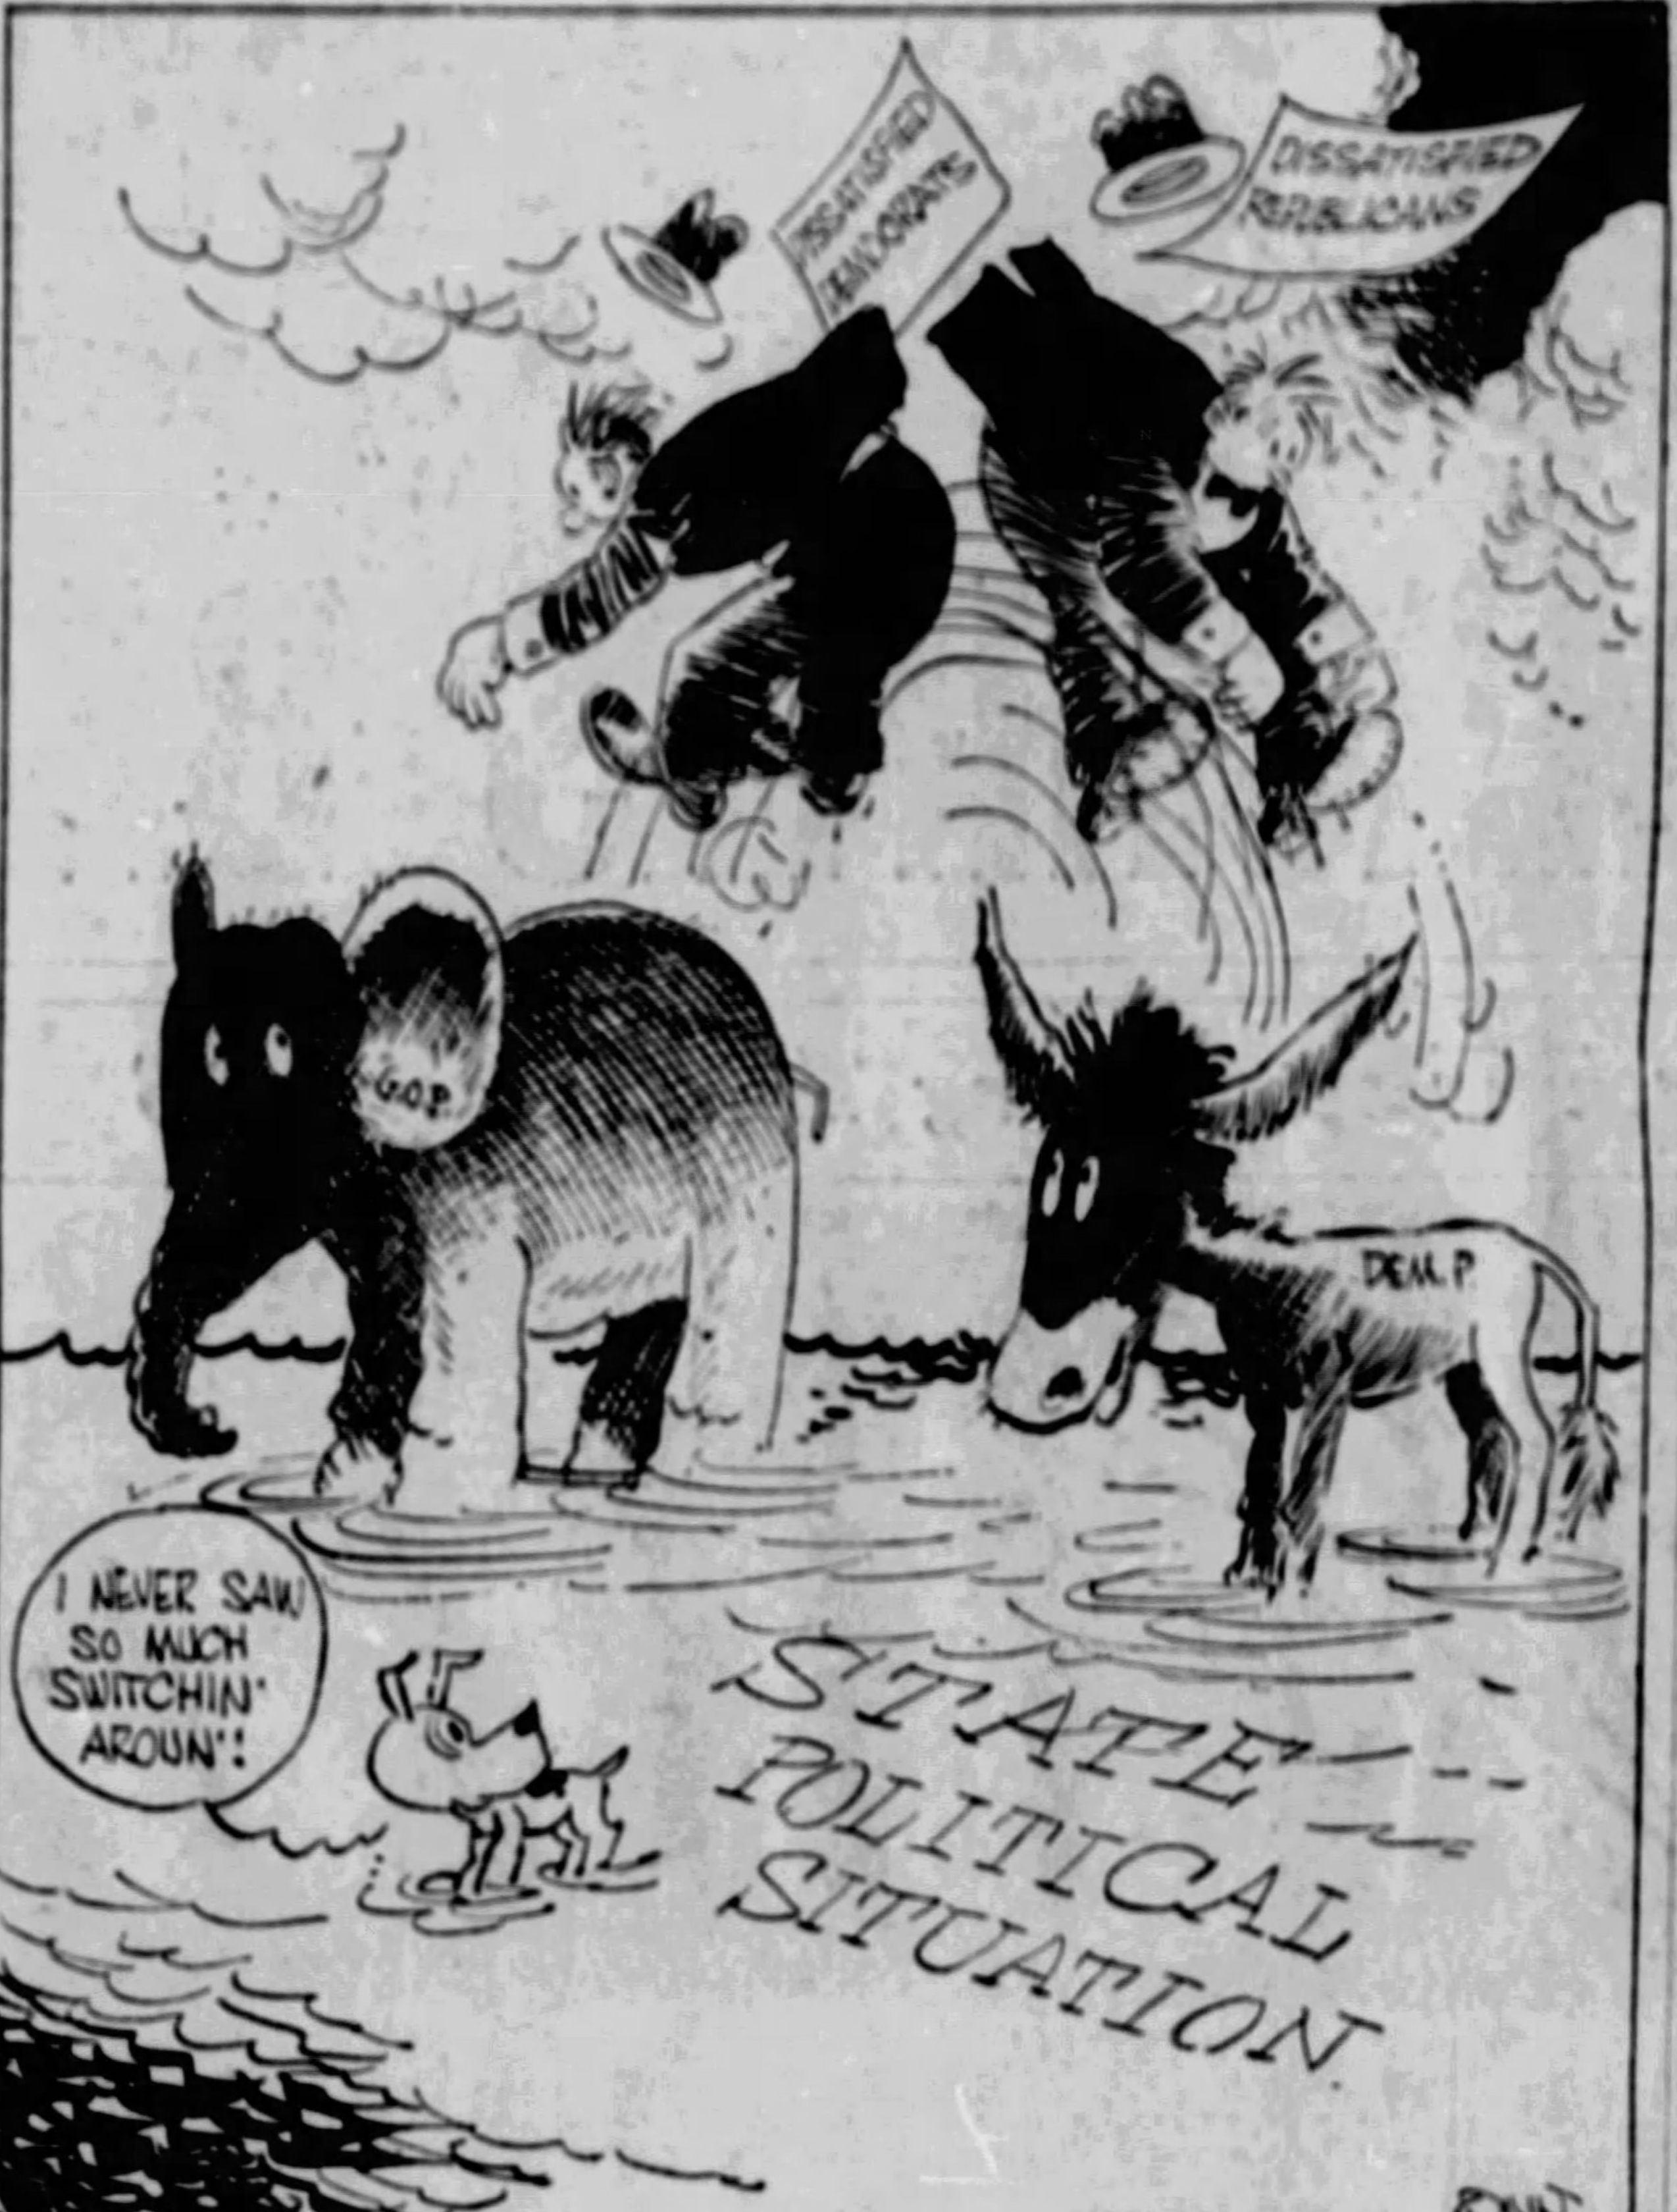
"CHANGING HORSES—" By Quin Hall



PHILA. MACHINES BARRED

the next election I would issue an injunction against such use."

As Mr. Connor on behalf of the county commissioners was in agreement with Glover's contentions that the machine made by the Jamestown Company did not comply with the law, he wished to have it plainly understood that the machines could not be used next month. There may be used about 10 voting machines for registering the vote in as many election divisions at the approaching election because there are this number of machines made by the Shoup Voting Machine Company, of Union City, N. J., which conform to the legal requirements.

PLAINTIFF'S CHARGES

Glover brought his injunction suit on the grounds that the Jamestown machines did not provide for a secret ballot; that the registering apparatus could be examined at any time during the course of voting and the number of votes cast and even the vote of an individual could be revealed. The chief point of objection was the fact that the Jamestown machine is not equipped with a perfected "lock out" bar that will shut off from use each separating voting device which is not being used at a particular election.

According to the testimony adduced at a hearing last week, the Jamestown company promised to equip with the "lock out" device the machines now in the city's storage house, but, although two schemes were tried out, neither was satisfactory to the County Commissioners.

ORDERS CHANGES

In addition to ordering the perfection of the "lock out" bar, Judge McDevitt also declared today that the registering apparatus of the Jamestown machine also must undergo changes to make the machines finally acceptable by the commissioners under the contract.

Judge McDevitt said:

"Anyone can go to the back of this machine as it is now and turn the cylinders registering the votes."

The Automatic Voting Machine Company was one of the two bidders for furnishing voting machines to Allegheny County in the recent bidding.

TROOPER SLAIN, 2 GET LIFE

CENTERVILLE, Mich., Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Only a little more than 12 hours following their capture after the killing of State Policeman John S. Burke and the robbery of a bank at Battle Creek, Thomas Martin, 30, and James Gallagher, 28, were sentenced in circuit court here to life imprisonment in Jackson prison.

The $4,000 bank loot, according to their confessions, made in the St. Joseph County Jail here, was recovered. Martin fired the three shots which struck Trooper Burke in the neck, causing instant death. Burke, they said, overtook them on his motorcycle. They halted. Burke approached the car on foot and started questioning them. Gallagher, who was driving, drew his pistol. Burke batted it aside and Martin, drawing his gun, killed the trooper.

The rivers are stationary. Stage at Franklin is minus 0.1 foot; Lock No. 7, 9.4; Pittsburgh, 9.5; Dam No. 4, 9.1; Dam No. 6, 7.5; Dam No. 9, 8.0, and Dam No. 12, 4.0. The dams are up.

Aviation Bulletin.

Overcast weather will advance eastward over the airways during the next 24 hours; scattered to broken clouds will probably continue over the middle district until late tonight; ceilings will continue good except over the western portion until morning; visibilities will increase to good during this afternoon, decreasing during the early morning to poor in most districts; winds will continue light easterly or northeasterly; temperatures will change but little, with the lowest over Western Pennsylvania being between 50 and 55 degrees.

MOBS CONTINUE RIOTING IN BERLIN

Police Battle Rowdies in New Outbreak; Fascist Hordes Stage Attack on Stores

BERLIN, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—After an hour of fighting, police quelled rioting in the vicinity of the Potsdamerplatz early this morning.

The disturbance developed when theater crowds stopped to see the destruction wrought by Fascist bands yesterday during a riot incident to opening of the Reichstag.

Rowdies saw an opportunity to start window smashing all over again and perhaps to profit by pillaging. They insulted police, who cleared the Potsdamerplatz with their clubs after an hour's encounter.

Karl Zoergiebel, chief of police, said virtually none but Fascists had participated in the attacks on Jewish stores yesterday. Police patrols, both mounted and afoot, guarded the business section of the city today.

STORM FORECAST

Within a stone's throw of the shop windows broken in yesterday's rioting, the Prussian Diet convened today for a session expected to be stormy, as the Fascists have been clamoring for dissolution of the Diet since the September 14 elections. They claim that if membership in the body were subject to a new plebiscite they probably would dominate it.

Therefore, the Rightist parties are planning a move of dissolution to force new elections, but with the Centrists determined to support Prime Minister Braun's coalition government, there apparently is no chance of such a motion carrying.

The Socialist-Centrist-Democratic coalition number 228 out of 449 seats.

HITLER IRRITATED

It is this fact which particularly irritates the Prussians, who contend the present Diet does not represent "awakened Prussia." The present strength of Fascisti in the Diet is only six seats.

Adolf Hitler, militant leader of the National Socialists, who predicted recently that "heads must roll in the sand," expressed wide indignation over yesterday's violence.

It was understood he viewed such destructive demonstrations at this particular time damaging to his cause.

UNIFORMS JEERED

It was not revealed whether the appearance in the Reichstag of his 107 deputies in their costumes of high black boots, military trousers and brown shirts with the swastika on the arm pleased or displeased him.

The picturesque gesture of the deputies, who marched into the Reichstag in a body, was greeted with laughter and hoots by other deputies. The Reichstag adjourned almost immediately after roll call.

W.C.T.U. for Hoover, No Third Party Plan

JOHNSTOWN, N. Y., Oct. 14.—(AP.)—The Associated Press herewith corrects an erroneous story carried on October 12 crediting Mrs. Ella A. Boole, national president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, with asserting before a state W. C. T. U. convention that a third party would be established in 1932 if both Republican and Democratic platforms call for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Convention delegates yesterday wired President Hoover that:

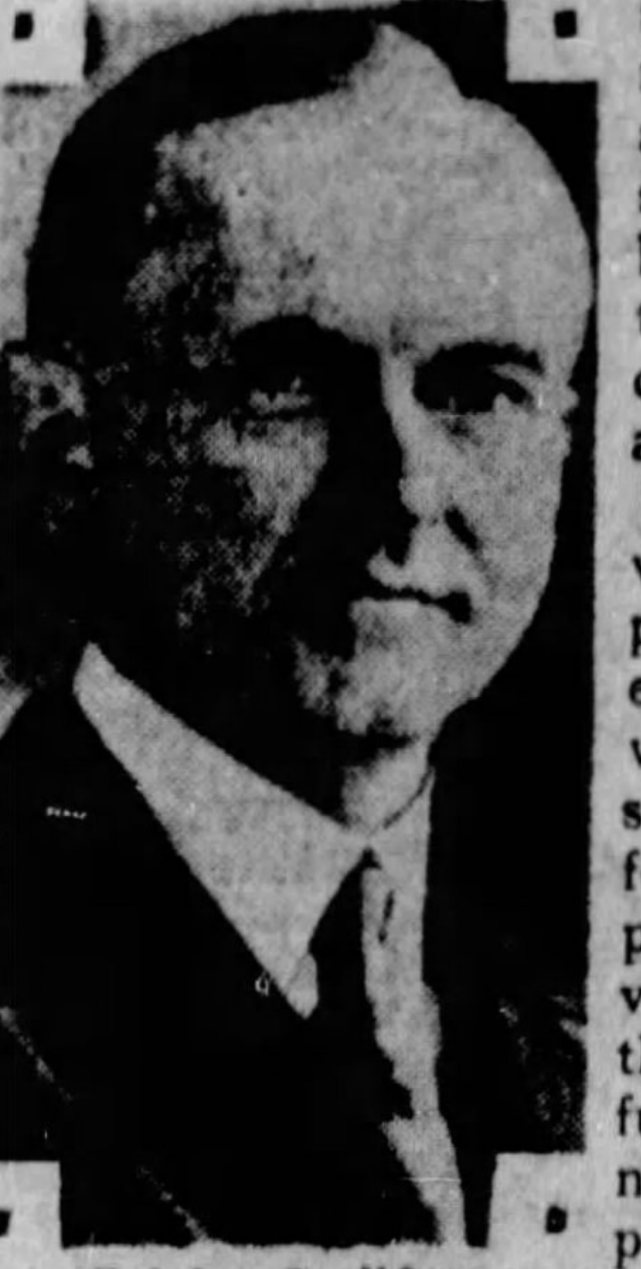
"Mrs. Boole and the State W. C. T. U. convention heartily support you in your program."

Coolidge Praises Effect Of Women Upon Politics

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Oct. 14.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

We have just completed the first decade of national woman suffrage. Generally it has revealed that while women are not eager for public office they administer it successfully. Not all the claims made about the value they would add to political life have been substantiated. Party alignments have been little changed. If a purification of politics has not yet been perceptible, probably public life was already reasonably clean.



Calvin Coolidge

But women voters have had a very considerable influence on party platforms and governmental policy, especially on the humane and social welfare sides. Education is better served. Ten years are too short for final results. The women are particularly effective on the conservative side of affairs. They are still the home makers. They look to the future. They think of conditions not only for themselves but for their posterity.

The great benefit of their vote will be in bringing to the aid of the state that spiritual support which they have so long given to the church. They are devoted, steadfast, sensible. They will not follow radical proposals, but will be influenced by moral values. Nothing can be safer for the commonwealth than the informed judgment of the mothers of the land.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

TRIAL OPENS IN WILMERDING SHOOTING

Delatora Accused of Firing At Williams, Ex-Officer Defendant Offers Alibi

Vincenzo Delatora, 39, of Wilmerding, was placed on trial today in Criminal Court before Visiting Judge J. Frank Graff, of Armstrong County, on a charge of assault and battery growing out of an alleged attempt to shoot John E. Williams, 36, former policeman of Wilmerding, on August 30.

A jury of 11 women and a man was selected after careful questioning by attorneys for both prosecution and defense.

WILLIAMS TESTIFIES

Judge Graff quizzed the jurors particularly as to whether they had discussed the case before being sworn. The shooting is considered an outgrowth of Wilmerding's political broil.

Williams, the first witness called, testified he was walking in Hermon avenue, Wilmerding, the morning of August 30, when he saw Delatora in an automobile opposite the postoffice with a sawed-off shotgun pointed at him.

TELLS OF ESCAPE

Williams said he jumped behind a parked car as the gun exploded and the charge missed him, then he ran down an alley with Delatora's auto in pursuit.

The pursuing auto was blocked by a parked truck, Williams said, and he ran to his home.

Twenty minutes later, Williams said, he returned to near the scene of the shooting and accused Delatora of the shooting.

Delatora replied he had been across the river at the time of the alleged attack, Williams testified.

OTHERS AT SHOOTING

John Taylor, of Marguerite street, Wilmerding, testified he heard a shot fired at the time and place claimed by Williams, and that he saw Williams run, followed by an automobile in which he recognized Delatora.

James Pollack, Wilmerding postmaster, said he heard a shot and saw an auto turn down an alley and later back out.

He said he recognized Delatora as a man he had seen frequently, but whose name was unknown to him.

He said he took the license number and later gave it to Chief of Police Maguire, of Wilmerding, but that he had gotten the letters and numerals wrong and later corrected it to Maguire.

ERROR EMPHASIZED

Much stress was put on this reported error and the fact that Joseph Bodner, county detective, had said he could not find the owner of the machine listed in the state auto license record. Jackson told the court this was improbable, and Bodner was asked to check the records. He later said he had wired Harrisburg to get the owner's name.

The defense opened with Delatora denying that he was in the vicinity when the alleged shot was fired. He said he had gone across the river to help Nick Ferrati in his grocery store and that several persons had seen him there between the hours of the alleged shooting and his return to Wilmerding.

Attorney Frank Zappala said the defense would show a case of mistaken identity for his client.

McKees Rocks Man Found Shot Dead

Andrew Szatkowsky, 48, of 365 Olympia street, McKees Rocks, was found dead early today by McKees Rocks police, near the Indian mound, with a bullet through his chest and a revolver lying nearby. Szatkowsky's wife, it was said, recently left him, taking their five children to Detroit.

BOYD LAUDS SCIENCE AID IN FLYING

Aviator Says Flight Proves Value of Instruments In Conquering Atlantic

EXCLUSIVE

By CAPT. J. ERROL BOYD.

The Canadian war flyer who, with Lieut. Harry P. Connor, U. S. naval reserve officer, Saturday successfully completed the monoplane Columbia's second trans-Atlantic crossing. The Columbia landed at Croydon Airport, England, from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, after an over night stop on the Scilly Islands.

(Copyright, 1930, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. Distributed by Universal Service.)

LONDON, Oct. 14.—What was uppermost in our minds when we started our flight to England was to prove that by a sound knowledge of scientific navigation and a good reliable plane with skilled manpower piloting it the North Atlantic could be conquered in any season of the year.

We started at what ordinarily would have been considered the most difficult time. We realized we would have a long night to encounter and strong winds, in fact every adverse meteorological condition. We anticipated storms, low pressure areas, varying temperatures, and fogs.

The greatest enemy of Atlantic fliers at this time of the year is the liability of ice formations on the plane's wings. These are caused by condensed vapor ascending or descending from the clouds at varying altitudes when the temperature hovers around 32 degrees Fahrenheit.

FOG, GREAT HAZARD

Then again there is the variability of strong winds with the force of a gale. This presents terrible difficulties to the navigator and militate against the accurate checking of position. Fogs, of course, and low visibility present difficulties which can be easily imagined by non-fliers and require no comment from us. Up-to-date science has yet to give an antidote to fog and low visibility for generations of ships, railroad trains and motor cars have all had to acknowledge that fog is still the unconquered enemy of speed. However impenetrable fog is over land it must be understood that it is multiplied a hundredfold over the Atlantic.

To offset these disadvantages we took every precaution to equip ourselves with the latest flying and navigation instruments. We had confidence in our combined individual experiences and capabilities, but the efficaciousness of our new scientific instruments had yet to be proved.

DRIFT SIGHTS

Graduated on the stabilizer on tail section of the plane were painted drift angle lines for every five degrees from zero up to 31 on each side of the fin. These made it possible for us to take accurate drift sights. We carried six calcium-water lights for checking the drift at night. When these cans of calcium composition struck water a chemical reaction set in causing a flare of light.

AID AT NIGHT

As an aid to night flying and to prevent the exhaust gases from interfering with the pilot's vision while flying blind, the exhaust manifolds of the top cylinders were shaped in such a manner as to bring the exhaust fumes below the pilot's line of vision. As a full measure of safety, a special drain for the carburetor was installed in the cockpit.

BRITISH TRIBUTE

Obviously, for trans-oceanic air lines the large flying boats with seaworthy hulls will be the practical ships of the future. These vessels, of course, must be well-equipped and manned by men of considerable experience. In ocean flying a thorough knowledge of meteorology and seamanship is most essential. This can only be acquired through years of seagoing experience.

We would like to finish by quoting a tribute paid us in an editorial in the London Daily Express. It said:

"Capt. Boyd and Lieut. Connor have had the supreme satisfaction of flying the Atlantic and the rough luck of landing in England at a time when it was not the triumphs of aviation, but its tragedies, that filled men's thoughts.

"But their achievement stands and the air ministry and every flying club in the land should join in acclaiming it. It is right we should honor the dead. It is not less right that we should now turn to the living and let them know the pride and admiration felt for their superb feat."

Brakeman Killed In Fall From Car

R. J. Elder, a brakeman, was killed in the P. and L. E. railroad yards at noon today, according to a report to the coroner's office. The report said he fell off a railroad car.

McGovern Asks Political Sign Ban in Courthouse

County Cimmissioner C. C. McGovern, himself a Pinchot supporter, today urged removal of Pinchot-Davis posters from interior walls of the court house.

"An act of March, 1923, forbids placing of posters of political advertising in public buildings. McGovern said:

"Although I am interested in Pinchot and his success, I think it offends a lot of people coming into their own building to have banners up telling them how to vote."

Commissioner E. V. Babcock said if it was against the law the posters would come down. It was agreed, however, to await the return of Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, reported ill today, before taking action.

Hunt for Actress Begins, Fear Suicide

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 14.—(INS.)—Police of Tujunga and San Bernadino, Cal., have begun a search for Ethel Gordon Crain, former motion picture actress, upon the belief she had committed suicide because of grief over the suicide of her daughter in Chicago a week ago.

Tujunga police report friends of the missing woman had received a letter from her posted in San Bernadino in which she declared her purpose to end her life that she might join her daughter in death.

Mrs. Crain disappeared from her home last Saturday, according to police.

SPILLS THRILL AT HUNTS RACE

Spills added excitement to the Western Pennsylvania hunts race yesterday afternoon at Huntsland, farm of George R. McNary, near Greensburg, in which J. C. Hamilton, of Warrenton, Va., won the three important events.

Racing over the sweeping farm lands, Hamilton came in first for the Greensburg driving cup, the Columbus Day special and the Western Pennsylvania cup. The first and last of these events were sweepstakes. Three farmers' races, one with mule entries, added extra interest for the large assembly of society patrons.

A fall by Torrence Miller, riding Red Fire, in for the hunts cup, handicapped the mount from capturing the event for the third consecutive year, which honor would have given its owner, Mrs. George R. McNary, the cup permanently. John W. Lawrence crossed the finish line first, but judges disqualified him for cutting a flag.

With Hamilton first in the Greensburg Driving Club event, second place was taken by Dean Masten. Other events and winners were:

Farmers race No. 1—First, Harry Fetter; second, Charles McCurdy; third, Eugene Baker. Farmers race No. 2—First, Clyde McCurdy; second Heath Burkholder; third, Walter Long. Farmers' mule race—First, Julian Hite; second, Eugene Harr; third, Robert Harr. Children's pony race—First, Willard Hughes; second, Archie Leone; third, Curtis Armbrust.

In the Columbus Day special, won by Hamilton, Torrence Miller came in second, and Jack Skinner finished third.

3 Soldiers Wounded As One Drops Shell

COLUMBUS, Ga., Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Three soldiers at Fort Benning, located here, were injured seriously by shrapnel from a shell which burst when one of them dropped it.

Doctors feared it would be necessary to amputate a leg of Private George Fullbright and an arm of Private Herman Eller. George Duzek, who dropped the shell as the three examined it, was hurt less seriously.

Orphanage Work in Near East Ended

ATHENS, Greece, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Dr. James Barton, of Boston, chairman for Near East Relief, today handed over to Greece the orphanage at Syra and a pavilion at Athens for tubercular children, signifying that American post-war orphanage work in the Near East was ended.

CARDINAL HITS 'DRY' EFFECT

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Patrick Cardinal Hayes, of New York, commenting here upon prohibition, said he considered it "unwise legislation" and a blow to the temperance movement.

Cardinal Hayes, one of the four cardinals in the United States, arrived from Victoria en route to California yesterday. He made known his views in discussing an address here yesterday by Bishop George Finnigan, Montana, who told a Catholic gathering drunkenness had increased under the Eighteenth Amendment. The cardinal said:

"I asserted some years ago that prohibition was unwise legislation, since all people did not accept it, that prohibition is not in itself a virtue, but that temperance is.

"I saw clearly a trend toward temperance, just before prohibition came in. I noticed people were not drinking so much at dinners and private affairs."

He said the growing divorce rate presented a similar example of lack of self control.

NEW MACHINES FOR 500 JOBS

Commissioners E. V. Babcock and C. C. McGovern today ordered bids advertised for steam shovels and equipment at an estimated cost of $80,000, that will permit employment of more than 500 men in the North and South county parks.

Paul B. Riis, director of parks, urged that the equipment be purchased, as lack of machinery was depriving men of work. He said he planned to put about 250 laborers to work in each park, with 11 supervisors.

Riis was asked why he had discontinued making monthly reports on the parks. He replied:

"Because our reports were distorted by the newspapers."

Babcock said:

"Let's have the reports hereafter and trust the newspapers to treat them fairly."

Mild Winter Seen By Indian Hunter

TORONTO, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Walking Deer, Indian hunter, is convinced that it will be a mild winter with little snow. Black squirrels' nests are lower than usual, indicating to Walking Deer that drifts will not be so high.

Boys, Old Auto Tire, Rope Puzzle Police

Boys will be boys, and an automobile tire on a highway with a string attached cannot always be identified as a holdup attempt, Cheswick police learned following a Sherlock Holmes investigation.

Following complaints of attempted holdups on the highway, Burgess Thomas David and his policeman, John Polcheck, set out in the former's car to investigate.

In the same manner as the complaints, the officers encountered a tire on the road and, when they stopped to investigate, two figures were discovered 100 feet away tugging at a rope.

Two shots in the air netted the officers two very scared youths, who, after pleading their action was a prank, were dismissed with severe reprimand.

Torpedo Circles To Hit Ship Firing It

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Submarine V-5 of Uncle Sam's Navy has a hole as evidence of a boomerang torpedo. In practice V-5 shot a torpedo. What did the pesky thing do after starting for the point it was aimed at but turn around and make for V-5. It had a dummy head, so there was no explosion.

MORROW SHUNS PRESIDENCY

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 14.—(INS.)—Admirers of Dwight W. Morrow had their dreams that the former Ambassador to Mexico might run for President shattered today. Speaking here last night in the opening address of his campaign for United States senator, Morrow said he had no intention of running for President and that he looked forward "with pleasure and confidence to the opportunity of voting two years from now for the renomination and re-election of Herbert Hoover."

Attributing the present economic depression to war and post-war influences beyond the control of the federal government, Morrow praised the administration at Washington.

He reaffirmed his stand for repeal of the Eighteenth amendment. The Republican candidate said he did not think prohibition was an issue in the New Jersey campaign, but he mentioned his stand on the liquor question again so there would "be no misunderstanding" as to his position.

Hazleton Girl Found Unconscious, Dies

HAZLETON, Pa., Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Miss Katherine Ferry, 24, school teacher and daughter of Neil J. Ferry, of McAdoo, member of the international board of the United Mine Workers from the seventh district, who was found unconscious in her automobile in the Ferry garage yesterday morning, died at the State Hospital here early today.

It was at first thought she was a victim of monoxide gas poisoning due to fumes from her automobile, but her ailment was diagnosed as acute nephritis, a kidney condition.

Driven to Suicide By Too Much Cash

FRANKFORD, Del., Oct. 14.—(INS.)—The suicide of Everett H. Hickman, 67-year-old president of the First National Bank of this city in the cashier's cage yesterday afternoon, was attributed today to the fact "the bank had too much money," according to T. M. Heath, assistant cashier, who declared:

"There was more than $100,000 in cash on hand, and Mr. Hickman was worrying night and day over where to invest it properly."

Knife Fails to Save Nurse Doctor Shot

CARTHAGE, Mo., Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Dr. W. B. Chapman vainly attemptd to save the life of Bernard Grinder, 33, with an operation, after Grinder, a Washington (D. C.) nurse, was accidentally wounded by the physician in a struggle over a revolver.

BOB REPORTED LOCATED

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—(INS.)—Charles V. Bob, New York financier and aviation supporter supposed to have been missing four days, was reported in seclusion here today, resting to avert a nervous breakdown.

Although it was not learned where the banker was staying here, associates said Bob would remain in seclusion for several days before returning to New York.

Bob's cabin monoplane is still housed in a hangar at Municipal Airport where it was discovered Saturday after Bob was expected in New York. He was to have flown East last Thursday with his pilot, Col. Dean Lamb, and their failure to arrive in New York at first raised fears that they had been injured in an airplane accident.

2 PRIESTS, PILOT DIE IN CRASH

KOTZEBUE, Alaska, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Two Catholic priests and a pilot were killed here when the mission plane Marquette crashed. Ralph Wien, noted Alaskan aviator, had made a test flight before taking up the priests. The crash came while the ship was circling the field.

The Marquette, a six-passenger Bellanca cabin plane powered with a 225-horsepower Diesel motor, was sent to Alaska last summer. It was to be used by Jesuit priests in visiting missions in the interior. The plane was to be stationed at Holycross, 300 miles up the Yukon River. It was blessed at ceremonies at Roosevelt Field, N. Y., by the Rt. Rev. Joseph R. Crimont, bishop of Alaska, and then flew north.

Brooklyn Matador Returns Home For Visit

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Sidney Franklin, the Brooklyn boy who made good as a bull fighter, returned from Spain last night to be greeted by his relatives, his lawyer and his manager.

All Senor Franklin would say was that he is really just a "nouvellero," because he has never fought any bulls over 3 years old or weighing more than 375 pounds.

'LEGS' DIAMOND DYING, MUM

withdrew. The priest was said to be Father Kelly, of Cario, N. Y., for whom Diamond had high regard.

Another priest, Father William A. Scully, of New York, also visited Diamond.

Before entering Father Scully told newspaper men he had administered extreme unction to Diamond Sunday night. His parish is near the hospital, and the fact that he was summoned again today strengthened the belief that the wounded gangster was very low.

STILL KEEPS SILENCE

Hypodermics had been given Diamond to quiet him. He was quiet enough, however. Not a word would he utter that would give the police a clue to the identity of the two men who entered Room 829 of the Hotel Monticello Sunday morning and shot him five times with slugs from .38 caliber pistols.

Diamond made no comment when informed that during the night he had received a dozen telephone calls, four from women.

He did not ask for newspapers this morning, as he did yesterday. He appeared to realize the end was near.

INVESTIGATION RUSHED

As he lay there, dying, the "brains" of the New York police department, under the personal direction of Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney, worked at top speed trying to solve the mysterious shooting.

Police were searching high and low for Jacob Ginsberg, manager of Hotel Monticello, who disappeared immediately after the shooting.

They continued their questioning of Miss Marion Roberts, attractive titian-haired chorus girl and intimate of Diamond, who occupied room 831, adjoining Diamond's, on the morning of the shooting.

The girl's parents were on their way from Boston to aid her in her dilemma. She has become the most pitiful figure in this latest drama of the underworld. She insists she did not see the men who shot Diamond, as she was taking a bath at the time.

Truck With Blankets Worth $800 Missing

Frank E. Baker, of 1301 Reedsdale street, a salesman for the W. J. Griffith Company, 330 Third avenue, reported to South Side police today that his truck containing blankets and bedspreads valued at $800, which he had left in charge of his helper, J. J. Murphy, at South Twenty-third and Carson streets, had disappeared. Police began a hunt for Murphy, whose address Baker said he did not have.

FIGHT TO HOLD COAL RATES

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—E. C. Mahon, president of the Southern Coal and Coke Company, Knoxville, Tenn., told Examiner Charles M. Bardwell, of the Interstate Commerce Commission, yesterday that Southern coal operators would "pass out of the picture" if they lose the Northwest markets, to which the Great Lakes give access.

Testifying in the hearing on the petitions of Ohio and Western Pennsylvania operators for an increase in the railroad rate on lake cargo coal, as between them and the operators of West Virginia and Kentucky, Mahon said the Southern group has maintained its markets by making extreme and unusual sacrifices.

R. W. Lambie, state mine inspector of West Virginia, testified that coal seams in the Pittsburgh district are easier to mine than those of his own state. James D. Francis, Huntington, W. Va., vice president of several coal companies, gave testimony simliar to Mahon's.

WOMAN IN ROW AT TOW GARAGE

The Keystone Garage, West North avenue and Chateau street, North Side, official repository for police-towed automobiles, again was in the spotlight today.

Mrs. Myrtle Donahue, of 1409 West North avenue, and Albert D. Erdman, of 1422 West North avenue, employed in the department of highways and sewers and part time at the garage, were arraigned in North Side Police Station today on charges of disorderly conduct growing out of an argument at the garage last night.

Mrs. Donahue testified she had repeatedly protested to garage employes, to James M. Clark, director of public safety, to members of City Council and police about parking and repairing of police-seized autos in front of her home, and about loud profanity on the part of garage employes at all hours of the day and night, without getting relief.

Two neighbors verified Mrs. Donahue's statements.

Last night, she said, she went to the garage and protested to employes about conditions. Erdman argued with the woman, and it was alleged she struck him. Police arrested both.

Magistrate Ray Schneider, after hearing testimony of the witnesses, said he sympathized with the residents and would join them in any complaint they wished to make to Director Clark. He discharged Mrs. Donahue and Erdman.

BRAZIL REBELS WIN BATTLE

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Brazilian revolutionary troops, fighting for five hours near Carlopolis, in the Parana, Sao Paulo border area, have routed a large federal force, inflicting severe casualties.

An official insurgent announcement at Porto Alegre, capital of Rio Grande do Sul, said the battle was the hardest fought thus far of the engagements along the 200-mile Parana-Sao Paulo front for the possession of Sao Paulo.

The first battalion of the revolutionary army attacked the Federal position early yesterday morning after advancing to a point between Affonso Camargo and Carlopolis. Desperate fighting ensued, and after five hours the Federals gave way, leaving dead and wounded and supplies behind them. They fled toward Carlopolis.

Many prisoners were taken, the announcement said, including several high officers. The revolutionary troops also suffered some casualties.

EX-LEGION HEAD WED IN BOSTON

ELDORADO, Ark., Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Mrs. L. Shankle announced that her daughter, Miss Irene Richardson, 25, and O. L. Bodenhamer, past national commander of the American Legion, were married Monday in Boston.

Miss Richardson was secretary to Bodenhamer in his business here, the Arkansas Finance Company, she attended Ouachita College and later obtained a degree from Arkansas State Teachers' College. She had been in New York studying at Columbia University and left there to study at Emerson College in Boston.

Mrs. Shankle said the couple left Boston for New York, where they will stay a few days.

Spain Will Close Mutinous College

MADRID, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—The government announced this afternoon that it would close the University of Barcelona because of disorders which occurred there today in the course of which several hundred students burned a portrait of King Alfonso.

Pilot Dies; Student Hurt as Plane Falls

M'CALLEN, Tex., Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Catesby W. (Mike) Taylor, 26, a pilot, was instantly killed, and Richard Duvon, student flier, was injured yesterday when a new open cockpit biplane they were testing fell in a tail spin.

'All Glory Gone,' Walker Tired of Mayor Job

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—James J. Walker, now in his second term as Mayor of New York, is tired of his job.

He said in an address before the United Real Estate Owners' Association last night:

"All the glory is gone, all the glitter is off. It is a hard job, and somebody else ought to have it.

"I am not a candidate for office, and if you add, 'and you'll never be again,' I'll not contradict it. But before I go I want to feel that I'm leaving the city better than I found it—that's all I want to live on for the rest of my life."

NAME SPEAKERS FOR HEMPHILL RALLY

Democratic-Liberal Nominee, Dorrance and N. Y. Woman On Mosque Schedule

John M. Hemphill, Democratic-Liberal party nominee for governor, will deliver the principal address at a meeting in Syria Mosque, Oakland, tomorrow night under auspices of the Liberal party, according to Arthur M. Scully, county chairman, who will preside.

Other scheduled speakers are Charles Dorrance, state chairman of the Liberal party and Mrs. Marion Booth Kelly, of New York City.

TO PRESENT PLAQUE

Prior to the meeting, Hemphill, who was a captain in the A. E. F. in France during the World War, will be presented with a plaque at a dinner in Hotel Schenley under auspices of 300 former comrades. The presentation speech will be delivered by Gen. Mark Hersey, who commanded the Fourth Division that included Capt. Hemphill's regiment.

Scully yesterday added nearly a score of names of prominent Republicans to the committee supporting Hemphill. They are: Mrs. Joseph Dilworth, vice chairman of the campaign, and these members: W. S. Dalzell, of counsel for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company; Charles E. Dalley, of the Atlantic Refining Company; Samuel Harden Church, president of Carnegie Institute and director of the New Cumberland and Pittsburgh Railways Company, North Penn Coal Company, Pennsylvania Western Railway Company, and the Pittsburgh, Youngstown and Ashtabula Railways Company; Wilson S. McClintock, vice president of the National Surety Company; Attorney Simon Patterson; W. R. Scott, director of the Fidelity Title and Trust Company; Harmar D. Denny, Jr.; Norman Alderdice; O. W. Phillips, vice president of the Diamond National Bank; Joseph Dilworth, vice president of Dilworth-Porter Company, trustee of the Dollar Savings Bank and vice president of the Witherow Steel Corporation; Carl H. Borntraeger; Fleming Nevin, director of the Fort Pitt Spring and Manufacturing Company; Norman McLeod; Dr. Paul Titus; Joseph H. Holmes, president of the Citizens Traction Company, director of J. H. Hillman & Sons Company, the Mayflower Drug Company and the Worthington Ball Company, and Dr. Watson Marshall, director of the Physicians Land Company.

RALLY TODAY

The personnel of the Liberal party's ways and means and the business men's executive committees were announced previously.

Mrs. Carrol Miller is scheduled to speak in behalf of Hemphill and his Democratic running mates at a noon meeting today in Democratic headquarters, Magee Building, 34 Fourth avenue. Mrs. J. Wood Clark, vice chairman of the Democratic County Committee, will preside.

Attorney Charles Alvin Jones spoke at yesterday's noonday meeting, scoring Pinchot's stand on prohibition.

PITTSBURGHER HEADS GAS MEN

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 14.—(AP.)—H. C. Cooper, of the Hope Natural Gas Company, Pittsburgh, was elected chairman of the natural gas department at the convention of the American Gas Association today. H. L. Montgomery, of the Oklahoma Cities Service Gas Company, Bartlesville, was named vice chairman. The natural gas men voted to hold their next meeting in Memphis, Tenn., next May, and to meet in Tulsa, Okla., in May, 1932.

Brain Development Urged for Longevity

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Brains are needed if one is to live long. A problem for the profession, in the opinion of Dr. Charles H. Mayo, is to build up the brain so that it advances in development with the body. Pointing out that the span of life is increasing, he called attention to scores of old people in institutions with strong bodies, but brains that are almost through functioning.

Pupils 'Take Over' Peruvian University

LIMA, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Striking students of San Marcos University met inside the university yesterday and voted a resolution declaring it "in a state of reorganization."

The students took possession of the building after a noisy demonstration against the rector, the dean and the teachers on Saturday evening.

Duquesne Boy Dies From Auto Injuries

Injuries received when he was struck in Kaylor street, Duquesne, today caused the death of Elmer Mortle, 6, of 611 Mifflin street, Duquesne, in his home. Steve Rembecky, of 245 South Fifth street, Duquesne, driver of the auto, posted bond for a coroner's inquest.

Slays Wife, Shoots Kin, Ends Own Life

ANDERSON, S. C., Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Wayland Roach, 38, broke into the home of his father-in-law, M. M. Roach, here last night and killed his wife, seriously wounded his wife's sister, Connie Roach, and then killed himself with the same pistol.

tional prohibition amendment and modification of the so-called Sunday blue laws. He referred to Pinchot as a "fanatical dry."

Roper directed Pinchot's campaign in Philadelphia in 1922 when Pinchot ran for governor.

TWO CANDIDATES LEAVE

Meanwhile, the two principal actors in the Pennsylvania political drama have left the Philadelphia stage for a time and are now upstate appearing before the voters.

John M. Hemphill, Democratic-Liberal party candidate for governor, left here last night and his first scheduled stop was to be at the court house in Clarion.

NO PROMISES—PINCHOT

Pinchot issued a statement last night that he had made no promises as to whom he would appoint to cabinet places in the event he is elected. He also announced that he had no objections to state employes voluntarily contributing to the state committee campaign fund.

Before leaving, Hemphill spoke in Delaware County. He referred to the bolt of Philadelphia ward leaders from Pinchot to himself, and told the Delaware Countians that he saw no sense in Pinchot blaming him because the Philadelphia leaders do not like Pinchot.

INVITES COYNE AID

He then invited Pinchot supporters, including Judge John J. Fine and John Kehoe, of Luzerne County; Mayor Mackey, of Philadelphia, and State Senator James J. Coyne, of Allegheny County, "to become thoroughly disreputable by voting for me."

The Philadelphia situation with regard to the governorship appeared to be simmering for the present. Charles F. Waters, auditor general, who has taken charge of Republican State Committee affairs in this city, is laying his plans for what he calls a vigorous campaign in the interest of the entire Republican ticket.

Local political leaders are awaiting an announcement from William S. Vare, head of the Philadelphia organization, as to his attitude on the governorship. He has been ill at his summer home at Atlantic City, which is said to have interrupted a statement that he was preparing.

Bolt Won't Jeopardize G.O.P. Victory, Martin Declares

The defection of party leaders in Philadelphia will not jeopardize the success of the Republican nominees at the general election November 4, according to a statement last night by Republican State Chairman Edward Martin at his home in Washington. He declared:

"Washington County will give the Republican nominees, including Gifford Pinchot, a tremendous vote. All Western counties will stand solidly back of the party ticket."

Before leaving for conferences in the central part of the state, Martin sent a telegram to the chairmen of the 67 counties, urging redoubled effort for the Republican nominees.

PRIEST SCORES HOOVER OVER CHURCH NOTE

Violated Spirit of Oath of Office, Father Burke Says; Secretary Replies

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—The language chosen by President Hoover in a message to American Lutherans for the anniversary this month of the Protestant Reformation has brought denunciation from a Catholic source.

Father John J. Burke, secretary of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, issued a statement last night asserting Mr. Hoover had clearly violated "the spirit if not the letter of his oath of office" in a brief greeting the chief executive wrote for the American Lutheran, a church publication.

An immediate answer came from the President's secretary, George Akerson. He said:

"Any such suggestion or implication as that made by Father Burke is an injustice both to the President's own sentiments and the complete religious tolerance he has always felt and has always advocated both publicly and privately."

Father Burke said the President had insulted millions of Americans but held it more important that he had congratulated one particular religious body "on the changes it introduced from older conceptions of religion and government."

HOOVER'S MESSAGE

The President's message was:

"I send cordial greetings to the Americans of Lutheran faith who are celebrating on October 31 the anniversary of the Protestant Reformation and the four hundredth anniversary of the reading of the Augsburg confession, from which date so many of the changes in point of view from older conceptions both of religion and government.

"The effects of these historical events are reflected in our national life and institutions, in religion through the predominant numbers of adherents to Protestant faiths and in government through the principle of separation of church and state. It is fitting that we should commemorate the persons and events from which mighty forces have sprung."

Father Burke said it was entirely proper for the President to send "a message of congratulation on the civic work done by Americans of the Lutheran faith." He added, however:

"In the actual message which President Hoover sent to them, for the celebration of Reformation Sunday, the President clearly violates the spirit, if not the letter, of his oath of office as President of the United States."

QUESTIONS ACCURACY

He questioned the historical accuracy of the President's utterance also, asserting:

"Luther was not a champion of the separation of church and state, but a most arbitrary defender of state absolutism."

He concluded:

"It does matter very much, to the whole constitutional structure of our country, and its institutions, that the President of all the people, who is called by virtue of his office to respect the religious rights of all, congratulates one particular religious body on the changes it introduced from older conceptions of religion and government, and declares that we as a nation should commemorate the Protestant persons and the events which 'these mighty forces shaping our country have sprung.'"

Lutherans Won't Enter Discussion, Convention Says

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 14.—Regarding President Hoover's greeting to Lutherans which has aroused nation-wide interest, the United Lutheran convention concurs with President F. H. Knubel's statement, which said:

"This is technically not our affair. It is a quarrel, if you call it that, between a Catholic spokesman and President Hoover or his message. Naturally, therefore, we Lutherans do not care to enter the discussion."

Arrest Man, Wife In Mail Box Thefts

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—With the arrest of a man and a woman here yesterday, police and postoffice inspectors believed they had captured a couple who obtained thousands of dollars by rifling apartment mail boxes in Chicago, Cincinnati, Detroit and St. Louis. Postoffice Inspector Kupferer said the prisoners were John Walters, 36, and a woman, 24, who said she was his wife.

Musicians' Strike in Philadelphia Ended

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 14.—(INS.)—Striking theater musicians here will return to their jobs, officials indicated today following a midnight conference with theater managers in New York last night. The strikers will accept a cut in their wages and a reduction in the number of musicians employed, according to the reports reaching this city.

Adopted Daughter Inherits $140,031

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Oct. 14.—An estate valued at $140,031.80 is disposed of in the will of James B. Murdock, of Greene Township. An adopted daughter, Mrs. Marion Murdock, is named sole beneficiary. The estate includes a tract of land in Greene Township containing 192 acres.

LUTHERANS ACT ON JOBLESS, ADJOURN

Churches Called on to Aid Needy; Delegates Hear Pittsburgh Synod Lauded

By THE REV. L. W. RUPP,
Special Correspondent.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 14.—Winding up their business today, delegates to the United Lutheran convention were preparing to depart for their homes. The Pittsburgh delegation was to return on the Lutheran Special late today.

Pittsburgh delegates saw vital significance in a late action on unemployment by the convention. Local churches were called on to list unemployed members and assist them to secure jobs, to investigate and relieve members needing support, and to co-operate with other religious and secular agencies for the relief of the unemployment situation in general.

TRAINING STUDIED

A final important convention topic was President Knubel's recommendation for a study of the system of training teachers and ministers. This likely will be a live issue at the 1932 convention.

The Rev. Dr. Ambrose Hering, superintendent of the Lutheran welfare work in the Twin Cities, took an active part in the discussion of inner missions. Dr. Hering will be remembered in Pittsburgh as the superintendent of the Pittsburgh Lutheran Inner Mission Society for 11 years. He was succeeded there by the Rev. S. C. Michelfelder in 1925. Dr. Hering, while in Pittsburgh, was successful in co-ordinating the inner mission work of all synods in this territory.

WELFARE GROUP

The work embraces a family welfare department with four workers, Mrs. A. L. Stroud, supervisor; the Rev. A. W. Steremel, institutional pastor; Mrs. Lewis Hay, matron of the girls' hospice, and Henry Hesse, manager of the South Side branch for homeless men. A fresh air camp is also maintained at Zelienople.

Sixty thousand Lutherans in Western Pennsylvania in 300 congregations support the work.

Dental Gold, Office Furnishings Stolen

Breaking into the dental office of Dr. B. Wilstein, 505 Wylie avenue, thieves last night stole a quantity of dental gold valued at $200, and rugs and draperies valued at $300. According to police, the office was entered sometime after 9 p. m., when Dr. Wilstein left the office.

What the Consumer Should Know About Eggs

Because of the readiness with which eggs spoil, the term "fresh" has become synonymous with the idea of desirable quality.

Contrary to the public notion, however, the actual age of an egg is of much less importance than are a number of other conditions which affect its quality.

Even an egg only 24 hours old that has been exposed to a warm summer rain or other inclement weather conditions, or has been gathered by the farmer's wife when it was wet and dirty and then kept in a warm kitchen would probably be swarming with invisible bacteria and be really unfit for food; while another egg, properly produced and efficiently handled and kept for eight to ten months under modern refrigeration, will be entirely edible, wholesome and of good quality.

An egg shell is porous—even a new laid egg, when the shell has been subjected to moisture of any kind, very rapidly absorbs odors and bacteria; frequently, so seemingly an insignificant a thing as the wet and muddy feet of the hens starts the trouble that results in a whole train of evils which affect the quality.

Environment, therefore, is of far greater importance than mere age, so far as egg quality is concerned.

CALIFORNIANS FETE HEARST TONIGHT

Opera, Film Stars Join in Los Angeles Tribute to Publisher; Huge Banquet

Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 14.—More than 1,100 reservations have been made and tickets issued for the testimonial banquet to William Randolph Hearst at the Hotel Biltmore tonight.

Practically all of the seating capacity of the Sala de Oro and its balconies has been taken. The committee in charge, of which John C. Austin is chairman, and the reception committee, of which Louis B. Mayer is chairman, will be struggling with the problem of where to seat men and women who will send in belated applications, as soon as the comparatively few remaining places at tables are gone.

The stage remains in the banquet hall, the Sala de Oro, and from it an orchestra under the direction of Oscar Radin, of the M. G. M. musical staff, will furnish the theme songs.

TIBBETTS TO SING

A rare treat is in store for the banqueters in the singing of Lawrence Tibbett, world-famous baritone of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and Miss Grace Moore, brilliant soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, both of whom are stars of the M. G. M. studios. The orchestra will accompany Miss Moore in her numbers.

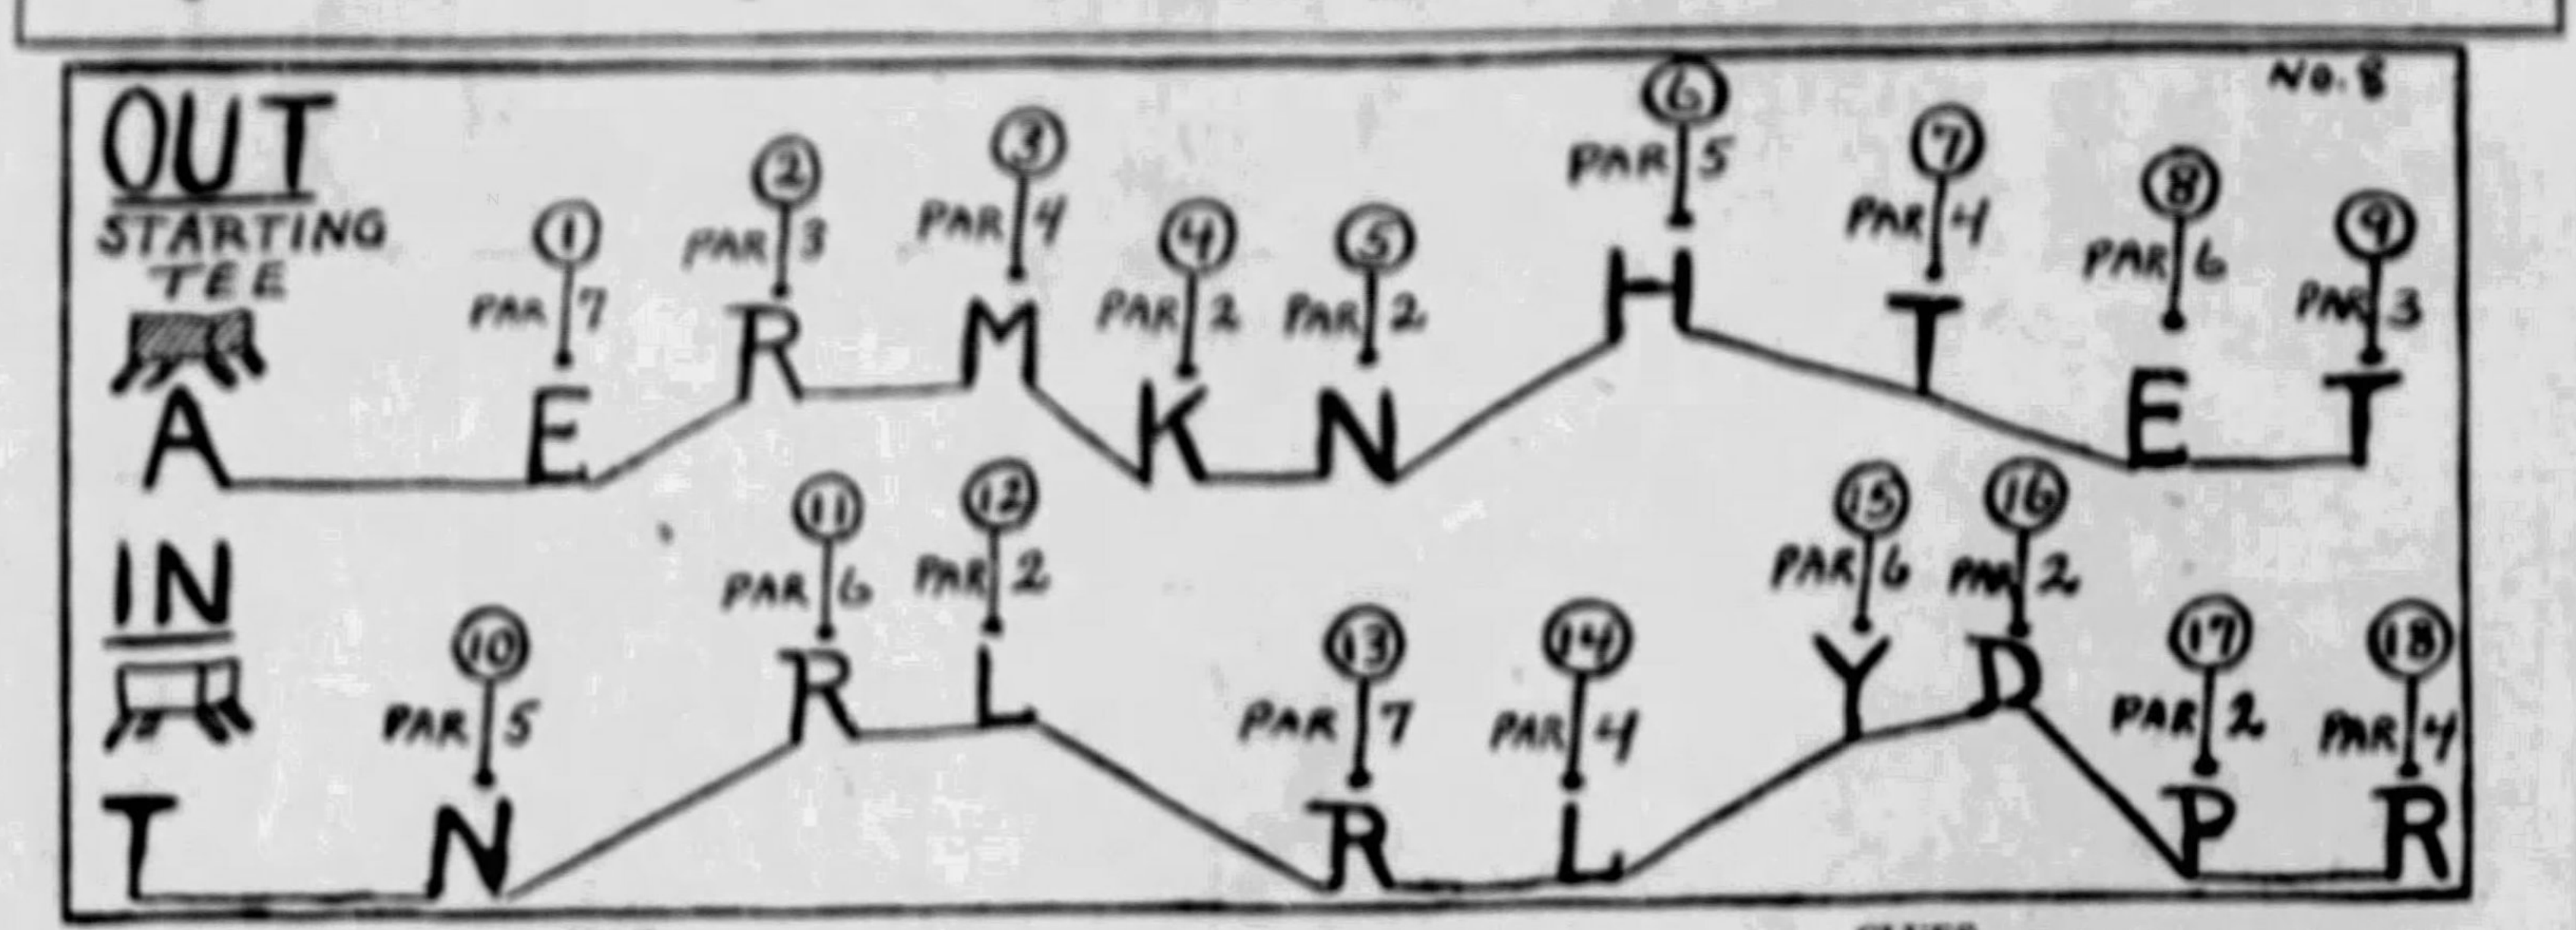
A reception to Mr. Hearst will precede the banquet. It will be held in the foyer of the Sala De Oro.

Following the completion of the musical program, the speaking will begin. Oscar Lawler will be toastmaster. John C. Austin, as chairman of the invitation committee, will be chairman of the banquet and will welcome Mr. Hearst. Louis B. Mayer and Antonio Entenza will speak, and Mr. Hearst will respond.

VETS PAY TRIBUTE

A number of Veterans of Foreign Wars, from different posts in the city and county, will be present in uniform. They and the soldiers and sailors of other organizations, including the Society of the First Division, A. E. F., are no less enthusiastic than the United Spanish War Veterans as to this opportunity to pay honor to Mr. Hearst.

PENCIL GOLF



RULES

Proper nouns, slang and words that offend good taste cannot be used. SCORING: The first and last letters of each word do not count as strokes. A longer or shorter word can be substituted, but at a penalty. If a longer word is used, each letter above par counts as a stroke; if a shorter word is used, each letter below par counts as a stroke. If a player cannot insert a suitable word, add 3 strokes to par for hole and proceed to next hole.

The solution of this puzzle can be found on page 19.

Name in Ad Leads N. Y. Official to Quit

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—The resignation of Dr. Shirley W. Wynne, New York City health commissioner, was accepted by the New York County Medical Society.

Dr. Wynne submitted his resignation about two weeks ago after reports were circulated that the society would attempt to discipline him for permitting use of his name in a tooth paste advertisement.

Bellevue Church Calls Missionary

The Rev. John C. Lorimer, United Presbyterian missionary to Egypt, in this country on furlough, has been called to the Forest Avenue U. P. church, near Bellevue. At present he is at Muskingum college, New Concord, O. His acceptance is anticipated by members of the congregation. He will fill the vacancy caused by the resignation last spring of the Rev. R. B. Drukker who accepted a call to Michigan. The Rev. Mr. Lorimer, was graduated from the old Pittsburgh Theological seminary in 1919 and went to Egypt soon afterward.

Prisoner Found Under Flour Sack

Clifford Parker, 32, Negro, of 64 Robinson street, who weighs 100 pounds, tried to carry a 100-pound sack of flour up Wylie avenue yesterday, when he tripped on a cellar door, according to testimony in Central Police Court today.

Patrolman George Wickenhaus found him under the flour and arrested him. He is alleged to have stolen the sack from a truck. He was fined $10 or 10 days in jail by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg.

4 HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Four persons were injured, one probably fatally, in a series of automobile accidents in the Pittsburgh district last night.

Elmer Morcle, 6, of 611 Mifflin street, Duquesne Annex, was in a critical condition in McKeesport Hospital, where he was taken after having been struck while playing near his home by a car, driven, police said, by Steve Rembucky, of South Fifth avenue, Duquesne. He sustained a fractured skull and other injuries.

When his automobile crashed into a safety zone in front of the entrance of the Duquesne Incline, Edward Benson, 38, of 6659 Landview avenue, suffered fractures of the skull and jaw. His condition was regarded as serious at South Side Hospital today.

William Hershberger, 16, of 1116 Halket street, Braddock, was in Braddock General Hospital suffering from injuries sustained when his head struck an iron rod under the Rankin Bridge as he stood while riding on a truck driven by Thomas Bash, of 201 Second street, Braddock, according to a police report.

Ralph McDonald, 47, of Second avenue, Laurel Gardens, sustained lacerations of the head, face and eye when the truck he was driving crashed into a pole in the Perry highway, near West View, according to a report of the Perrysville detail of the State Highway Patrol. He received treatment at the Allegheny General Hospital.

College to Add Old Cemetery To Campus

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—The old Masonic Cemetery in the residential district of San Francisco will become a college campus as a result of a United States Supreme Court decision in Washington.

The Supreme Court denied the petition of cemetery lot-owners for a review of lower court decisions sustaining a city ordinance directing removal of the cemetery as a public nuisance.

The decision means realization of an ambitious building program by St. Ignatius College, which holds an option on the cemetery property. The college campus adjoins the cemetery on the south. Removal of the bodies will give 28 acres for an enlarged campus, upon which 15 or more buildings are to be erected.

$770,000 LOSS IN STATE FIRE

HARRISBURG, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Out of a maze of estimates on the amount of damage resulting from the fire October 3 in the new State Education Building, ranging from $500,000 to $1,000,000, there rose a figure of $770,000.

The firm of Nelson-Pedley, Inc., Philadelphia, which is constructing the building, offered that figure to Benson E. Taylor, secretary of Property and Supplies, following more than a week of checking the fire damage.

PITTSBURGHER HITS GAS LOSS

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 14.—(AP.)—A nation-wide study of methods to prevent waste in production of natural gas was proposed at the American Gas Association convention.

H. C. Cooper, of Pittsburgh, chairman of the technical and research committee of the association's natural gas department, made the suggestion. He proposed that the United States Bureau of Mines and the American Petroleum Institute co-operate in the study.

H. C. Morris, of Dallas, Tex., estimated that the United States now has approximately 80,000 miles of natural gas transmission lines, with 12,000 miles of pipe line construction under way.

M'Kay Bomb Attack Mystery Year After

SHARON, Pa., Oct. 14.—On the first anniversary of the bombing of the home of District Attorney Leo H. McKay, county authorities refused to admit they had given up hopes of finding the culprits.

Attorney McKay's home was bombed, it is believed, by bootleggers against whom the official had waged war since he took office.

COLDS

Look out for them in bad weather

Exposure to cold and dampness gives colds their start. Fortify your system at the first sign of a cold with Grove's Laxative BROMO QUININE Tablets. They contain both the quinine tonic and laxative necessary to check colds.

Millions praise them. You'll like them, too. Get a box at any drug store, 30c.

THE BETTER WAY TO PREVENT CONSTIPATION

YOU MUST look out for the health of your family. Often a faulty diet leads to constipation. Headaches, dizziness, loss of energy follow. Husband and children become irritable. Serious disease may develop.

You can prevent this by including roughage in the diet. A pleasant way to supply this roughage is with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. New processes have improved its flavor tremendously.

Two tablespoonfuls daily, for each person, will prevent and relieve both temporary and recurring constipation. In severe cases, use with each meal. Do this instead of giving them habit-forming pills and drugs.

ALL-BRAN also furnishes iron to enrich the blood. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

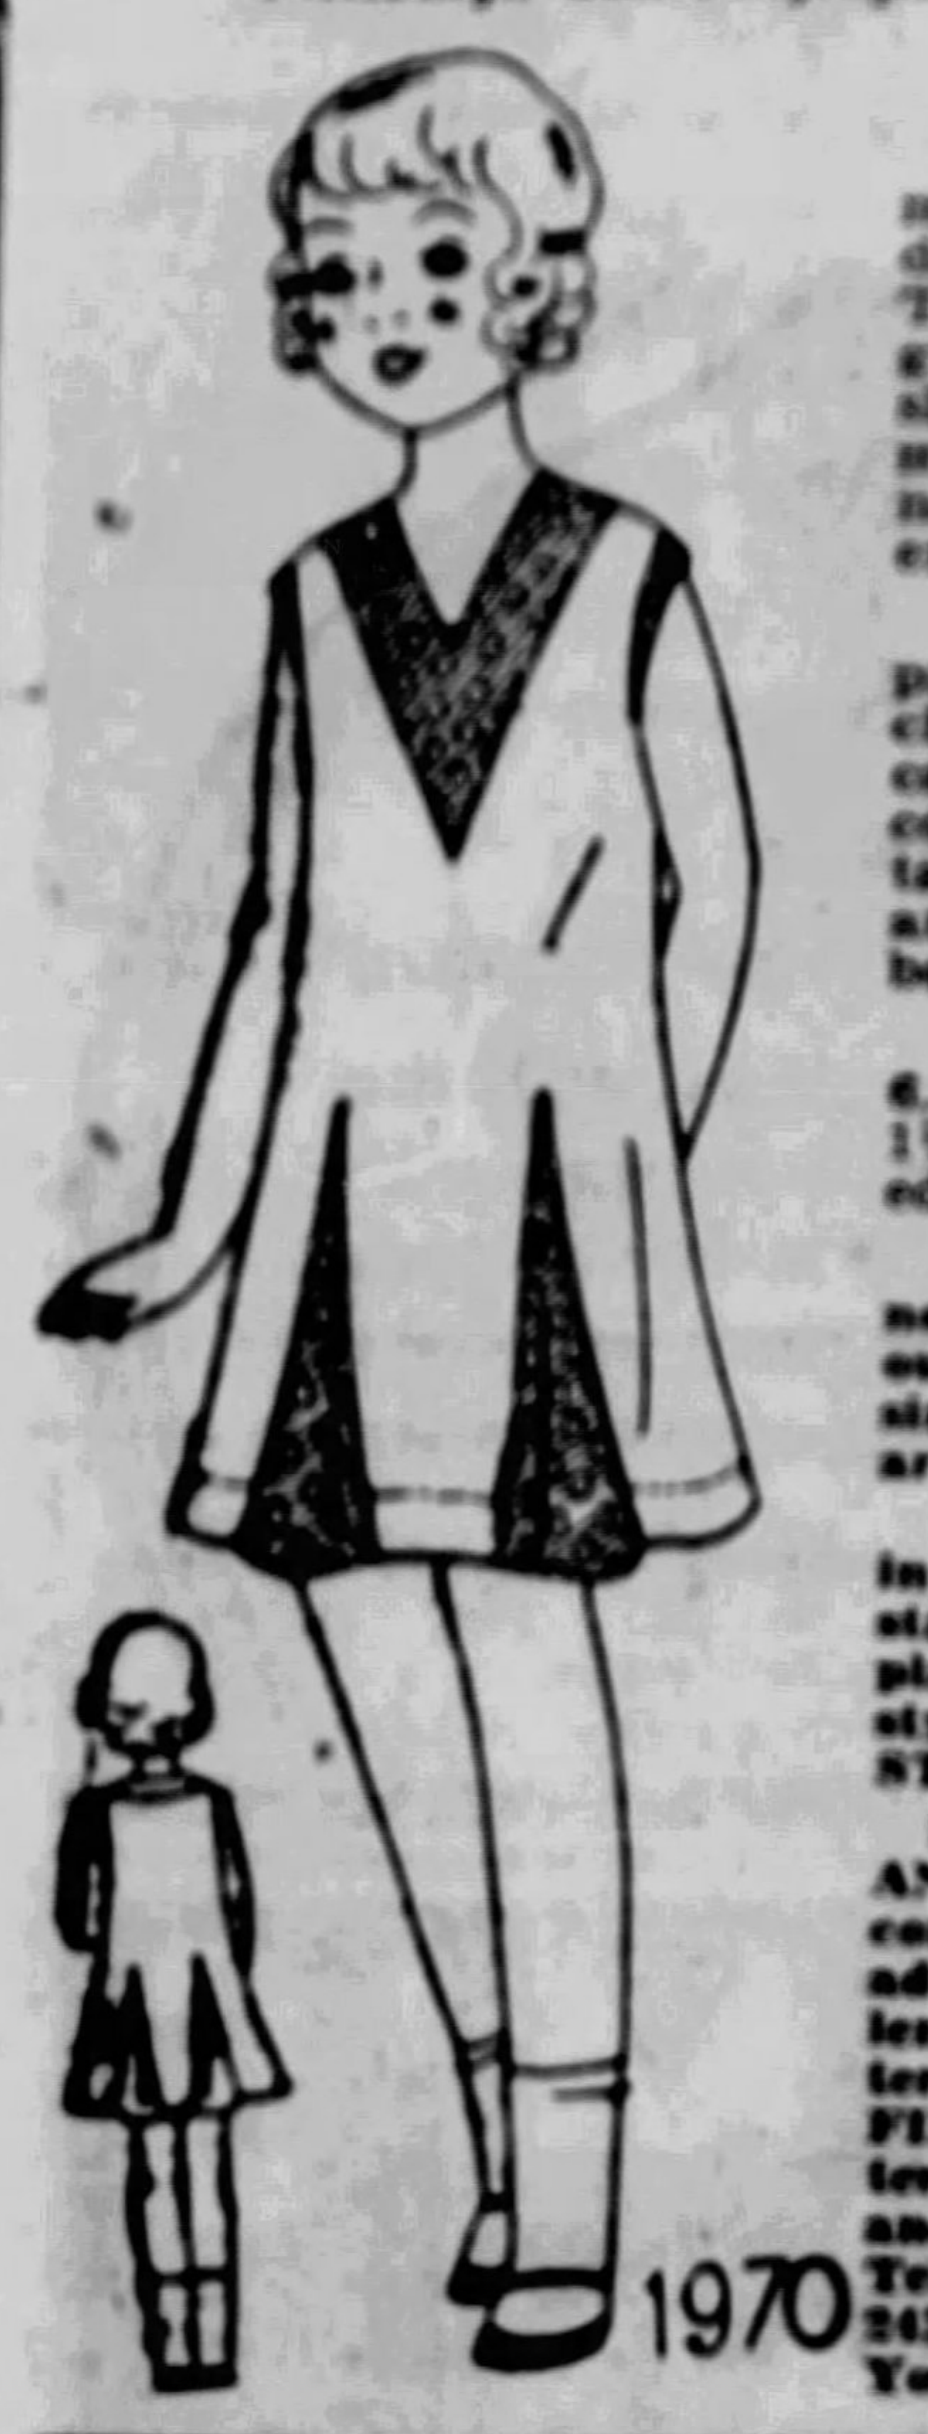
Adorable Dress for Small Girl

Pattern 1970

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS



Your youngster will love this model, since it borrows its smart details from the grown-up mode. The inserted skirt godets forming graceful flares, and neck and sleeve trimming of contrasting material, present one of fashion's newest notes. The V neckline is extremely becoming.

Pattern 1970 combines plain and printed fabrics—most suitable are challis, jersey, linen, dimity, percale, rayon, wash silk, etc. Smart color combinations are brown and tan, green and beige, navy blue and red, etc. A leather belt may be worn if desired.

May be obtained only in sizes 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12. Size 4 requires 1½ yards plain and ½ yard printed fabric.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins carefully wrapped, or stamps, for each pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

COAL FIRM TAX CASE HELD UP

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Percy W. Phillips, acting chairman of the Board of Tax Appeals, ordered the report and opinion promulgated October 7 in the West Virginia - Pittsburgh Coal Company, withdrawn and referred to Division 5 for reconsideration. No explanation accompanied the order.

In its original opinion, the board sustained the coal company's contention that the invested capital for 1918 should have been $1,319,262.

The case was appealed to the board from a decision of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue who had declared deficiencies aggregating $138,740 existed in the returns of the company for the taxable years 1917, 1918, 1919, 1920 and 1922.

Dahlias Over 10 Feet Lead Race For Highest

SHARON, Pa., Oct. 14.—The battle for the honor of raising the tallest dahlias is on. William Roberts, of Sharpsville, seems to have the title for the time being, with four over 10 feet. He names them for his friends. "Tommy Atkins" stands 10 feet 8 inches.

Previous to Roberts' claim, County Auditor Earl Thomas, of Marion, O., held the record at 8 feet one inch.

Judge Scheduled To Address Vets

Problems of the Pittsburgh Juvenile Court were to be discussed by Judge D. Paulson Foster at the luncheon of the Maj. John Baird Atwood Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, at the Hotel Henry today. Judge Foster, an active member of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, recently was appointed adjutant to the chief marshal for Pittsburgh's Armistice parade.

YOUTH'S DEATH INVESTIGATED

MIDLAND, Pa., Oct. 14.—A body found in the Little Beaver River yesterday has been identified as that of Travis Brooks, 19, of Klondike, missing from his home since October 4.

Relatives told state police and county detectives they believed the youth had met with foul play. Officers here are co-operating with Ohio authorities in an investigation. Whether bruises which the body bore were caused by blows could not be determined.

The body was brought to the Dennis morgue here, where a postmortem will be held.

228-232 FIFTH AVENUE

VALUE-SHOPPING is going to hold new fascination and delights for you now. You will be able to stretch your shopping budget to most amazing and capable proportions. Your new G. C. Murphy 5c and 10c store, with the same economy standards that have built a successful chain of 170 stores, is about to open in Pittsburgh, conveniently located in the heart of the shopping district.

We are ready to welcome you . . . to prove that our policy slogan, "The most in value and service at the lowest possible price," is, indeed, something to be reckoned with, whenever thrift and shopping sense is favored. Thursday, hundreds of Opening Day shopping opportunities will prove that to your satisfaction, more eloquently than thousands of words.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 15, IS INSPECTION DAY

. . . our invitation to you to make a tour of inspection through the world's largest and finest store of its kind. No merchandise will be on sale, but every department will be ready to welcome your visit.

AFTERNOON . . . Two to Four-Thirty O'Clock
EVENING . . . Seven to Eight-Thirty O'Clock

There are many, many features of interest in this new Pittsburgh store . . . something for you to enjoy every minute of your visit. May we point out, especially, our fountain . . . the largest in Pittsburgh . . . arranged to offer quick service and every comfort? At this fountain and in our impressive restaurant, particular care will be taken to satisfy the most exacting food and refreshment requirements . . . and, of course, Murphy economy standards apply here, too.

A LOCAL INSTITUTION

The opening of our Pittsburgh store gives us particular satisfaction, because we have been able to locate this, our greatest achievement, in the community that gave birth to our organization. We consider this store a monument to our success and to the progressive city that first sponsored that success.

Twenty-four years ago, our first store was opened in this district. Since that time, we have grown to a chain of 170 stores, operating in 12 states. The greater part of our business confidence, however, has always been centered in this district . . . as our 56 stores in the Pittsburgh shopping area demonstrate. We are Pittsburgh 'born and bred' . . . our salespeople are Pittsburghers. We are happy to be able to name our organization "another Pittsburgh institution."

WESTINGHOUSE MEN AT MEET

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Technical papers on trends in design and capacity of hydro-electric generators, aeronautical radio communication and telephone line trunking in metropolitan areas were read at the opening session of the annual convention of the American Institute of electrical engineers.

Several hundred delegates from many parts of the country are here for the convention, which will continue through Wednesday.

A. H. Candee, of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, pointed out the advantages he saw in oil and gas electric equipment over steam equipment in railroad operation and declared that it resulted in a saving of as much as $4 per hour per locomotive.

H. M. Kraner, also of the Westinghouse company, said that America had developed electrical insulating porcelain superior to the European product, which he declared had been considered the best until five years ago.

The hydraulic and electric possibilities of high speed "lowhead" hydro-electric developments were presented by George A. Jessop and C. A. Powell.

COUZENS, FORD AID CHARITY

DETROIT, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Senator James Couzens and Mr. and Mrs. Edsel Ford increased substantially their contributions of last year to the Detroit community chest.

Senator Couzens' contribution was $120,000, representing his last year's donation of $100,000 plus a $20,000 "emergency gift."

Mr. and Mrs. Ford gave $130,000, an increase of $15,000 over their last year donations of $115,000.

Mt. Lebanon Church To Hold Roll Call

The annual roll call dinner of the membership of the Mt. Lebanon Baptist Church, of Dormont, will be held tomorrow night in the fellowship hall of the new $375,000 church now nearing completion, in Alabama avenue, Dormont. The Rev. Edward Bleakney, pastor of the church, will preside. An address will be made by the Rev. Dr. George W. Sheldon, pastor the Second Presbyterian Church of Pittsburgh.

West View Mission Circle to Elect

The Women's Foreign Missionary Society, West View Methodist Episcopal Church, will hold its annual election of officers at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow in the church rooms.

ACTOR KILLED IN AUTO WRECK

M'MINNVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 14.—(AP.)—R. C. Emerson, 45, vaudeville actor, was killed and his partner, Miss Helen Feiger, suffered slight injuries when their automobile overturned near here.

Emerson and Miss Feiger, members of the team of Kain & Ray of the Keith Circuit, attempted to dodge a truck which came out of a side road.

I Was Skinny, Run-down. Gained 34 lbs in Few Weeks

"I was so skinny and run-down friends thought I had a fatal disease. At last I tried Ironized Yeast and gained 34 lbs. in few weeks."—Paul Blanch.

"Skinny," weak, nervous people are delighted as new Ironized Yeast adds 5 to 15 lbs. in 3 weeks. Changes "scarecrow" body quick to strong, well-developed form. Blotchy skin clears like magic. Nervousness, indigestion, constipation end overnight. Sound sleep, pep quick.

Two great tonics in one—special weight-building Brewer's Yeast and strengthening Iron. Pleasant little tablets. Far stronger than unmedicated yeast. Results in ½ time. No yeasty taste, no gas.

Don't be "skinny," tired, unattractive. Get Ironized Yeast from druggist today. Feel great tomorrow. Money back from manufacturer if not delighted with results.

Three famous composers appear with the Happy Bakers, WCAE at 9:30 tonight. . . Charles K. Harris, "the man of a thousand melodies;" Percy Wenrich, whose first big success, "Rainbow," was written because a dye of that name attracted him; and Walter Donaldson who turns out song hits as consistently as Babe Ruth turns out home runs. . . Mr. Donaldon's latest hit, "Little White Lies," concludes the concert. . . Philco Symphony, WJAS at 9:30, offers the Nutcracker Suite in its entirety. . . James Stanley, baritone, sings the "Armourer's Song" for 9 o'clock WCAE fans. . . Monday Melodists on KDKA at 6:30 and the Enna Jettick Song Bird, WCAE at 10, are two favorites. . . Coon-Sanders play "Lucky Old Sun" for the first time, WCAE at 8:30. . . "Let Jesus Come Into Your Heart" is the plea of Sacred Songs on KDKA at 7:30. . . Walter Winchell speaks on WABC (860 kilocycles) at 7:30.

JUST A PUSH

Herb McGee tells us this one:

A high-priced car drove up to a gasoline station in Mt. Lebanon.

"How far to Washington?" inquired the chauffeur.

"Twenty miles," answered the attendant.

"Fill up the tank."

A few minutes later another car, less expensive, pulled up to the service station, and on being informed that Washington was 20 miles away, the driver asked for five gallons of gas.

In half an hour came one of those miniature autos.

"How far to Washington?" asked the driver.

"Twenty miles."

"Give me a good push," the owner directed.

Frank Mulloy was next with this one:

"When are we going to get out of this tunnel?" asked the passenger in a small car.

"Tunnel nothing," answered the driver, "we're just riding under a truck."

When Glenn Riggs spied a moth in the KDKA studios it caused Red Harvey to remark that a certain somebody had opened his pocketbook.

Bill Farren tells this one about the radio announcer who was wakened in his sleep by a burglar

"What are you doing here?" demanded the announcer.

"Hunting money," returned the robber as he leveled a pistol.

"Fine," said the announcer, "I'll help you."

The "Sweet Sixteen" at KDKA have organized a two-team bowling league.

In the first game the Rectifiers put a crimp into the Amplifiers, 1,208 to 1,162.

Not poor bowlers for beginners. "Peg" Kastroll turned in an average of 106, Ann Lanning 78, Edith Hingley 64, Frances Fraser 64, Mary M. Barry 63, Gundla Johnston 59, Marie Conley 88, Gertrude Schaming 78, Mildred Hixon 68, Margaret Pursell 52, Valera Wilson 46.

Other members have succeeded in keeping their scores a secret.

QUESTION A DAY:

What has become of Philip Carlin, the announcer?—C. W. Dowling, Forest Hills, Pa.

Answer—Phil Carlin has an executive position with NBC and rarely finds time to go on the air.

TODAY'S TID BIT:

Children at KQV have organized themselves into "Santa Claus Helpers" with the purpose of collecting toys via radio to distribute among the poor at Christmas time.

Waterman's Lady Patricia

—the fountain pen for the woman of today

It's new, it's completely feminine, and it's utterly unlike the old fashioned "scaled-down" men's pens. Waterman's Lady Patricia has:

A SMART FEMININE CLASP, INSTEAD OF A CLIP—for today's woman carries her pen in her handbag, and this clasp fastens it securely in place where she finds it instantly without searching.

SEVEN PEN POINTS TO CHOOSE FROM—for today's woman instinctively demands a penpoint that really suits her own style of handwriting—and here she gets it.

A SLENDER, GRACEFUL SHAPE; YET HOLDS PLENTY OF INK—for today's woman insists that all her belongings be as practical as they are beautiful.

A CHOICE OF THREE CHARMING, MODERN COLORS—for today's woman is impatient with yesterday's drabness. So we offer her the Lady Patricia in Persian, glowing like a black opal; Jet, night-black with gleaming trim; and Onyx, ivory, shot through with tawny streamers.

A SENSIBLE PRICE, IN TUNE WITH THE TIMES—$5 for the pen; $3 for the pencil. Both, in a beautiful gift box, $8.

Try this new pen at your local Waterman's dealer. You will be delighted by it's smart, feminine appearance—and doubly delighted by the way it writes. By the way, be sure to ask your dealer to fill it with Waterman's Ink—the ink that's made for fountain pens. Then, for the sake of your men-folk, take a look at the Patrician—Waterman's finest man's pen. Choice of five jewel colors, seven pen points. A beautiful gift when you want to give the best. Pen, $10; pencil, $5. Other Waterman's in wide variety to suit every purse and every taste.

Household Secrets.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—The sweet-and-lowdown on American life continues to hold the fancy of the broadcasters. The household habits of famous Americans are now being revealed and by the wives, no less, of the men who are under the microphonic microscope. It is glorified gossip, not the gossip perhaps that brings lawyers and reporters panting to the scene but that which has always been recognized by magazine editors as a good circulation builder.

There is no shushing, no soft-pedaling of the wives who march to the microphones. They are well paid for their whispers. We learn what George W. Whosis eats for breakfast, what he does for exercise, what he talks about in the privacy of his cellar. It is sweet to the ears. Moreover, it is welcome—especially welcome in an age when the gossiper is ranked with the movie hero, the athlete, the radio crooner and the bootlegger as the most popular figure on the American scene.

Household Secrets Told to the World

Yet the broadcasting of the secrets of the household as they pertain to mere man seems to me to present a new danger to our civilization. It will undoubtedly inspire in married men a fear and timidity they would not otherwise possess. Assertiveness, resoluteness, good old healthy combativeness will give way in the home and we shall see the abject picture of men afraid to drop ashes on the rug, dunk their doughnuts, don the carpet slippers, sneak to the icebox at midnight, repeat a joke more than twice lest the news be given to the world. The plan has a startling significance. It may threaten the institution of matrimony.

When the attention-callers of the sports events grow reminiscent between plays they are not always careful to be correct in their memory-prodding. The other day Master Husing, reporting a World Series game, was commenting upon the boneheadedness of Jimmy Dykes in chasing a Cardinal runner safely back to second base. The incident reminded him of the time "when Honus Wagner performed a similar stunt in a crucial game."

Old Honus, as Husing has probably discovered from a thousand letters, never committed that blunder. He was too smart a ballplayer. Husing, of course, was thinking of Heinie Zimmerman, of the Giants, who once chased an opposing player across the home plate while 40,000 people groaned and John McGraw stifled a homicidal impulse. The play put Zimmerman in a class with Merkle as the baseball goat of the ages.

Donaldson Sings To the States

The broadcasters have led Charles K. Harris to the microphones to warble his famous tear-jerker, "After the Ball." They may sentimentalize over Harris but they pay off on Donaldson and Kern and Berlin. Donaldson, in particular, bats out song hits as Babe Ruth bats out home runs. Of all the tunesmiths he is the leading exponent of states rights. He has piled up big bank deposits from tributes to California, Tennessee, Kentucky, Ohio, Louisianna and Carolina. Reliable Carolina, first aid to Tin Pan Alley! The song birds of the operatic meadows are now flocking to the microphones. Radio has been found a profitable winter haven for them. One of the most impressive personalities on the ai., as she is on the stage, is Mary Garden.

One of my most haunting regrets is that Caruso was gathered to his fathers before radio broadcasting emerged from its experimental state . . . The height of patriotism to me is expressed by that listener who rises to his feet in the privacy of his home when the service bands sound the "Star Spangled Banner" . . . It is my belief that Hoover could make the air interesting to the ears were he to press into service the various news broadcasters who are on the air . . . The best jig, clog and hoedown ever written, we are convinced, is "Turkey in the Straw."

Rivers of the world have ever ben celebrated in song. We can recall, however, only one or two instances in which lyric tribute has similarly been paid to roads. Not even the automobile manufacturers have been alert to the opportunity of popularizing roads in song, yet roads, like rivers, evoke a spirit of charm and romance and wistfulness. Even such an able and adroit publicist as Henry Ford has never petitioned the poet laureates of Broadway to sing a paean to th highway.

Can your set meet this tone test?

IS the tone of your set merely pleasant, or gloriously true? Does it enable you to distinguish between instruments of similar tone quality—to hear vocal music reproduced without distortion over the entire tonal range? For example:

Do the kettledrums have a distinct pitch, or do they just sound like thuds? Does a man's voice give the impression his head is in a barrel? Can you distinguish the letter "S" in speech? In an orchestra, do you find several or only one violin playing the same part? Does the violin radiate brilliancy, or does it always sound muted?

Investigate the lifelike tone of the new Grebe before you buy. The famous 7-check test enables you to compare directly with any other set. Get a test list from your nearest Grebe dealer.

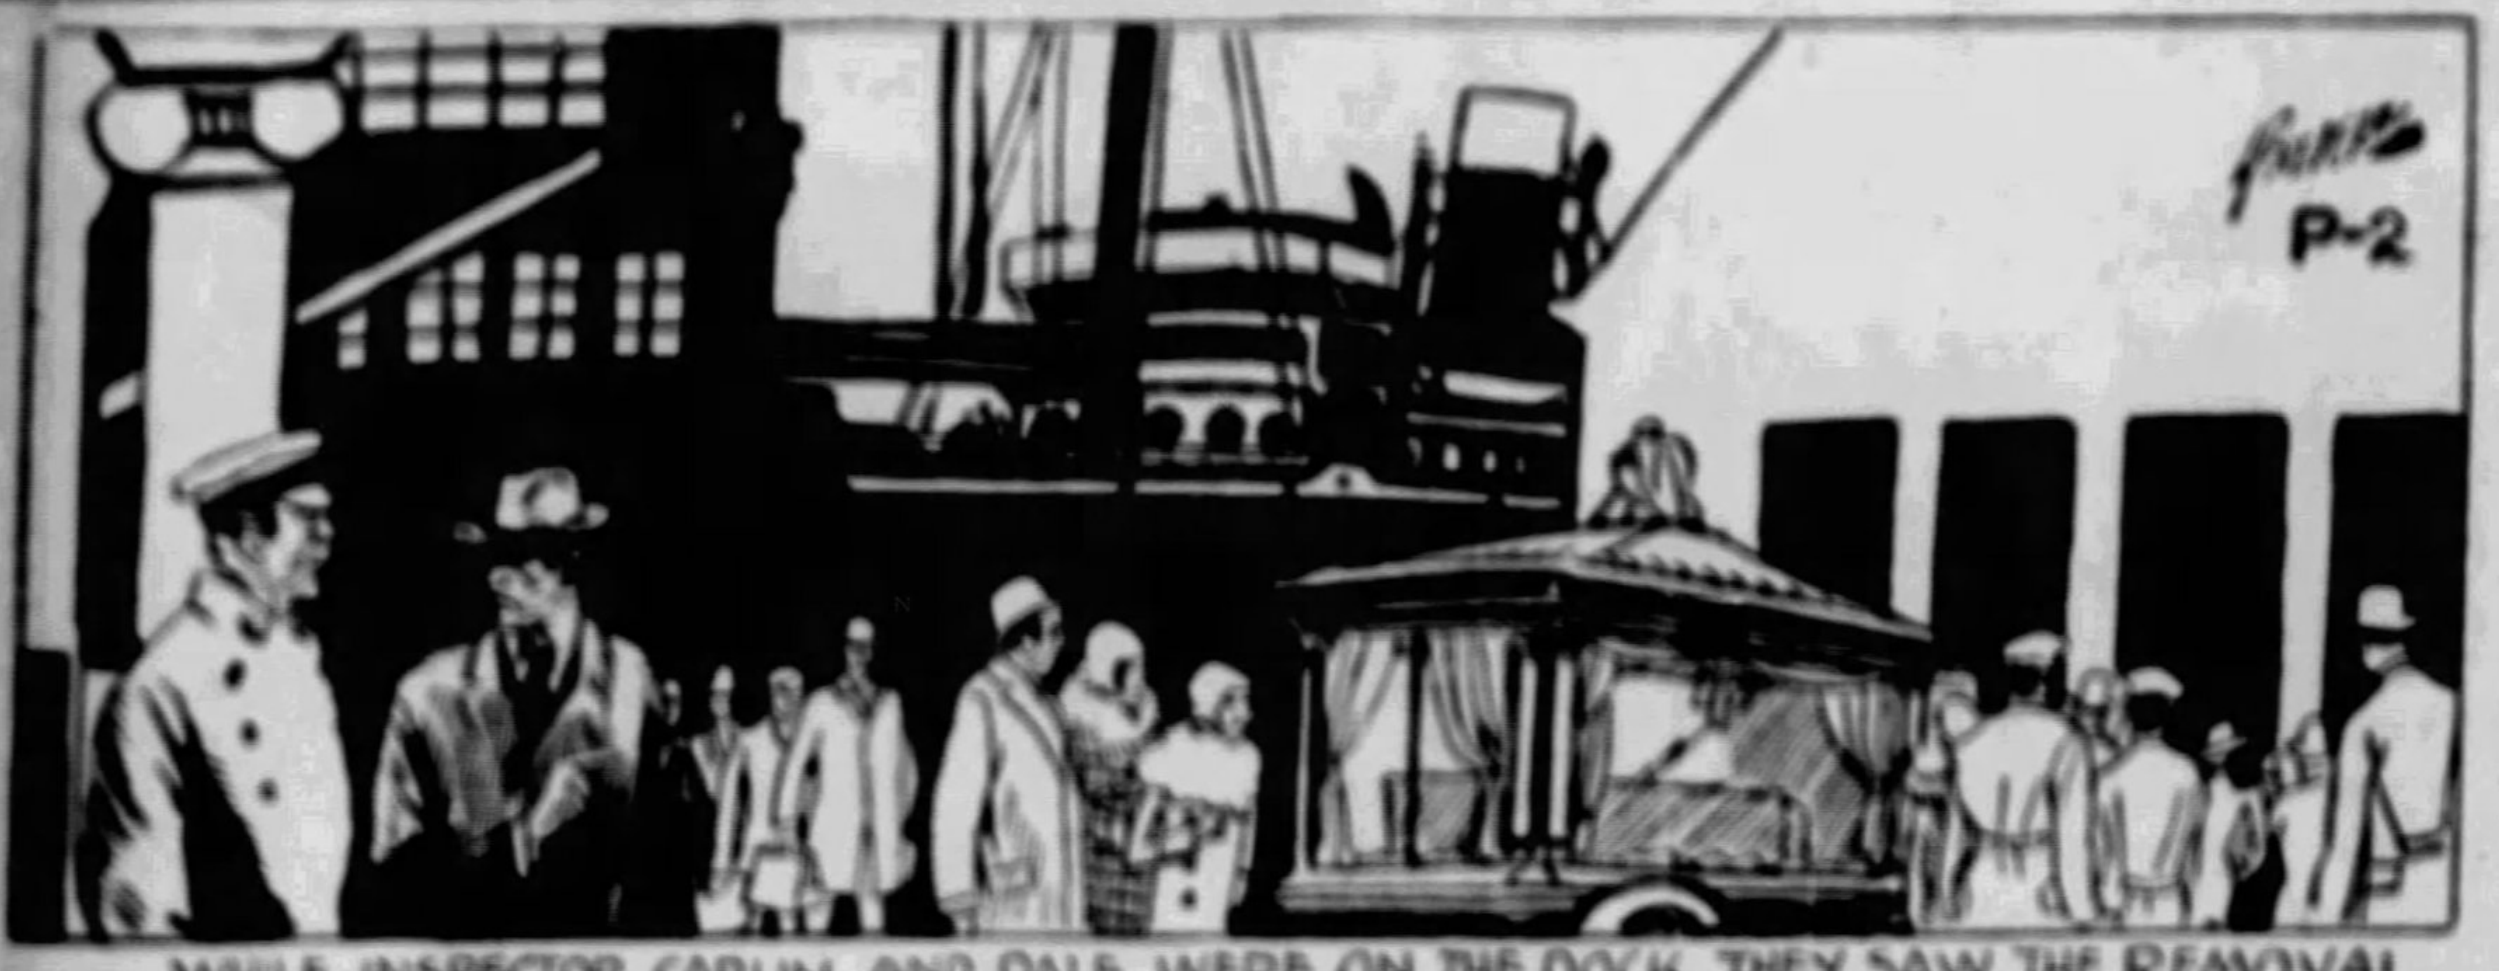
MASTER MYSTERIES -:- By Arthur Hoerl

THE CUSTOMS FRAUD



WHILE INSPECTOR CARLIN AND DALE WERE ON THE DOCK THEY SAW THE REMOVAL OF A COFFIN WHICH UNDOUBTEDLY CONTAINED THE REMAINS OF THE SECOND-CABIN PASSENGER

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

The steamer Ruratania, from England, is bringing the Cardiz jewels. They belonged to the Czar of Russia. There is a sinister history behind them. The steamer docks and it is revealed that the gems have been stolen. Albert Whitely, the messenger bringing them to America, had placed the jewels in the ship's safe.

Now go on with the story.

CHAPTER II.

"The case was always kept locked, Mr. Whitely?" Josephson asked.

"It was locked when I placed it in the safe, and I found it locked today. You may examine the lock yourself and ascertain that it does not appear to have been tampered with."

"You were positive the jewels were in the case when you deposited it in the safe?"

"As sure as I am that they were gone when I opened it a short while ago," Whitely answered.

"Is there anything which led you to believe this would happen?" Inspector Carlin asked. He had not spoken before.

"In a way—although I believed I had taken every precaution. There was a rumor which got to our ears in London that Jules Margot was going to have a try at the jewels. You've heard of Margot, of course—he's kept the police of London, Paris, Berlin and Vienna busy with his exploits and has thus far eluded them all. Whether he came aboard this ship I have no way of knowing, because it appears the descriptions of him are vague, to say the least."

Inspector Carlin was looking over the empty steel case, but appeared to be getting very little from it.

"At any rate," Josephson remarked, "the jewels are still aboard this ship. I am sure they will come to light during our inspection. We cannot, of course, hold the passengers aboard, so, if you will give a complete description of the stolen goods we can proceed with our work.

"This declaration," handing it to Josephson, "gives a detailed description of every piece in the collection, with its value. I am prepared, of course, to pay the duty the moment the gems are recovered."

When the unloading of the passengers got under way, Robin Dale had an opportunity to interview Whitely alone.

"You are a reporter, Mr. Dale? I see no reason for keeping the affair secret—more than that, I am sure my employers would want me to offer, say, one thousand pounds reward for any clue which may lead to the recovery of the jewels."

"You really believe Jules Margot may be implicated in the affair?"

"Anything we think about it would be little better than a guess . . . but there's something devilishly clever about this theft and there isn't a cleverer criminal than Margot on the whole continent."

"Who will have to stand for the loss, Mr. Whitely?"

"The things were insured, of course, but naturally it will cost me my position and the loss of my reputation." Whitely spoke like a man who was proud of his reputation.

"I may like to interview you again, Mr. Whitely. Are you going to remain in New York?"

"For some little time, at least. You may find me at the Hotel Cecil-Abbey, where I already have reservation made."

Strolling up on deck, Robin Dale sought out the chief steward. There were a few questions he wanted to ask. He found the steward a greatly worried man.

"This has been a beastly trip," the steward complained. "One day we lost a man overboard . . . a day later there was a death . . . and now this. What was it you asked, sir?"

"This fellow Margot . . . anyone on board that might be Margot?"

"That's 'ard to say. A blighter like that wouldn't be easy to spot."

"You say there were a couple of accidents?"

"No, only one . . . a third-cabin passenger. Went overboard the first night out. Put out a lifeboat, but there was no use."

"The other death you spoke of?"

"That was in the second cabin. He was an invalid, anyway. Carried aboard and 'ad two nurses. He passed away the second day."

Robin Dale dropped in on Inspector Carlin after he had seen the captain and obtained a statement regarding the record trip of the Ruratania. That was of the least importance, but he had been given an assignment and was carrying it out.

"What's your idea, Carlin?" Dale asked when he sat opposite the secret service inspector.

"On the face of it Whitely looks like the man. Jewels don't walk out of locked boxes and closed safes. I learned there's someone continually on duty at the safe and, as a matter of fact, it is rarely opened. On this trip it was opened only once for a few moments. After all, it's a great temptation for fellows like Whitely. I'm keeping a man on him. Keep in touch and I'll let you know if anything develops."

On the dock the inspection was going on. Every person and all luggage was carefully examined. Dale learned that Whitely's effects had been gone over, but no trace of the missing gems had been found. He had departed some time before to go to his hotel.

With the hope that something might develop Robin Dale waited until the last passenger's luggage had been inspected. It was quite late in the afternoon. There still remained the freight to be examined, but the fact remained that, as yet, no traces of the stolen jewels had been found.

While he was on the dock Dale saw the removal of a coffin, which undoubtedly contained the remains of the second-cabin passenger. A hearse was drawn up outside on West street and Dale saw it was from one of the larger funeral parlors in the city. One of Josephson's men had insisted upon lifting the cover of the casket to make sure it really contained the corpse. It was a gruesome business.

Before returning to the office Dale decided to stop at the Cecil-Abbey. After what Inspector Carlin had said there were a few questions he wanted to ask Whitely.

Dale was surprised to learn that Whitely had never arrived at the hotel. A suite had been reserved and his luggage had been delivered but Whitely had apparently disappeared completely.

ORDER TROTZKY KIN DEPORTED

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Romano Nicholas Trotzky, who said he is a nephew of Leon Trotzky, exiled ruler of Soviet Russia, was granted a pardon by the State Board of Pardons on condition that he be deported to Turkey.

Romano Trotzky was convicted and sentenced to four years in the state penitentiary. He had been ordered deported to Russia, his native land, but, since the United States has no diplomatic relations with that country, the order could not be carried out.

The Pardon Board was told that if commutation were granted, a passport to Turkey would be obtained for Trotzky through his famous uncle, Leon Trotzky, who, it was intimated, has considerable influence in Turkey.

Pittsburgh Women Hurt, Driver Jailed

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Oct. 14.—John Shultz, 24, of Puritan, Fayette County, was sentenced to three months in the Greene County jail and fined $200 yesterday, when he pleaded guilty to operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated.

He was arrested Sunday near Carmichaels after the car he was operating collided with one in which Mrs. Fanny Durr Hamilton, 75, and her daughter, Mrs. Leona Schenck, both of 140 Millbourne street, Squirrel Hill, Pittsburgh, were riding. Both women suffered minor hurts.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative safe and pleasant.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

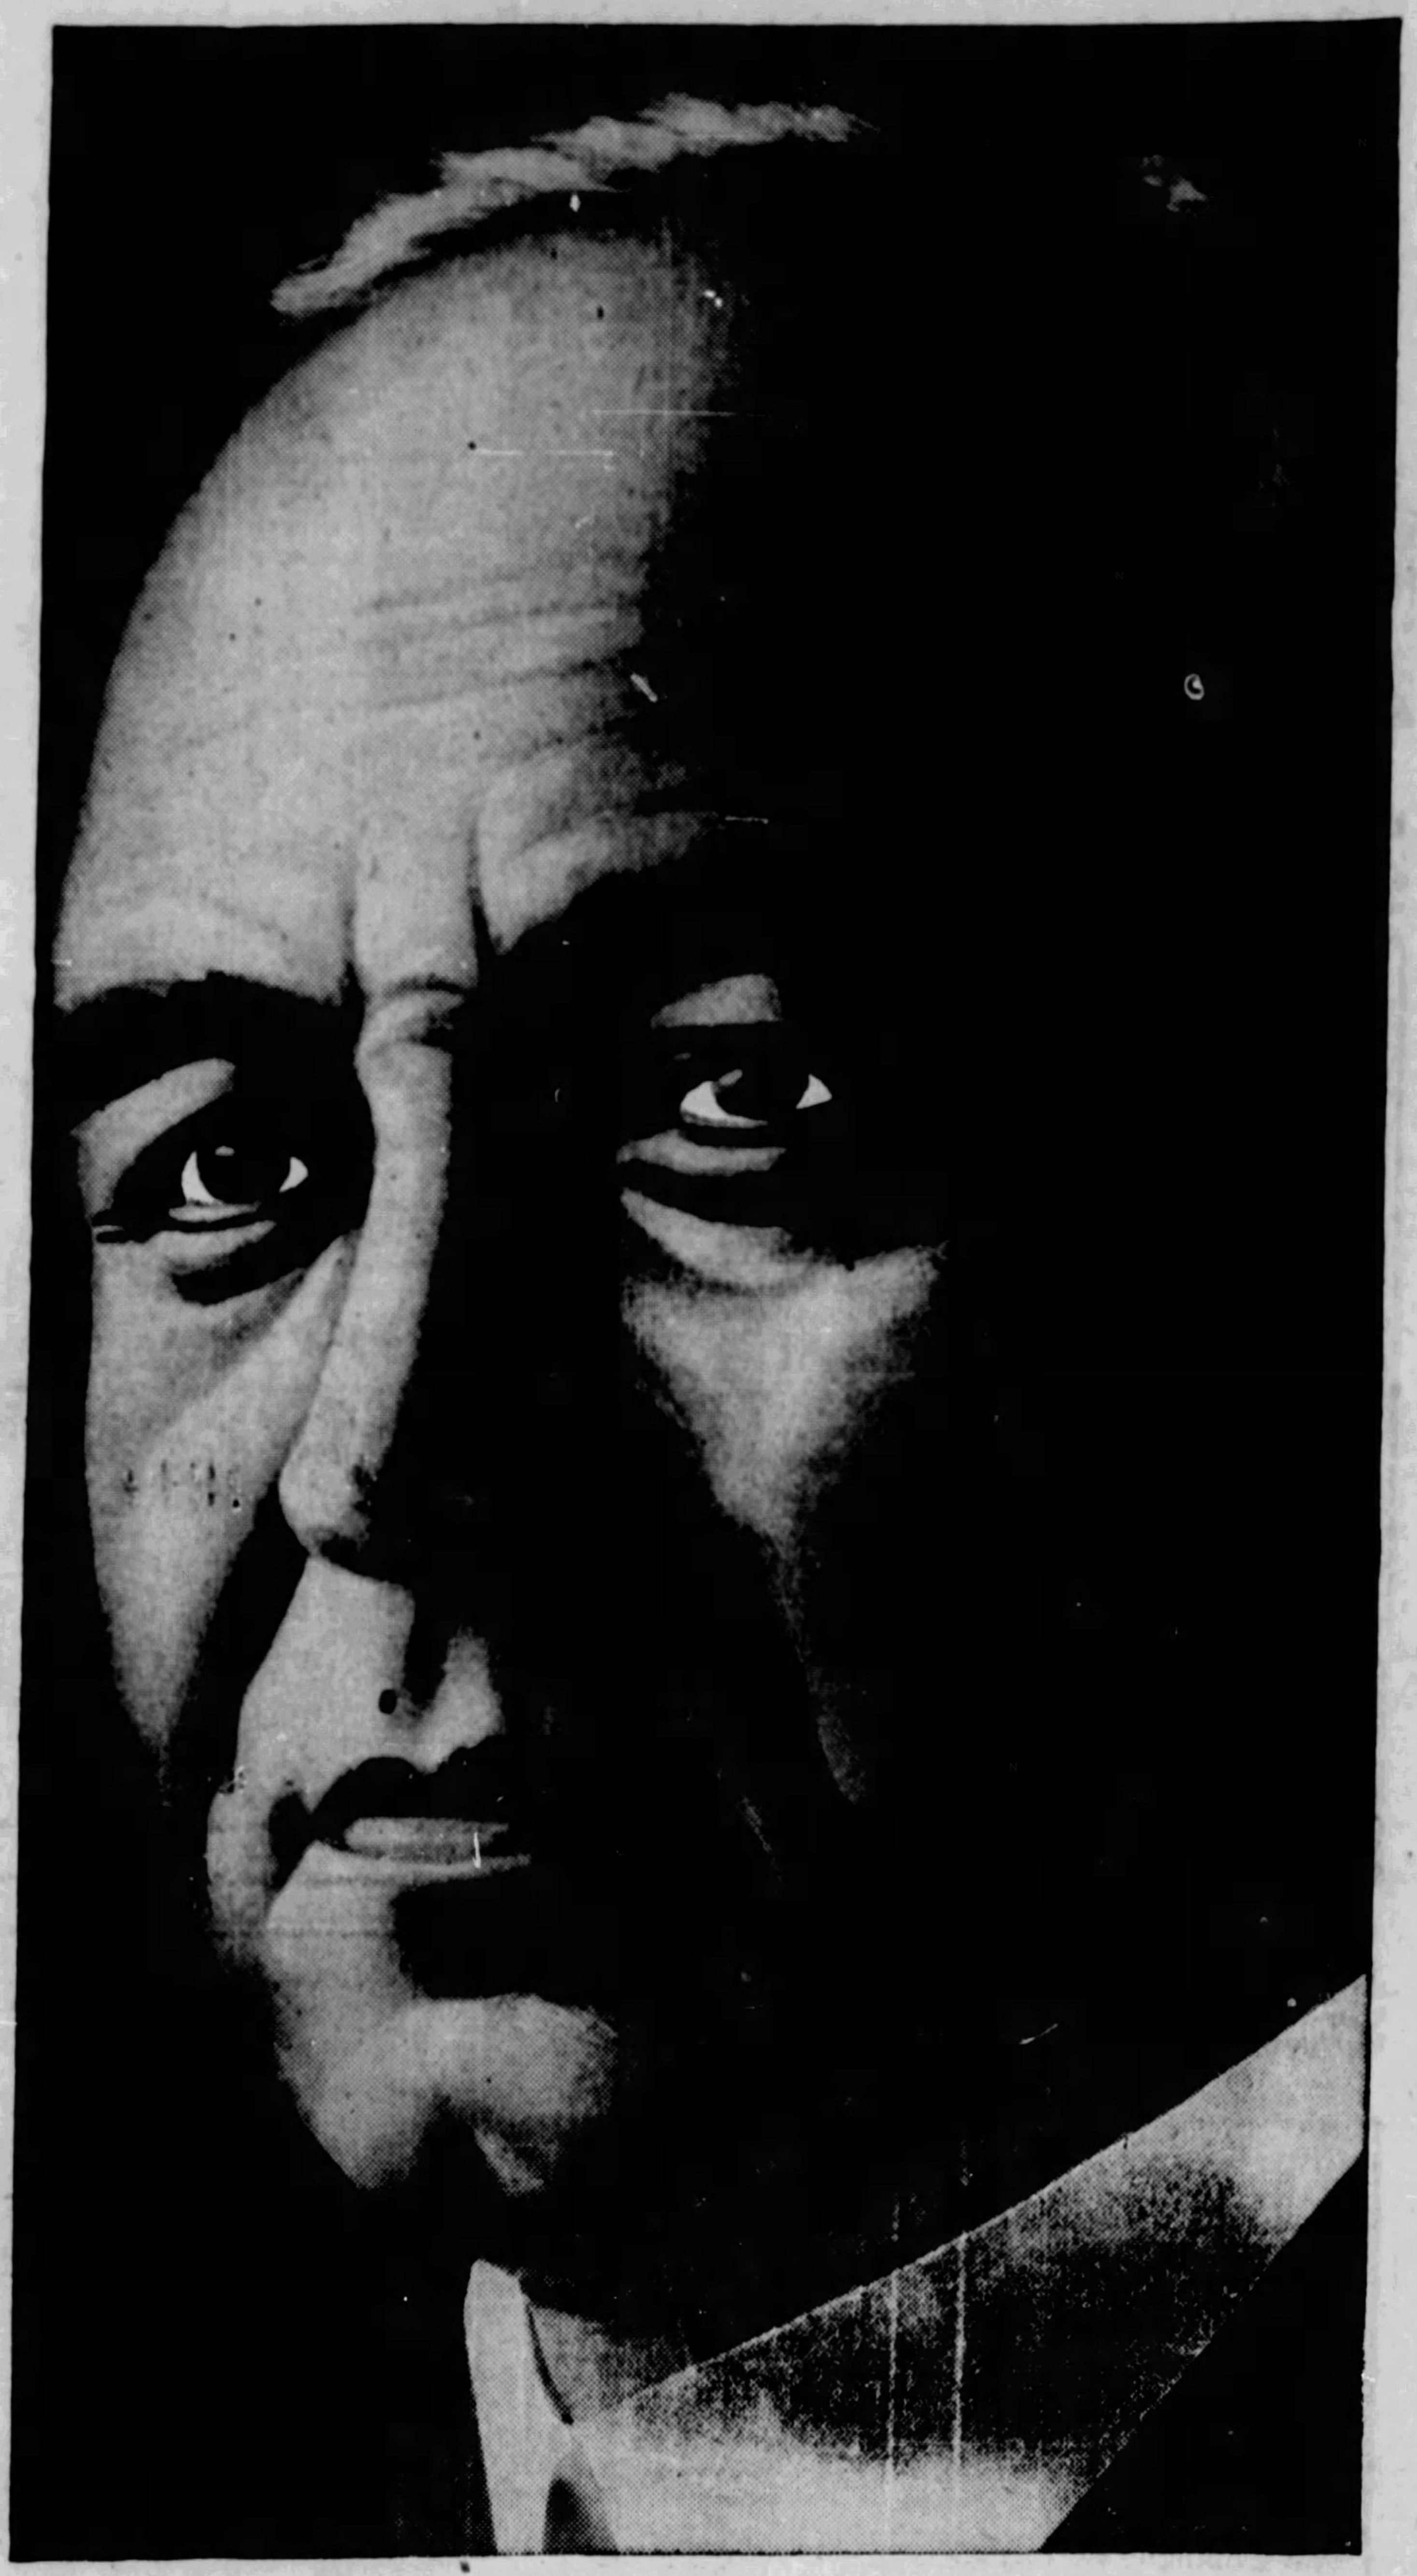
"When modern enterprise joins hands with sure-footed experience, success becomes a certainty. The fusion of these two important factors has given Thompson-Starrett over a billion dollars worth of activity in thirty years. It is interesting to note the application of this same principle in your business. Its clear evidence is your use of the Ultra Violet Ray in the 'Toasting' of the LUCKY STRIKE tobaccos."



LUCKY STRIKE
LUCKY STRIKE
"IT'S TOASTED"
CIGARETTES

LUCKY STRIKE—the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—THEN—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so TOASTING removes harmful irritants that cause throat irritation and coughing. No wonder 20,679 physicians have stated LUCKIES to be less irritating! Everyone knows that sunshine mellows—that's why TOASTING includes the use of the Ultra Violet Ray.

BOY SCOUT SHOT SAVING GIRLS

JOLIET, Ill., Oct. 14—(AP.)—A Boy Scout is near death in a hospital here because he obeyed the Scout code.

The victim is Willard Magowsky, 18, star athlete and honor student at Joliet High School and one of those chosen last year to attend the international scout meet in England. He was shot by two robbers who attempted to hold up Magowsky, another youth and three girls after forcing their automobile into a ditch.

Magowsky had pushed two of the girls to the floor and was attempting to push the third out of danger when one of the robbers fired. One bullet lodged in Magowsky's neck and another at the base of the brain.

END NICARAGUA CANAL SURVEY

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Oct. 14—(AP.)—Announcement has been made that all topographical work has been completed in the survey of the proposed isthmian canal through Nicaragua.

Lieut. Col. Dan I. Sultan, of the United States Engineers, in charge of the Nicaraguan Canal survey, said the only work yet to be done by his staff was drilling to determine what material will be encountered under the surface of the ground.

This work will probably be completed in June, 1931. The present force of American engineers will be gradually reduced. A company of the 11th Engineers will leave for Panama in December.

Baby Burned While Playing in Yard Dies

SHARON, Pa., Oct. 14.—Burns received when her dress caught fire while she was playing in the yard at her home caused the death of Ann, 20-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer E. Sharp of New Wilmington.

150 Battle Forest Fires Near Ridgway

RIDGWAY, Pa., Oct. 14.—One hundred and fifty men are engaged in fighting forest fires in the Bear Creek region near Ridgway. The fires broke out Sunday, and have gained considerable headway.

IF YOUR radio tells you, with squawks and wheezes, that something is wrong inside, the odds are ten to one you need a new set of tubes. Not just any kind, but Eveready Raytheons—4-Pillar Tubes! Dealers say weak tubes cause 90% of all trouble. Even if your reception is apparently 100%, you'll be amazed at the difference these tubes can make.

You can hear the difference and see the reason

Eveready Raytheons are a SOUND improvement, employing a principle totally new to radio-tubes, but old as engineering science itself. Look at an antenna-tower, or a windmill, and notice how it is anchored hard and fast at four points. The elements in an Eveready Raytheon are also anchored at four points . . . by the patented 4-Pillar construction. Elements in an ordinary tube, having only two points of support, can be endangered by the knocks and bumps of shipment, and by vibration from dynamic speakers.

The elements in an Eveready Raytheon . . . the fragile, working parts of the tube . . . are anchored at four points. Held true to the watchmaking accuracy of their position! Protected, permanently, from the time when they are assembled to the time when you can listen to their matchless tone, yourself. The 4-Pillar construction which makes this possible is patented . . . no other tube can use it.

Free Tube Demonstration

We want you to try these tubes, to hear for yourself what a difference they can make in the tone of your radio. Your dealer will be glad to give you a free demonstration, in your own radio-set, at home. No obligation to buy.

Until you try Eveready Raytheons in your radio, you cannot realize fully what a fine musical instrument you have. Telephone, or mail, or present the coupon today—to your nearest Eveready dealer.

EVEREADY RAYTHEON 4-PILLAR TUBES cost no more than any other established brands. Because of their superior quality, therefore, Eveready Raytheons offer you outstanding value at no extra cost.

CITY AUTO TOLL INCREASES

Two hundred and twenty persons were killed by automobiles in Pittsburgh in 1929, the United States Bureau of Census announced in Washington. This was an increase of 27 over 1928.

In the four-week period ending October 4, 1930, 24 were killed, compared to 18 in the same period in 1929.

Philadelphia's death list for the 52-week period ending October 4, was 371, against 405 the year before. The last year's death list in Erie was 45, compared with 34 the year before.

BIGAMY TRIAL OF ACTOR SET

The trial of Lawrence Gottlieb, 21, star in a burlesque company who was returned here from Washington by county detectives yesterday, has been set for next week. Gottlieb, charged with bigamy, was committed to jail.

In Cleveland four months ago, detectives allege, Gottlieb married Sylvia Marks, 19, of McKeesport. He was playing in the Ohio city at the time.

After the marriage, the McKeesport girl told detectives, they said, of receiving a letter from wife No. 1, Narjie Bartel. The Bartel woman claimed she married Gottlieb in Providence, R. I., December 22, 1927.

Woman Beats Off Robber, Saves $500 in Home

GREENSBURG, Pa., Oct. 14.—State police are searching for a bandit who attempted to hold up Mrs. D. J. Mensch, at her home in Hempfield Township, but was frightened away when Mrs. Mensch threw a cup of steaming coffee in his face and grappled with him.

Mrs. Mensch, eating lunch with her husband, who is a cripple, was taken by surprise, but her action frustrated the theft of $500 cash in the house. The intruder made his getaway with two companions who awaited in an auto.

MASS MEETING BY LUTHERANS

The Lutheran reformation mass meeting to be held in Syria Mosque November 2 will be marked by the initial appearance of the Pittsburgh Lutheran Chorus in uniform vestments, it was said today.

The chorus is composed of 150 singers from Lutheran churches of the district, who have been rehearsing for some time under the direction of Homer Ochsenhirt.

The Rev. Walter Schutee, newly elected president of the Eastern district of the American Lutheran Church, will be the principal speaker at the meeting, taking for his subject "The Great Confession's Vitality."

LYCEUM DANCE ARRANGED

The St. Michael's Lyceum will hold a modern and old-fashioned dance in their school hall, Pius street, South Side, Wednesday, October 22.

The following committees have been appointed: Reception—George Smith, Raymond Bottner, John Paulus, Sylvester Schaeffer, Joseph Rausch, Joseph Keller. Tickets—Edward Wuenstel, Theodore Trimbur, Charles Bottner, John Kiefer, Joseph Moog. Refreshments—Aloy. Paulus, John Burgard, Nicholas Moeller. Check room—Edward Schmidt, Charles Heubert, Harry Arnold. Publicity—Sylvester Schaeffer and Joseph Keller.

SIMPLE HOME MIXTURE DARKENS GRAY HAIR

Cincinnati Barber Tells How Any One Can Prepare It in 5 Minutes

Any man or woman can easily look twenty years younger by simply darkening their gray, faded, or streaky hair. This is now easy to accomplish with a recipe given by a well known Cincinnati barber.

Simply take a half-pint of water, add one ounce of bay rum, ¼ ounce of glycerine and a small box of Barbo Compound. Shake and it is ready to use. These ingredients can be bought at drug stores at trifling cost.

Applied to the hair twice weekly this delightful mixture quickly gives the desired shade. It is easy to use, is not sticky or greasy, will not color the scalp and does not rub off.

Start Beacon Light On New Air Route

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 14.—Material for a beacon is on the ground and the light will be erected soon on the Wotring farm, north of here, marking a point on the newest federal airway from New York to St. Louis via Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Columbus.

Skin smoother instantly ...clearer in 8 hours

Nurses tell how to get this new beauty

WHY SPEND months and years trying to correct a rough, blemished skin when trained nurses have discovered a really quick way to end this trouble?

Largely on the advice of these nurses, over 6,000,000 women use a quick-healing, medicated cream. They find that just one application makes their complexions softer, smoother—noticeably clearer. And that regular use makes them absolutely lovely!

Noxzema's special formula is the secret of its many wonderful results. It contains bland oils that soften the skin and smooth away roughness. A mild medication that rids the pores of blemish-causing poisons. Gentle astringents that shrink coarse pores to an almost invisible smallness—giving the skin the delicate finish and radiant bloom of youth.

When your skin breaks out with blemishes, roughens, its pores enlarge (as everybody's does at times)—use Noxzema. See how quickly it ends these distressing faults—brings back your own natural glowing skin beauty.

If your skin is only "pretty good" right now, try Noxzema today. Stop at your druggist's for a generous trial jar of Noxzema Skin Cream.

DRAMA, COMEDY AND MUSIC FACTORS IN WEEK'S NEW STAGE PRODUCTIONS

Lenore Ulric Has to Mix Religion and Sex In 'Pagan Lady'

By GEORGE SEIBEL

George Seibel.

MUCH WATER has flown under London Bridge since John Storm loved Glory Quayle and plenty of "Rain" has fallen since Somerset Maugham and John Colton sent their missionary to the South Seas, but still religion and sex look to the dramatist like a good formula, if well mixed, for a spicy play. William DuBois is the dramatist this time—"Pagan Lady" is the drama—and Lenore Ulric is the actress who takes the dose at the Nixon Theater.

She is a hi-jacker's moll in a small tourist town off the East coast of Florida. Her boy friend has to go to Miami to defend himself just as a missionary convention comes to town. The big gun of the gospel tent and his good-looking nephew arrive at the same hotel. At once she arranges to go swimming with the young preacher the next day.

"Is that a promise?" says he.

"It's a date," says she.

And then the trouble starts.

As the young missionary-to-be starts off to the gospel meeting he falls on his knees on the hotel veranda and prays to his God. But he finishes up his prayer with well-remembered lines from the Song which is Solomon's. And then Lenore appears as the curtain falls.

That's the first act. It ought to close with the Meditation from "Thais" played on muted violins under the Florida moon.

AFTER TWO WEEKS

Two weeks later the mischief is done. Young Ernest is earnestly in love with the pagan lady. She has told him who and what she is, and yet he wants to marry her. When a bootlegger's bride tries to vamp him for herself, he repulses her. And now he takes lessons in religion from Dot Hunter.

"My God is a different kind of God," she tells him. And she goes into a rapture of poetic pantheism about flowers and stars, showing what the Florida sunshine can do with Gospel hymns sung across the street.

But at the close of the act they both go swimming and don't come back all night.

The pagan doctor who sent them off admits, as the curtain falls, that "it's just possible I may be wrong."

AND THEN COMES TROUBLE

The next morning the old preacher calls down the wrath of heaven and tells his nephew "If thy right eye offend thee, pluck it out." When the young man decides to keep his eye, the elder man rushes off to go swimming, and the young man must rush after him to save him from drowning. And as if this were not trouble enough, the hi-jacker comes back, hears all that has happened—and then comes real trouble.

"Give me back my soul," is the cry of the young preacher when he returns.

But Dot has promised to go off with her hi-jacker, and she tells Ernest: "You're a sky-pilot now who knows what sin is," and sends him back to the Gospel tent or tabernacle where the Hallelujah singers are starting up again.

CAN WE BELIEVE IT?

This is the bald story of the play "Pagan Lady." Can we believe it?

There is a good bit of smart dialogue, but it is too smart to be natural.

There are some good characters, but they are mixed too palpably—the cards are stacked.

There are some strong situations, but they are carved out with an icepick.

Lenore Ulric as the heroine has many opportunities to do the sort of acting in which she excels, and she whips out her repartee with unerring tongue, plays her blandishments with consummate femininity, reaches high-pitched emotions with sure grasp.

Franchot Tone also, as the hero, shows a kind of virility in his struggle with the flesh and the devil.

Thomas Findlay, as Malcolm Todd, the elder preacher, is the most consistent and convincing of the characters, along with Leo Donnelly as the pagan Dr. Heath.

The rest are lay figures from the shop window of gangster fiction. The author of the play has not been able to co-ordinate, to shade, to put real life into his people, his plot, his dialogue. He has produced a hypothetical question, not a play.

Of course, as Dr. Heath says, "it's just possible I may be wrong."

'Hello Paris' in Alvin, With Chick Sale, Is Knock-Out

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Hello Paris," knock-out musical comedy in the Alvin, is the Shubert idea of what a good tune and girl show ought to be. Well, the Messrs. Shubert, as the boys like to be called, are just about 100 per cent correct, "about" meaning slightly more than the designated amount, if anything. It is the producers' idea of what Homer Croy's novel, "They Had to See Paris," which was Willrogerized for the screen, could be with lyrics and dancing and Chic Sale and Stella Mayhew and Mary Adams and Nat C. Haines and Lois Deppe—you'll love Lois—all working for the good of the audience. The latter was numerous last night and considered the whole proceedings a whale of an idea.

SALE REAL COMEDIAN

First off, they've taken Chic Sale and transformed him from a specialist—that is, vaudeville specialist—into a real character comedian, carrying the burden of the main role, which you'll remember as that of an Oklahoma oil millionaire badgered into going to Paris, where he saves his grandchildren from the marquis and the cabaret dancer. But they haven't submerged Chic in character altogether and they provide a scene wherein he does his Sunday school entertainment under a new guise. They even provide a scene wherein he introduces the "Specialist" of his book—much to the hilarity of the audience.

Right here we'll have to get to Lois Deppe. Lois is male—and black—leader of a group of jubilee singers of the same color. When Lois unlooses that marvelous big voice of his in "Deep Paradise," in an oil well setting, the audience roars its approval in such a way as has not been heard since Jules Bledsoe sang "Old Man River" in "Show Boat." Later he sings "Rosie Road" with a reprise of "Deep Paradise" and the audience goes wild again.

YOUNGSTERS HELP

Mary Adams, engenue prima donna, as charming and engaging as she was as Sandy in "A Connecticut Yankee," is aided by Eileen Dougal, Jack Good and Glen Dale in keeping the juvenile and romantic interest alive, while Stella Mayhew and Nat C. Haines provide merry moments as the Aunt Minnie in the Peters family and her fiance, respectively. Miss Mayhew has a chance to become slightly bemused, as of old, and has a song number, "Gotta Have Hips," in which she is encored out of breath.

As is to be expected, there are numerous scenes in the two acts, in all kinds of places from a mansion in Oklahoma to the Cafe Lapin Agile in Paris, and in every one of them there is a specialty by some artist or other—all good. They include eccentric dancing of high order by Jack Good, toe dancing up and down stairs that amazes by Georgia Hayes, ballet by Mary Starner, piano gymnastics by Louis La Granna and Spanish dances by Amerique and Neville.

"Hello Paris" is a lot of fun—a lot of joy. The best thing of the kind the Messrs. Shubert have ever done.

By LEE CURRAN

Capt. J. W. Menke, who at the Golden Rod Showboat, anchored in the Allegheny River at the Montrose Hotel, has been turning back the pages of history to the days when the colorful river boat provided the only outside amusement for residents along the country's streams, this week has taken "The Man and the Maid" from the dusty archives of the past for the edification of Pittsburghers.

Johnny Lee Austin and his wife, Mildred Devoe, the latest arrivals on the boat, find their opportunity to arrive here in Capt. Menke's new vehicle. And at the initial presentation they won the hearts of the audience to such an extent that all the jibes were saved for George Clark and Jupie Stevens.

JUST WORKING UP

George, by the way, is preparing to take over the duties of Simon Legree, and no doubt had visions of using the whip on poor Uncle Tom's back as he set about last night to win Johnny's wife and fortune. So convincing is his baby stealing act, that his slightest move is the cue for echoing boos and hisses.

Carl Replogle, the Golden Rod clown, again scores, more so perhaps in this piece because he has Johnny's fair wife as his foil as he dodges about with his revolver and camera. Hi Roll and Marie McLain also come in for their share of the crowd's reaction to "The Man and the Maid."

But Johnny and his wife aren't the only new attractions on the river this week. Frank Edwards, who dropped in on Capt. Menke recently, has produced new scenery to set off this melodrama.

In the vaudeville selections Vic Faust, of course, still wins applause with his bells. (Vic said it has taken him 40 years to realize their value.)

First Newman Talk Listed for Tonight

"Seeing Italy, from Naples to the Alps" is the subject chosen by E. M. Newman to begin his twenty-second season here this evening in Carnegie Music Hall. A collection of color views and motion pictures will augment the lecture.

Can't PLAY

Can't REST

—child needs Castoria

WHEN a child is fretful and irritable, seems distressed and uncomfortable, can't play, can't sleep, it is a pretty sure sign that something is wrong. Right here is where Castoria fits into a child's scheme—the very purpose for which it was formulated years ago! A few drops and the condition which caused the trouble is righted; comfort quickly brings restful sleep.

Nothing can take the place of Castoria for children; it's perfectly harmless, yet always effective. For the protection of your wee one—for your own peace of mind—keep this old reliable preparation always on hand. But don't keep it just for emergencies; let it be an every-day aid. Its gentle action will ease and soothe the infant who cannot sleep. In more liberal doses it will effectively help to regulate sluggish bowels in an older child.

All druggists have Castoria; it's genuine if you see Chas. H. Fletcher's signature and this name-plate:

'ROYAL FAMILY' WELL PRODUCED BY PITT STOCK PLAYERS

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"The Royal Family," a drama that is supposed to give an inside glimpse of that theatrical family known as the Barrymore, in the new George Sharp production in the Pitt. It is an interesting play. More, it is one of the best things Mr. Sharp's players have done.

Alice Ann Baker carries the role of the eldest of the acting family. She is the grandmother. Marriage is an incident to her. Always the play must go on. Only once did she fail the footlights. That was when her son, Anthony, was born. Her daughter, Julie, she tells, knew her business better. She was born during Holy Week.

Paul McGrath portrays Anthony. He comes dashing in, dodging police and a Polish lady who is wild about him. But his chief worry seems to be getting a bath. So up the stairs after him parades the whole family to learn, while he splashes in the tub, the latest escapades of "the screen's greatest lover."

WHAT HO, MANIACS!

Jean May is seen as the daughter, Julie. She gets emotional, hysterical and calm, in turn. It is she who shouts that she is a mad woman surrounded by maniacs. And this is just what it all seems like! There are three acts of people running up and down stairs; breaking into fits of temperament; all talking at the same time. But it does make amusement. There are no dull moments.

Yes, always the play goes on—always just like this acting family. When death comes there is a birth. So, when Alice Ann Baker becomes a slumped, still figure in her purple dressing gown, it is only the end of a play.

A large cast is in support of the three principals—and, like the principals, it comes through satisfactorily. Prominent in this cast are Peggy Dougherty (she's the granddaughter), Joseph Lawrence (he's a brother and uncle), Mabel Kroman (she's an in-law), John Winthrop (he's an apparently intelligent show producer who is always saying "ain't"), and Robert Fiske and Hugh Banks (two gentlemen who happen to love actresses).

"The Royal Family" is a rather difficult play to produce. At times, it's almost like a three-ring circus. Only the players have to be actors as well as acrobats. And it seems a rather ambitious undertaking for a stock company. But Mr. Sharp, his company and his director, Edwin Vail, manage it well. And Mr. Vail even has time to make a stage appearance. He comes popping in as a Hindu servant, dragged over from Europe, in the last act.

Easy to look at

BEAUTIFUL and CHARMING! It's an added special quality that makes the beauty of a pretty girl. But she's a natural favorite to begin with. And for the same reason Camels are favorites with the modern crowd. Scientific principles govern their manufacture; but the mildness, the fragrance, the delicate flavor are natural qualities of the tobacco.

There's enjoyment in the smoking of a Camel. Camels go with happy faces . . . a lift of spirits with the opening of every fresh, fragrant pack. For Camel's delightful mildness holds all the natural goodness of choicest tobaccos. Don't confuse it with the flatness or insipidness of "over-treated" cigarettes.

At Price of Tire Alone!

When we say we offer better tire values than anyone else in the city, there is a good reason for the statement.

We, with 250 other big department stores, buy Defiance Tires direct from the Akron factory on a quantity price basis. That is one reason why we sell for less. But there is even a greater saving awaiting those who take advantage of the special sale offerings this week.

In addition, you get quality beyond that question. Uniformly high grade rubber, long staple cotton cords, expert workmanship, the most modern scientific methods . . . all the attributes of the world's finest tires, centered in Defiance and Super Defiance.

Look at the prices, consider the fact Defiance are quality tires . . . guaranteed forever against all defects . . . add to that free, complete service and you will have to admit that there is no good reason for passing up Defiance savings!

PABST EQUIPS TO MAKE BEER

OCONOMOWOC, Wis., Oct. 14—(AP)—Fred Pabst, Sr., head of the Milwaukee brewing concern bearing his name, announces that in anticipation of the early modification of the Volstead act nearly $1,000,000 worth of equipment for making legalized beer is being installed in his company's plant.

The new equipment will be held in readiness to start the manufacture of beer on short notice, he said. It is being housed in a building unused since prohibition, remodeled for the purpose. Pabst said:

"It is a risk, I know. However, public opinion is a pretty good barometer. It is my own firm opinion that beer will return in the not distant future, and I am willing to take the chance—so willing, in fact, that I have staked almost a million dollars on my opinion. I want to be prepared."

Pabst declared America's national economic structure would be strengthened with the return of beer. He cited pre-prohibition figures on the brewing industry to support his contention.

CUTS SILK HOSE BILLS IN TWO

A New York fashion expert has just made a wonderful discovery. Realizing the expense of constantly buying silk hose and lingerie, she learned that with perspiration comes an oily excretion from the sebaceous glands that causes silks to rot.

Soap and water she found were inadequate. Only a solvent like Energine cuts this film of oil.

So when next washing silk hose or dainty undergarments, add a tablespoonful of Energine to a quart of lukewarm, soapy water. Wash thoroughly, rinse well. Note the new, fresh cleanliness—see how the original color is revived so easily and with less rubbing. After using this new method, you'll be amazed at the difference in results from washing in just soap and water.

And when you see how many more weeks' wear you get from silk hose, you'll be more than delighted—it's real economy. Energine is unexcelled also for quickly removing all dirt and grease spots from dresses, hats, shoes, gloves, ties. Large can 35c.

WIDOW INDICTED IN COURT KILLING

SIDEWALKS —of— PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

In the Lepidoptera Department of Carnegie Museum a few days ago we met a friend who is a bartender in a speakeasy. He said that generally things were fair but he regretted the changing control in the slot-machine racket.

William Pfarr

He explained that under the previous regime the collectors were as liberal as could be, that they never thought of emptying the machines without buying a couple of drinks in every speakeasy and that usually there was a fiver or tenner for each bartender. He added that the concession now is split up into a lot of shares and that nobody buys drinks.

This is the second report we have had from a bartender in three or four months. The first one said that the proprietors of the speakeasies don't like to have slot machines in their places because, losing all their money in the machines, the customers can't buy drinks. From the machines, you see, the proprietors only get half the profit but from the bar—ah, from the good old bar.

If you, an auction bridge player, had gone to the state bridge championships in the Fort Pitt Hotel last week you would have felt lonesome and humble. Tournament players, dealing with contract, dismiss the auction player much as an inveterate poker player would ignore an admirer of the game Old Maid. The contract player barely tolerates the auction player. However, Jimmy Costin, a newspaperman, and William Pfarr, another newspaperman, scored a luscious revenge. Just as the tournament swung into action last Thursday Mr. Costin and Mr. Pfarr sat themselves down at a prominent table and indulged in a loud, rude, two-handed game of rum. Mr. Costin lost.

Most auction players know nothing at all of the rules of tournament play, not even that the cards are dealt but once for each round. Thus everybody eventually plays the same hands and luck, for the most part, is eliminated. The same hand which netted you four no trump may later mean a little slam or a grand slam to a braver or wiser player.

A bulky, bushy-haired expert from Deal, N. J., was the most interesting figure among the dozen out-of-towners who came here for the play. He was Philip Hal Sims, a millionaire, whose home at Deal is a hangout for Sidney Lenz and other experts of the Cavendish and Knockerbocker Clubs.

Mr. Sims didn't win any of the four championships and neither did his wife. To both of them contract bridge is a ruling passion. Frequently Sims plays for 15 hours a day, although he and his wife seldom play together, preferring to avoid possible quarrels.

During long stretches of playing Sims eats nothing but cereal. You get an idea of his passion for the game when you read that once he played for 59 consecutive hours.

Miss Barrymore has come and gone and the town is none the richer, neither is it poorer. Probably when the temperamental lady read the pieces which the Pittsburgh critics wrote about her new play she was tickled pink, a color more becoming than outraged red, for the reviews spanked the play and petted Miss Barrymore. In other words, the play was not good enough for its star.

DID Y'SEE MISS BARRYMORE IN HER NEW PLAY
I SAW TH' PLAY

Miss Barrymore apparently has taken heed from the reception given her play by the dissatisfied local audiences, for the debut of "Scarlet Sister Mary" in New York has been postponed until the piece undergoes needed alterations. This is a wise move, because of all the first actresses in the land Miss Barrymore is the last who with a weak play should challenge Broadway's critics, among whom and at whom she scatters vitriol.

URGE HOOVER SPEAK HERE NOV. 8

President Invited to Assist Heinz Theater Dedication, World-Wide Radio Dinner

President Hoover today is considering an invitation to come to Pittsburgh November 8. Howard Heinz, president of the H. J. Heinz Company, called on the President yesterday and asked him to speak at the dedication of the "Heinz Theater," new addition to the Heinz plant on the North Side.

Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, accompanied Heinz on the trip to the White House.

The "Heinz Theater" will be given to the 3,000 North Side employes by the company to celebrate the 61 years of industrial peace enjoyed by the Heinz workers. More than 500 railroad executives will join the 3,000 local employes at the opening of the new theater.

BROADCAST BANQUET

Eleven thousand Heinz employes, scattered all over the world, will enjoy a banquet given by the company on that evening. An international radio hookup, the largest ever attempted, will enable these scattered diners to enjoy the same speakers.

Sir Henry Thornton, head of the Canadian National Railway, and Charles Nagel, secretary of labor under President Taft, also will speak.

EASTERN STARS TO GIVE PLAY

"Corporal Eagen," a comedy of the American rookie, will be staged under the auspices of the Order of the Eastern Star Thursday night in the East McKeesport school auditorium.

On the following night it will be presented at the Wilmerding Y. M. C. A. About 150 residents of East McKeesport and Wilmerding, headed by Clarence Hassler and "Dad" Powelson, have parts in the comedy.

Dinner Arranged To Honor Tellez

Manuel C. Tellez, Mexican ambassador to the United States, will be guest of honor at a dinner in Carnegie Institute Thursday night. Samuel Harden Church and members of the board of trustees will be hosts.

Ambassador Tellez will be the principal speaker at the thirty-fourth annual Founders Day celebration in Carnegie Music Hall Thursday afternoon.

Sharpsburg Man Found on Tracks

George P. Johe, 28, of 1930 Noble street, Sharpsburg, a yard brakeman for the Pennsylvania Railroad, was found unconscious on the tracks near the H. J. Heinz plant, North Side, early today. At Allegheny General Hospital it was said he suffered concussion of the brain and a possible fracture of the skull. Police were unable to learn how he was injured.

Hurt In Crash

MRS. HELEN BRUCE

Mrs. Bruce, pretty and 19, Pointview road, injured with her mother when a car she was driving crashed into a parked car in which Patrolman John Cahill was sleeping in Liberty tubes. Four cars crashed into them.

7 HELD IN GUN, RAZOR FRAY

Seven persons were held for hearing today in the Center Avenue Police Court as a result of a shooting last night in the home of Joseph Gentile, 28, at 1043 Fifth avenue, police said.

Frank Cello, 23, of 1032 Gibbon street, was shot in the left arm by Gentile, police charge, as he attempted to cut Gentile with a razor. Police, called to the house, took Cello to Mercy Hospital, and Gentile, his wife, Marie, 24, and four men to the police station. After receiving treatment, Cello was arrested, according to police.

Autoist Arrested For Bridge Mishap

W. A. Henderson, 32, of 543 Forest avenue, Bellevue, was arrested today for violating traffic ordinances on the ramp of the Manchester Bridge.

Traffic Officer Dan McGreevy said he signaled Henderson to stop, but Henderson cut across the Point Bridge and bumped two machines.

Girl Denies Knowledge of Gangster Killings

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

"The Edgewater Kid," by stealing from Kinky King, leader of the West Side gang, the beautiful Polack Annie, starts a gang war between Kinky's followers and those of Goldie Gorio, boss of the North Side gang. As a result the Edgewater Kid is killed by a machine gun and the same evening Kinky King is found murdered, a gold revolver by his side. Gorio is known to have owned such a pistol. The public outcry the Mayor and the chief of police. They decide an arrest must be made and the chief suggests Polack Annie as a sacrifice to the general clamor for action. He tells the Mayor that a gold lipstick was found by Kinky's body. The chief arrests Annie, who swears she'll break him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER V.

Goldie sat in council with his cabinet at the North Royal street headquarters.

The phone rang in the room back of the false front garage. Chimp started up. Goldie palmed him back.

"I'll take it," he said. "I know what's comin' anyways."

"Hello," he sang. "Who? What? Oh....yeh—I know—say, you mus' be hard up for a blind fall, Chief....uhu......okay......but why don't you book her? Some water on your wheel, huh? Well, if that wins you any bets, it's We'nsday in Poughkeepsie with me......see she gets some decent eats, will you? Keep me in touch...much obliged....no—nothin' like that—the law is the law, an' you know me when the law is the law—oh, sure. S'long."

He hung up, turned to the mob, took out his gold cigaret case, extracted a gold-tipped cigaret, withdrew his gold lighter, lit his smoke, puffed forth, and made his speech.

"Boys—Annie's pinched!"

They let go exclamations, each in his own style. Goldie, his eyes half closed, took them all in. He fussed with his gold chain. He raised his lip and flashed his gold teeth.

Goldie Angered

Becomes Peeved Because Of Annie's Arrest

"Damn it," he snarled, "I got half a notion to give that big flatfoot the works. He's hot for the front-page copy. I could burn him up with it . . . they got a grand gall, these here mayors an' coppers, puttin' the rap on her . . . all them bulls is got their own homes, ain't they? Where'd they get 'em? Makin' arrests? I'm laughin' with you. They got 'em keepin' their pug noses clean, doin' as they're paid to do, an' not bein' patriots. So now they manhandle Annie an' toss her in the clink. It gets my Guinea up."

Chimp shook his thin shoulders.

"Goldie," he said out of the corner of his ill-shaped mouth, "you gimme the office an I'll go down to City Hall an' tear up the hull joint. I'll knock the Mayor stiff an' send for the Chief—"

"Wait a minute," interrupted Goldie. "I said half a notion. Only half o' one. The police is gettin' pretty uppity, if you ask me. Their word ain't worth a quarter no more. There ain't no honest bulls left. You pay 'em for p'tection, an' you're no safer than some shoe-clerk what don' kick in a nickel . . . but, we better go a li'l easy. This calls for some thought."

"This calls for some action," volunteered Ray. "Take it from me—"

Considerate

Speaks of Families of Gangsters

"Pull the zipper on your pan—this is no traffic problem. An' when I crave advice from you, I'll screw down the window o' the car an' p'litely ask you. I'm blazin'. I know what I oughta do. But I'm consid'rin' policy. I oughta show them civil service stooges a lesson in higher mathematics. If this was the end o' the world, I'd do it. But a lot o' you mugs is got fam'lies—"

"Aw, t'hell wit' my fam'ly," spat Chimp. "My manhood is somepin', too, ain't it—even if I am married?"

"You bet. But, jus' the same, you all sit here an' wait—I'm goin' downtown—down the line an' all the way to the top—c'mon, Ray."

The driver picked himself up. Goldie flipped the remains of his cigaret into a corner. Two murderers sprang up to help him on with his camel's hair overcoat. Another handed him his gold-headed stick. At the door he turned.

"Wait," he repeated. "You heard me."

The reporters in City Hall were agitated. And when that hard-boiled flock gets agitated, something is doing. Not alone the reporters downstairs, but the older, more advanced squad above, covering the hall and not the police detail, were going strong—their business was with the Mayor, and this business was big enough to interest His Honor, in person, in the flesh—whole lot of flesh.

The Mayor

Racketeers Want Protection From Him

The Mayor wasn't a bad sort. He was no out-and-out thief. He had wriggled in through the tortuous trials of local politics, playing with those who could do him some good. The little organizers grouped together clusters of voters who didn't care much about economics or patriotism, but who wanted protection of some kind—to peddle or to sell to the city or to bootleg or to hang out swinging signs against city ordinances—or to foster racial, religious or neighborhood interests.

A higher group organized the organizers to get standing as jobbers of votes, and above them was the next class, and above them was the next class, which concentrated the jobbers and job-holders, and who wholesaled precincts and wards through control of the balance of power in them. They chose the Mayor, and he paid off through them back down the line. Strictly United States system.

The Mayor gave the town a pretty fair administration. Civic progress kept moving. New boulevards meant work for thousands of the faithful, and inside information about coming improvements meant enriching the higher-ups through optioning adjacent corners and leases.

Gangsters

Required to Remain in Own Reservations

The gangs had to be recognized. The gangsters muscled in whether or no, and it was better and far more profitable to have them in solid outfits, where they could be dealt with through leaders, than to have the guerrilas springing up on their own everywhere all the time. That method would have meant even more lawlessness and no return at all. Gangs were big business, and, like all big business, had their vices, but in the end usually realized that certain limits had to be drawn. As long as they remained in their own reservations and made speakeasy-keepers and gin-makers and beer-runners and gamblers and slaves kick in and stay put, they were rather a help than a problem.

Seldom were they brought to book. But this time an even higher power, the newspapers, had forced the condition. It seemed like another scandalous

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Oct. 14.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

The Harvard College paper says the American Legion convention in Boston was "just one wild party." Poor Harvard papers they have a habit that is just bordering on genius for saying the wrong things. Imagine any college paper criticising somebody for giving a wild party. Wait till another war comes and let the Harvard editorial staff fight it, and then they can show how a convention should be conducted. Where the mistake was made was in not asking our boys, when recruited, if they ever took a little nip and if they did, not allow 'em in our war. In that way we could have had a respectable war, but lost it. Yours, WILL.

Hope for Garnishee Law Voiced to Credit Men

Outlook for the passage of a garnishee law at the next session of the Pennsylvania Legislature was discussed by speakers representing various organizations, at last night's meeting of the Retail Credit Men's Association in the Pittsburgh Elks' Club.

W. M. Jacoby, secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association, declared there must either be a garnishee law or closer co-operation on the part of merchants and others who extend credit. J. V. Loughran, secretary of the Retail Grocers' Association, spoke on chain stores. He urged close co-operation with the credit forces.

J. S. Neely, secretary of the Commonwealth Protective Association, said the outlook for passage of a garnishee law is favorable, declaring medical men, dentists, merchants generally, druggists, hardware, coal and other interests are back of the proposed bill. The Bell Telephone Company showed motion pictures, demonstrating how sound is synchronized with pictures on films. President H. E. Wilson of the credit body presided.

PUT ON THE SPOT

and slaughterous intergang war, which would make the town notorious around the world again. Therefore the present to-do.

Polack Annie had been brought in. The chief of police, himself, had called for her. When he moved, the Mayor had spoken. At the first inkling of so picturesque a pinch the boys had called their city editors, and photographers were swarming about the big graft-and-granite structure in the soul of the city. No sheet had yet shot a snap of Polack Annie. This was a moment.

Photographed
Cameramen Get Pictures Of Annie

They were coagulated in the anteroom of the chief's office, looking for the millionth time at the framed photographs of past heads of the department, most of them in their graves where they could ignore what was said about them. The secretary had told them it wouldn't be long now. Annie was to be brought up the back elevator—a distinction given to but few.

A buzzer rasped. The secretary beckoned, and the men who meet so many interesting people flocked in to meet another one. The chief, a big heater cocked upward between his jaws, sat grinning behind his desk. The Mayor squatted a few feet away. Between them, composed and nochalant, relaxed Polack Annie.

The photographers set their tripods, aimed their boxes and bustled with their flashlight powder.

"We're set now — ready?" called Messenheim, dean of the cameramen.

"Let 'er go," cried His Honor, and a dozen puffs and a dozen flames belched from as many pans held high.

"Can we have her alone—standing up?" asked Messenheim.

"Sure . . . stand up, Annie," the genial Chief consented. She made no protest, but stood against the wall. Again the battery fired. There was a clicking shut of metal cases and dismantling of apparatus, and the picture gang scooted.

Questioned
Reporters Ask Annie Many Questions

"Fellows," the Mayor opened up, "we can't disclose the evidence in this case . . . we can't even admit that this arrest is in connection with the killing of Kinky King . . . the prisoner is not on the blotter, she is being held for investigation . . . if you care to ask her any questions, go ahead; but by virtue of the authority in me vested, I must warn the prisoner that anything she says may be used against her."

They shot questions at her... where was she born? . . . how old was she? . . . what did she know about the King shooting? . . . or the Edgewater Kid's knockoff? . . . or Goldie Gorio or —what?

Annie told them exactly nothing. If they wanted any information, they could see her lawyer — Meyer Krantzstein — and that was more than she could. She didn't know what she was arrested for; she knew none of the persons mentioned; suppose she had been nailed in the flat where the Edgewater Kid had lived? Lots of people had lived there before him and lots would after him—no connection at all, just a dumb coincidence. That would be all. The chief was helpless. He couldn't make her open up if she didn't want to. He nodded to a plainclothes man, who took her by the elbow and led her back to the elevator.

"Well, we produced, didn't we?" exulted the chief.

MOTOR PARADE AT TRI-STATE FETE FRIDAY

Banquet With 3 Governors Guests to Climax Lincoln, William Penn Celebration

Pittsburgh motorists have been invited to take part in the motor parade preceding the dedication of the Lincoln and William Penn Highways west of Pittsburgh Friday. The affair will be a tri-state celebration under auspices of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, officials of which have named Fred C. Schatz chairman of the motorcade division of its celebration committee.

Many motorists are expected to come from West Virginia and Ohio and Schatz hopes to have a big representation from Pittsburgh. The dedication is to take place at Imperial, 20 miles west of Pittsburgh. Both highways have been greatly improved to aid traffic between Pennsylvania and Ohio and West Virginia.

BANQUET SCHEDULED

The Pittsburgh caravan will go to Chester, W. Va., and Steubenville, O. The dedication will be climaxed with a banquet in the William Penn Hotel Friday night. Governors of three states are expected to be present.

Motorists going to the independent celebrations in Ohio and West Virginia will leave West Carson street at 10:30 a. m. Friday. At 2:30 another caravan will leave for Imperial Junction. After the speech-making at the junction, the caravans from the three states will come to Pittsburgh for the banquet. Free parking on the Monongahela and Duquesne way wharves for motorists participating in the procession has been arranged by Benjamin G. Marshall, assistant superintendent of police.

GOVERNORS TO SPEAK

It is expected that 1,000 persons will attend the banquet at which Gov. John S. Fisher of Pennsylvania, Myers Y. Cooper of Ohio and William G. Conley of West Virginia will speak.

Among the honored guests will be United States Senators David A. Reed, Joseph R. Grundy, Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, and Secretary of Labor James J. Davis.

DISCIPLES GO TO WASHINGTON

Delegates from nearly 30 churches of the Disciples of Christ in Allegheny County departed today for Washington to attend the annual international convention of that religious group, which opens tonight with R. A. Long, a layman, of Kansas City, presiding.

Features of the gathering, which will bring together delegates from all parts of the world, will be the launching of an $8,000,000 ministerial pension fund campaign and dedication of the $1,500,000 National City Christian Church, on Thomas Circle, toward which 40,000 church members have contributed.

A reception in honor of 25 Australian and New Zealand delegates, en route to the convention, was held last night in the First Christian Church, Montgomery avenue and Arch street, North Side.

The Camera Question Box

Miss Buck.

MISS MARIE BUCK, North Side, dancer: I would want my friend to be willing to help me out on every occasion, in all my difficulties. He should be upright and honest, without which qualities there would be no friendship.

Miss Rayner.

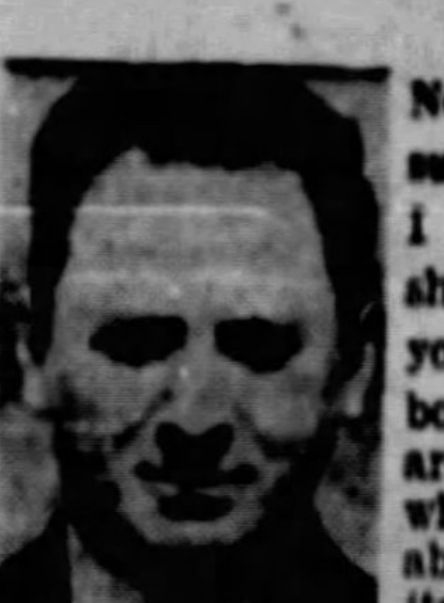
MISS ROSE RAYNER, North Side, saleswoman: The main qualities of real friendship are honesty and sincerity, these two are essential if there would be a friendship. There is one demon and destroyer of friendship and that is jealousy; if this trait creeps in, the strongest union is weakened and understanding flees.

Miss Spowa.

MISS JULIA SPOWA, North Side, student: Friendship is a valuable gift and should be esteemed as such. Without a friend to help and encourage, many things would seem almost too hard to bear. That's what a friend is for—to stand by us and give us moral support.

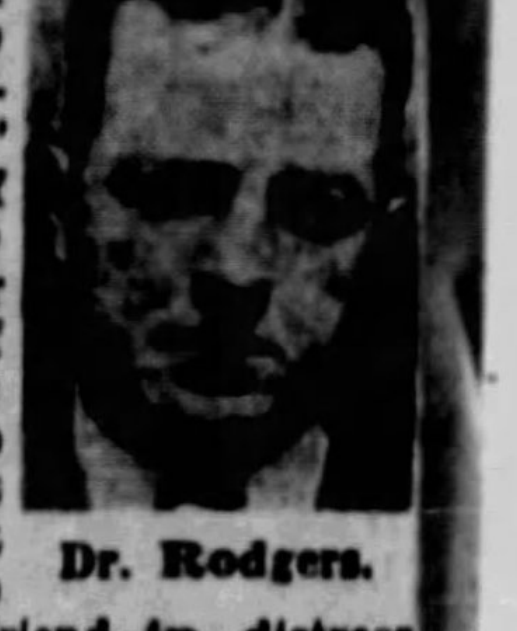
Mr. Weidner.

N. H. WEIDNER, West View, insurance agent: If I tell you what I would have my friend avoid, you would know then what I would have him be. Jealousy spells death to any friendship and is one of the worst evils in social life. This I would ask him to beware of. I would, of course expect him to be sincere.



Mr. Mellon.

SAM MELLON, North Side, insurance agent: I think a friend should be true to you at all times, both when you are present and when you are absent. This in itself is certain proof that he is your friend.



Dr. Rodgers.

DR. JAMES M. RODGERS, North Side: These are desirable qualities for friendship: (a) Deep appreciation for "givings" and misgivings of said friend; (b) Loyalty to your convictions of your friend; (c) To be able to give as well as take, a two part contract; (d) To stand by your friend in distress as well as in good times.

FOREIGN ROAD EXPERTS FETED

County Commissioners were hosts at a banquet in the William Penn Hotel last night to 70 foreign highway experts and engineers who, with their wives, spent yesterday in Pittsburgh inspecting industrial districts and city and county highways and bridges. They arrived in the morning from Washington, where they attended the International Roads Congress.

While in Pittsburgh they were guests of the Automobile Club of Pittsburgh, which, with the Chamber of Commerce, was instrumental in bringing them here. They represented cities in Europe, South America and Australia.

Entertainment of the visitors was in the hands of James A. Hemstreet, touring manager of the Automobile Club; James Rae, president, and Henry Tranterm, chairman of the highways committee, of the Chamber of Commerce; Norman F. Brown, county director of public works; W. K. Kreiling, assistant director, and Charles Reppart, of the city Department of Public Works.

They visited the Carnegie Steel plant in Homestead, H. J. Heinz plant, Ohio River and Saw Mill Run boulevards, Liberty Tubes and other points of interest.

Honor Couple on 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Meuschke, of Library road, Castle Shannon, were kept busy last night when nearly 500 friends called to offer congratulations on their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

Meuschke, active in civic affairs in the South boroughs for many years, is president of the Hilltop Savings and Trust Company and an officer in five other banks and associations. He is aged 77. Mrs. Meuschke is 71. Both came from Germany and have lived in this district 60 years.

HUNT JEWELRY STORE THIEVES

Tarentum police today were searching for burglars who looted the jewelry store of David Spahr and the adjoining barber shop of Samuel Calhoun, Fifth avenue, yesterday. Jewelry valued at $1,000 was stolen from the Spahr store, while razors and other supplies were taken from Calhoun's shop, according to police.

Entrance was gained by drilling through a window sash of the barber shop, from which a locked door leading to the jewelry store was forced. The loot included five watches valued at $80 each, several ladies' rings, cuff buttons, fountain pens and gold pencils, Spahr reported.

'Army' Seeks Funds For Relief Demands

For the first time in eight years the relief department of the local Salvation Army is taxed to capaacity, Ensign Violet Randall declared today.

The failure to raise $112,900 necessary to carry on the work during the coming year has forced the officials of the Army to extend the campaign into this week. The result of the first day of the "emergency week" drive showed a gain of $2,[illegible]00.

Kling Chief Engineer For Carnegie Steel

Fred E. Kling, of Youngstown, has been appointed chief engineer for all plants of the Carnegie Steel Company, with headquarters in Pittsburgh. He has been chief engineer for the company in Youngstown for years. In his 28 years with the company he has invented a number of labor-saving devices now being used in the making of steel.

RAIDERS HUNT OWNER OF RUM

Confiscation of 7,128 pints of ale and 2,640 bottles of beer in a garage at 720 Carson street, today led to a search by prohibition agents for the owner of the contraband.

The ale, packed in cases, and the beer, stored in barrels, was found in a room in the garage yesterday, agents reported. Joseph Hayden, alleged owner of the building, said he did not know who had rented the room.

Beer, ale, gin and whisky were seized in a raid on a building at 110 East South Diamond street, where Fred Raab, 56, and Mike Dallas, 32, were arrested, agents reported.

At 1408 Clark street, a 150-gallon still was found and another of 75-gallon capacity in a dwelling in Coast street, they said.

A raid on an apartment at 6353 Monitor street; netted the agents large quantities of gin, whisky and alcohol, they asserted.

Man Badly Hurt In Fall Under Train

Charles Highberger, 52, of Second avenue and Main street, Irwin, today was in a critical condition in the Braddock General Hospital from injuries sustained when he fell under a passenger train of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Braddock station yesterday. His left leg and right foot were amputated at the hospital.

She is serving time (from which she'll soon be paroled) on conviction of having helped him escape recently in a leap from a speeding train. He was recaptured shortly later in New Orleans.

BOY ARRESTED IN HOLDUPS

Theodore Wycicki, 18, of 2520 Carson street, was arrested late yesterday as a member of a South Side holdup gang. Six alleged members of the stickup outfit already are in jail on charges of robbery.

Wycicki, according to South Side police, has admitted participation, with two of the youths now under arrest, in numerous robberies, which include 30 holdups and theft of 50 automobiles. The prisoner, police said, confessed to being one of the gang that held up the Montefiore restaurant, 3404 Fifth avenue, last Saturday night, in which $16.50 was stolen.

Magistrate John J. Sweeney held Wycicki for further investigation.

ASK COUNTY AID ELIMINATE RUN

Residents of the Eighth Ward, McKeesport, were hopeful today that the County Commissioners would aid to the extent of $2,000,000 in the project to eliminate Crooked Run, long subject for complaint owing to unsanitary conditions. Hints of forthcoming aid were made in addresses by McKeesport councilmen at a meeting of taxpayers in the Knights of Pytnias Hall, Fifth avenue, McKeesport, last night.

The gathering was to protest Council's efforts to revoke ordinances passed in connection with a $600,000 bond issue to come before McKeesport voters in November, Mrs. W. H. Walthour, acting chairman, and A. W. Gallagher, county committeeman from the Second Precinct of the ward, reported. Assemblyman John A. Rhodes and several residents of Versailles Township, whose properties are drained by the run, and who said they contemplated seeking annexation to the city, spoke in behalf of the bond issue. A committee was appointed to advocate passage of the bond issue.

St. George Cadets To Give Minstrel

Homestead Steel Plants Hold Open House; Drum Corps Meet

A tour of Homestead steel works and a Legion drum and bugle corps contest today will mark the second day's festivities of the Golden Jubilee celebration which is being observed in Homestead Borough this week.

Notable statesmen, county, city and borough officials last night attended the celebration dinner in the auditorium of the St. Mary's School. There were 700 present. The dinner marked the opening of the week's event.

This afternoon, old-timers, former residents and visitors will make a tour of the steel works. In the evening, Homestead Post No. 60, American Legion, will play host to visiting drum and bugle corps of similar posts throughout Western Pennsylvania. Prizes will be awarded in an exhibition drill and to the best strutting drum major.

DAVIS, SPEAKER

At last night's dinner, Secretary of Labor James J. Davis was the principal speaker. Other speakers were Representative Guy E. Campbell, State Senator Frank J. Harris and I. Lamont Hughes, president of the Carnegie Steel Company. Other guests included Representatives Frank Hoffman and Frank M. Reed, District Attorney Andrew T. Park, Sheriff Robert Cain, Clerk of Courts Samuel Topley, Recorder of Deeds Samuel D. Foster, President of Pittsburgh Council John S. Herron, State Senator W. D. Mansfield and Attorney Louis Little. United States Senator David A. Reed and Joseph G. Armstrong, president of Allegheny County Commissioners were unable to attend.

The invocation was said by the Rev. David A. Shanahan, pastor of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church. Ralph H. Watson, vice president of the Carnegie Steel Company was the toastmaster. The welcome address was delivered by Burgess John Cavanaugh. "Fifty Years of Progress—Past" was told by Attorney P. H. McGuire, former burgess and present borough solicitor. "Fifty Years of Progress—Future" was the response of Burgess Cavanaugh. James C. Kuhn, president of the Homestead Chamber of Commerce spoke on "Opportunities Ahead."

'MAKING HISTORY'

Secretary Davis in delivering the principal speech of the evening declared that the people of Homestead were doing more than merely celebrating the golden anniversary of the borough. He said that in reality they are marking an event in the industrial history of the United States. In a practical and material sense the people of Homestead have helped to build modern America.

The program for tomorrow will be a tour of the district and airports, and merchants open house night. Thursday will be old-timers night, and old time show night. The celebration will close Friday night with a parade of progress.

OFFICER HURT ENDING FIGHT

When he interfered in an argument between two men early this morning, Patrolman Reuben Stephanovic, of McKeesport, received injuries to his hand requiring treatment at McKeesport Hospital.

Stephanovic, according to the hospital report, tried to break up a fight between Eddie Prutz, 28, John Grago, 30, both of McKeesport, at Twelfth and Walnut streets. All three men received injuries necessitating a trip to the hospital. The officer and Prutz were given treatment and sent home, and Grago was detained because of abrasions and lacerations of the scalp, arms and hands.

Lad Steps on Nail, Contracts Tetanus

Miles Angelo, 10, of Industry, Pa., is in the McKeesport Hospital today with tetanus, suffered when he stepped on a nail while playing near his home Sunday.

He did not tell his parents of his injury until yesterday, hospital authorities said. His condition was regarded as serious.

Man Hurt by Blast Of Dynamite Cap

The explosion of a dynamite cap on the track of the Pennsylvania Railroad at South Twenty-third and Josephine streets, injured Walter McCluskey, 23, "city," yesterday, police reported. Three stitches were required to close a cut in his chin. He was crossing the tracks at the time.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Helen Dorothy Donnelly Becomes Bride of Dr. Bruce P. Rial

This morning there are ever so many things to talk about, and innumerable details about all the varied events of these fall days. Before I tell you whom I saw at the theaters last night or whom I saw at the Western Pennsylvania Hunts Races yesterday, I want to mention a wedding of much interest, news of which has just reached me.

Miss Helen Dorothy Donnelly and Dr. Bruce Poole Rial were married Saturday in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Edward A. Pitcairn, of Woodland road.

As vivid as autumn landscapes were the gowns and velvet wraps of the fashionable and numerous audience at the Nixon last night, where Lenore Ulric is appearing in "The Pagan Lady," and at the Alvin, where Chic Sale is presenting "Hello, Paris."

As they were leaving the Nixon, I saw Mrs. William Christopher Robinson, wearing a simple black lace gown and a lovely cape of jade green transparent velvet with a novel scarf fastening, and her young daughter, Mary, who wore a peach crepe frock, and a lovely tangerine velvet cape. With them was Mrs. Robinson's sister, Mrs. Maitland Alexander, accompanied by her debutante daughter, Madelaine. Mrs. Alexander was dignified in black lace, and wore a gold brocaded evening wrap. Madelaine chose a deep rose crepe gown and a velvet wrap in a deeper shade.

Smart Gowns

Virginia Furey wore burnt orange crepe and a blue velvet coat collared in chinchilla. Peggy Milligan chose apricot crepe, and Mrs. Herbert A. May wore a green crepe gown and a green velvet coat.

Young Mrs. Solon Armour Person chose a smart green crepe gown with a novel bolero jacket, and Mrs. T. J. Hilliard chose black lace, and a black velvet cape. Mrs. Theodore Smith chose black velvet, and Mrs. T. M. Jones III. wore a striking turquoise blue crepe ensemble.

Particularly interesting was Mrs. T. Howe Nimick's gown of deep navy blue crepe with narrow ruffles of the same material, lined in shell pink, placed at the hip line. A pink moire wrap completed her costume.

Mrs. Simon T. Patterson was in black lace with a wrap of black velvet and ermine, and I saw the Gordon C. Kings. Mrs. J. Harry O'Neill chose eggshell crepe and a turquoise blue velvet coat with a beige fox collar.

The Roberdeau Green Annans, with Mrs. Annan wearing black satin and a black velvet and ermine cape, I saw too.

Mrs. R. P. Snyder, the former Elizabeth Charters, appeared in a gown of black lace, and so did Mrs. Charles Jarrett.

Patrons Amused

An enthusiastic audience rocked the Alvin with laughter and applause last night, where "Hello, Paris," starring Charles (Chic) Sale, is appearing.

During the intermission I caught a glimpse of just a few members of the social set chatting and smoking in the lounge. Mrs. Alexander Laughlin Robinson, Jr., wore an afternoon gown of copperglow flat crepe, having long sleeves trimmed with novel large buttons, and with it she wore a wood brown felt turban.

Mrs. John Marshall wore an evening gown of turquoise blue crepe, with a rounded decolletage edged with a ruffle of the same material. Mrs. Donald Hemphill Baum was with her, wearing flowered chiffon, having a flared skirt. Margaret Geddes, who was there with Katherine Myers, wore an afternoon frock of black georgette, having many godets in the skirt. Katherine wore black fishnet, with long sleeves, and a flared skirt.

Hunt Is Gay

The tree-edged fields of "Huntlands," the George R. McNary farm near Greensburg, was a colorful scene yesterday afternoon when the Western Pennsylvania Hunts races were held. Society women in smart red and green and brown tweeds and knitted dresses were there as well as society men interested in horsemanship. Amelia Davis, looking smart in a garnet red knitted dress with a chic red felt hat, was chatting with William Jones about the races.

Standing near the starting point were Catherine Suydam in a smart black and white tweed gown with a beret of the same material, Eleanor Longenecker in a black wool crepe dress and a black hat, and Mrs. Bennett Walker in brown crepe with a hat to match. James Kuhn and Robert McCready joined them.

Mrs. Simon T. Patterson was there, of course, wearing a rose boucle suit, and with her was her sister, Mrs. John W. Lawrence, in a brown and yellow crepe dress with a cape collar, and a brown felt hat.

Talking At Ring

Chatting with Count Rostworowski, of Warrenton, Va., was Mrs. George R. McNary, wearing a crown crepe gown, printed with a green leaf motif, and a brown felt hat.

Laura Evans wore a distinctive Hunter's green crepe dress with a tunic blouse and a green felt beret. The hem lines of the skirt of the blouse were cut to represent modernistic leaves.

Nancy Brown, wearing a scarlet wool crepe suit and a black and white fabric beret, I saw in the crowd, and Frences Forsyth wearing a brown and beige tweed suit with a brown felt hat. Mrs. Francis Burke Rodgers chose a scarlet wool crepe dress, tucked at the waistline, and a black felt hat, and Mrs. J. O. Burgwin chose a printed red crepe dress with a bolero jacket, and a beige felt hat.

Near the judges was Mrs. George L. McCook in a green and white jersey dress with a green felt hat, and Mrs. T. J. Hilliard in a black wool crepe suit with a cape collar and a black felt hat.

Tweed Popular

Mrs. E. J. McCague chose green wool crepe with which she wore a black felt beret, and Mrs. James S. Brown wore a rose beige tweed suit and a beige felt hat, and Mrs. A. C. Martin chose a navy blue knitted suit with a jumper of turquoise blue, and a navy blue felt hat. Mrs. Jack Bissell wore a brown tweed suit with a hat to match; Betty McKay a cricket green wool crepe frock with a scarf collar of jade green crepe, and a green felt beret, and Mrs. Charles Flaccus was with her, wearing a turquoise blue wool coat with a beige fox collar.

Talking with Mrs. Herbert A. May, who wore a powder blue wool coat with a beige fox collar, and a blue felt hat, was Mrs. T. M. Jones, III, in a brown tweed dress with a beret to match.

Miss Margaret Coulter, wearing a black jersey dress with the tunic embroidered in white wool, and a black felt hat, was watching the races attentively. Nearby was Clodagh McCune in a black crepe suit with a scarlet jumper, chatting with the Alan Magee Scaifes. Mrs. Scaife chose a brown and yellow tweed skirt with a yellow cardigan and a brown and yellow beret.

Colorful Crepes

Mrs. Dorwin Donnelly chose a tomato red wool crepe frock with a felt hat to match, and Elizabeth Bovard in a brown tweed coat and brown felt hat, was in her car with her house guest, Mrs. Joseph B. Fogg, who chose a copperglow knitted suit.

Arriving with McCook Reed was Jane Allderdice in a black and white tweed suit with matching beret. Mrs. William H. Duff wore a blue tweed tailored suit with a blue felt hat.

Mrs. William Schoen chose a raspberry tweed suit with matching beret and Mrs. Bennett Rodgers, a yellow and black tweed frock and coat with matching beret. Nancy Allderdice chose a navy blue tweed suit and Caroline W. Riley, of New York, her house guest, a sand tweed suit with hat to match; Louise Cook, a claret red tweed suit with hat to match; Mrs. T. Howe Nimick, brown crepe and a brown felt hat with a beige quill; Mrs. Harry Milholland, sand colored crepe, and Mrs. James P. McKinney, a green flannel suit.

Home Wedding

Miss Mary Margaret Barefoot, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Barefoot, of Milroy, and Albert Vincent Landgren, of Bellevue, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Landgren, of Omaha, Neb., were married in the bride's home on Saturday at 11 o'clock. The Rev. Harry J. Deiss, pastor of the White Memorial Congregational Church, officiated. Mrs. Arthur Kelley, of Reedsville, played the wedding music, and Mrs. Tilden Williamee sang.

Miss Clara Bush, of Washington, was the bride's only attendant, and John Barefoot, brother of the bride, was the best man.

A luncheon was served after the wedding, and Mr. and Mrs. Landgren left for California for their honeymoon.

Forecasts of Programs Explain Rapid Growth Of Mt. Lebanon Club

The snappy, interesting (even to an outsider) forecasts of department and committee heads of the Mt. Lebanon Woman's Club yesterday were a demonstration of only one reason why this active organization has grown to 600 members in seven years. The affair yesterday was the president's day luncheon given annually by this worth while organization and Mrs. C. C. Kochenderfer, its first president to serve for more than one year, was the honor guest. Both luncheon and program following were in the Mt. Lebanon United Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Kochenderfer addressed the members briefly and introduced Mrs. R. W. Johnson, Congress of Clubs president, who also made a neat little speech. Then Mrs. Edward F. Ochsenhirt, program chairman, sketched the whole year's program entirely from memory and without a single reference to note or year book.

To complete the program there was an enjoyable recital by Helen Hunt Allen, petite and gifted violinist, and the club choral, which is making rapid strides numerically and artistically under Lucille Miller Werner's direction. Nellie Risher Roberts accompanied both soloish and singers.

And the decorations are worthy of a word. The luncheon tables were centered with yellow button chrysanthemums and silver-tipped blue candles. A silver urn of large chrysanthemums, delphinium and bows of silver tissue ribbon adorned the center of the honor table. In the Sunday school room where the program was heard, the rostrum was made most attractive with chairs, tables, scarfs, lamps, flowers and ferns.

BLACK AND WHITE LEND A DRAMATIC APPEAL TO MODE

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Oct. 14.—Simply sumptuous are the new black and white evening frocks that portray the possibilities of this classic color combination in a dramatic way. It seems impossible to believe that black and white has ever been more beautifully treated, or that evening frocks were ever more compellingly lovely. No matter how difficult or drab the day may have been, to wear one of the new evening gowns is to find oneself in a new world of enchantment with all the cares of a workaday existence banished. If a new hat is a tonic for the blues, then a bewilderingly glamorous evening gown is surely a passport to that magic land where every woman is queen and every man an adoring slave. Black or white velvet made with exquisite detail and trimmed with contrasting ermine is the mode's latest boon to mankind. Jeweled touches add the last word in magnificence and molded lines achieved by intricate seamings create a silhouette that offsets the somewhat weighty effect of a deep hem of fur.

WE ARE ABLE to show you today a sketch of one of the loveliest models of the brilliant Vionnet. We must explain that two of the best and most sensational gowns in the collection are twins. One is of white ring velvet with black ermine at the hem, the other is of black ring velvet with a band of white ermine. The one shouldered decollet is held in place in the model sketched, by a strip of the material covered with baquettes of black onyx and outlined in strass. The black velvet frock has pearls and strass on black. The bodices are closely adjusted to the figure by means of the diagonal cutting which has become a Vionnet trademark, and the skirt falls in great godets of circular cut. The ermine hem just clears the floor.

OF APPEALING charm is the newest Augustabernard evening gown, a sketch of which we are pleased to present. It is of a rather pale apple green triple georgette which hangs in heavy classic folds. The cut is unusual for it is all in double triangles, very intricate and very interesting. The triangles meet at the waistline where they terminate their career in the form of little knots. The belt is placed at the normal waistline in front, drooping slightly towards the back in a new way.

The Simple Frock for Informal Wear
This season these informal dresses are particularly smart and ever so practical. Their colours are darker, such as deep sapphire blue, lovely greens, golden browns, burgundy, and, of course, black.
● ABOUT TOWN there is a preference for Black Crepes and Black Satins, with the higher colours having their devotees. Light-weight Wools are in vogue for street wear, being especially good to wear under a tweed topcoat. Many of the smartest are trimmed with touches of fur. Imported Jerseys, of uncommon character, are being chosen by some of the smartest dressed women.
● FOR TEATIME, we suggest Velvets and Lame, those soft, fluttering frocks that give a modern grace to the silhouette. How very charmingly they are trimmed, especially with soft laces!
These are the dresses that every woman enjoys in her wardrobe, to wear again and again with ever-increasing pleasure.

Changed Magazine

The first issue of "The Clubwoman," the new official publication of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, is in the mails. With its change in title, "The Clubwoman" (formerly "The News") has also changed its style, both in cover and makeup and has greatly enlarged its contents. In fact, the publication is now an impressive looking magazine. Its cover, in federation colors, carries a cut from a crayon study by Edna E. Davies, of the entrance to General Federation headquarters and one of the most important articles is by Zona Gale, on "Some Factors in Academic Freedom." Other contributors are Dr. Mary C. Burch, a member of the faculty of Mills College and retiring vice-chairman of the General Federation's department of education; Dr. Willia A. Sutton, president, National Education Association; Mrs. John D. Sherman, a past president of the federation and presidential commissioner for the celebration of the George Washington bi-centennial, and Mrs. Vaughn W. Root, press chairman, Arkansas Federation of Women's Clubs.

"DEAR ME! WHAT A CLEAN, COOL FEELING!"

"For you brought a new kind of mouth comfort to me," might well be sung about PEBECO, the "iced" tooth paste. Its cool, clean taste, its delicate "bite," its refreshing after-taste telegraph joyfully to your mind that here is a dentifrice that performs. You feel it is working . . . your teeth are clean and white . . . you are its friend for life. Try this tooth paste a week . . . we know you'll be marching along singing its praises . . . and wondering why you ever did without it.

EATING A SWEET IN MID-AFTERNOON RESTORES VIGOR

Fatigue Quickly Overcome by Sugar Content of Candy, Cake or Beverage

"Fagged out" at four o'clock is an experience that nearly every business man and woman faces daily. As a matter of fact this condition has become so apparent that it has been studied by medical men and food scientists.

One of the best "remedies" discovered for this mid-afternoon fatigue was "something to eat." Experiments showed that when a few pieces of candy, ice cream or cookies were eaten, vitality was quickly restored. The same was true when a flavored beverage was drunk—such as water sweetened with sugar.

The refined sugar content of these foods is responsible for the renewed vigor. For when refined sugar is eaten it almost immediately supplies nourishment to the body. And when the system is nourished fatigue disappears.

American business people are fortunate in being near places where candy, ice cream and beverages are sold. With practically no loss of time and very little expense, a mid-afternoon snack can be enjoyed. Most foods are more delicious and nourishing with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

Cathie's Trial Attracts Curious Crowd

CHAPTER XLIV

The trial was on.

Cathie sat in the place they had given, and looked down at her hands. Ma sat beside her, her gentle eyes staring straight ahead, chin up, good black hat creeping steadily backward by the pugnacious tilt of her chin.

Dear Ma . . . dear, brave Ma . . . The shadow of a smile touched Cathie's reddened lips . . . Reddening them had been Mr. Allan's idea. He wanted her pale, he said, but not washed out. . . There was so much about looking just right in this trial business, Cathie hadn't known.

Ma was perfect, he had said. Cathie's heart, welled in loving gratitude. Ma had steeled herself to go without the widow's veil with its protecting dark mesh. Just at first when she came in broken-hearted wonderment to the jail she had worn it, as a protection for her poor, tear-streaked face. . . But now, now that she had had time to prepare herself she was getting along without it. She was showing the world how little all this affected her . . . Her Cathie was innocent . . . nothing to worry about, just a formality . . . Proud head, hands clasped . . . Oh, Cathie knew what she was thinking . . . Poor, darling Ma. . . .

A warning look from Mr. Allan. Cathie bit her trembling lip. If Ma could be brave, she could, too.

The curious crowded the courtroom. Some of them had been sitting for hours, ever since early morning. Cathie saw the sea of faces, curious, staring, when she lifted her eyes.

Here and there someone forced herself on her consciousness. A stout, red-faced woman had brought a child, a little boy who wiggled and wanted to slide off of her lap.

A bailiff spoke to her.

Studies Jury

"I have as much right as anyone else to be here!" she cried, in a high, shrill voice. But the little boy was frightened, and burst out crying. The woman left angrily, carrying the screaming child in her arms. Cathie got one last look at her round, red face, taut with anger. Saw the child's puckered face, and his little clenched fists, hoped the mother wouldn't spank him once she was out of the room. She looked like that kind of a woman.

Cathie looked at the jury, that it had taken them so long to decide upon.

They looked cold and inimical to Cathie. Four middle-aged men, one with a greasy gray suit. A young and attractive youth, hardly more than a boy, with two jeweled fraternity pins showing on his vest when he moved, as he did frequently, struggling for comfort in the hard, high-backed chair. The others were women, most of them housewives, with the air of having struggled to get the breakfast dishes done, and the children off to school, and still get to court on time.

They looked at Cathie curiously. "So that's the way a murderess looks," she thought their faces said.

She wondered how she looked. The attorneys had talked so much about how she must behave in court. She was wearing the black faille silk dress she had worn on the day she went to jail. It had been newly cleaned and pressed, and the narrow piping of white around the neck and at the edge of the cuffs looked nice, she thought. She knew that her glowing, natural color was gone, and her softly curling hair did not glisten as it did in the days when Marguerite used to brush it, and set it in big, soft waves. But that couldn't be helped.

Case Outlined

She wasn't much interested in the trial. It progressed so slowly. The judge with his clipped little mustache and his nice gray hair made her think a little of Mr. Farnsworth. He had a cold, and Cathie was afraid that his head ached, because he kept taking off his glasses and wiping them on a small piece of pink cloth he kept in his upper waistcoat pocket. When his glasses were off his eyes looked strained and his flesh looked puffed and dark under the eyes . . . just the way Mr. Farnsworth's used to.

They were days, just getting the jury. It was warm. People drowsed in their chairs. From the open windows came the noises, the rumble of street cars, automobiles stopping, grinding gears.

"A little louder, please!" the district attorney kept asking curtly, but nobody bothered much. They were just waiting . . . waiting for the preliminaries to be over . . . waiting for something interesting to happen.

Cathie drowsed too . . . It was all very dull. All of a sudden she sat up with a start. Mr. Macmillan, the tall, black-browed district attorney was talking. He was making an address to the jury:

"If the court please, and ladies and gentlemen of the jury, the People will prove that on the 4th day of April last year Alfred Avery Farnsworth took into his employ as a stenographer in the firm of Vaughan and Farnsworth, Consulting Engineers, this defendant Catherine Farnsworth, or Catherine Paige as she was then known.

"This Catherine Farnsworth, or, Catherine Paige, was a girl of poor family. She was glad to get employment to help support herself and her family.

"We will prove that this defendant, Catherine Farnsworth, was ambitious. She applied herself at her work. She kept aloof from her fellow workers. She wormed her way into her employer's affections.

"On the 27th of October, less than seven months after meeting Alfred Farnsworth for the first time, she became his wife. It was a hurried marriage. Mr. Farnsworth's best friends did not know of it until after it had taken place. Mr. Horace Vaughan, his senior partner, did not know of it. His own son, Chester T. Farnsworth, was not informed of it.

"Alfred Farnsworth was at that time 68 years of age. His bride was 19.

Cathie Accused

"We will prove that this 68-year-old bridegroom showered every luxury upon the defendant. He gave her unlimited credit at department stores. He gave her unlimited credit at the bank. He settled money upon her family. He was in every way a devoted and indulgent husband.

"And we will prove by a chain of circumstances beyond and to the exclusion of any reasonable doubt, that this kind and generous old man, Alfred Avery Farnsworth, was murdered in his bed while he slept, between the hours of 12 midnight and 1 a. m. on the morning of April 7th by Catherine Farnsworth, his bride of six months. . . .

"We will prove. . . ."

Beyond the bulk of the menacing figure swaying its long arms, pointing its finger, calling her cruel . . . cold-blooded . . . calculating . . . murderess . . . Cathie saw her mother. Saw Mary Paige sitting up straight as a ramrod . . . white-faced, contemptuous, furious . . . fighting mad. . . .

Something in Cathie seemed to crack. She thought, "Now I'm going to faint . . . I'm going to slide right out of my chair onto the floor and lie there. . . . I've got to cover my face. . . . I can't stand them all looking at me . . . looking at me. . . ."

But she didn't faint. She didn't move. She sat immobile, waxy-faced, half unconscious, and the district attorney's words pattered all about her, and never penetrated her numbed brain at all.

Short Recess

Some time later she realized that he had stopped talking. He was through telling what the People were going to prove about Catherine Farnsworth.

Mr. Allan was on his feet. "At this time, if your honor please," he was saying in his smooth, rich voice so different from the district attorney's harsh, loud one, "the defendant respectfully asks that the jury be instructed that the opening statement of the district attorney is not evidence in the case."

The judge put on his glasses again. He said in his nice, tired voice, "I suppose that you understand, ladies and gentlemen, that any statement made by the attorneys is not evidence. It is merely an outline of what the district attorney expects to produce in the way of testimony here, in order that you may more clearly understand the case."

Then he got up and walked out using a little door in the rear of the room.

Mr. Allan wiped his bald head. "There will be a 10-minute recess," he explained to Cathie.

Cathie looked down at her hands. A 10-minute recess in the trial for her life.

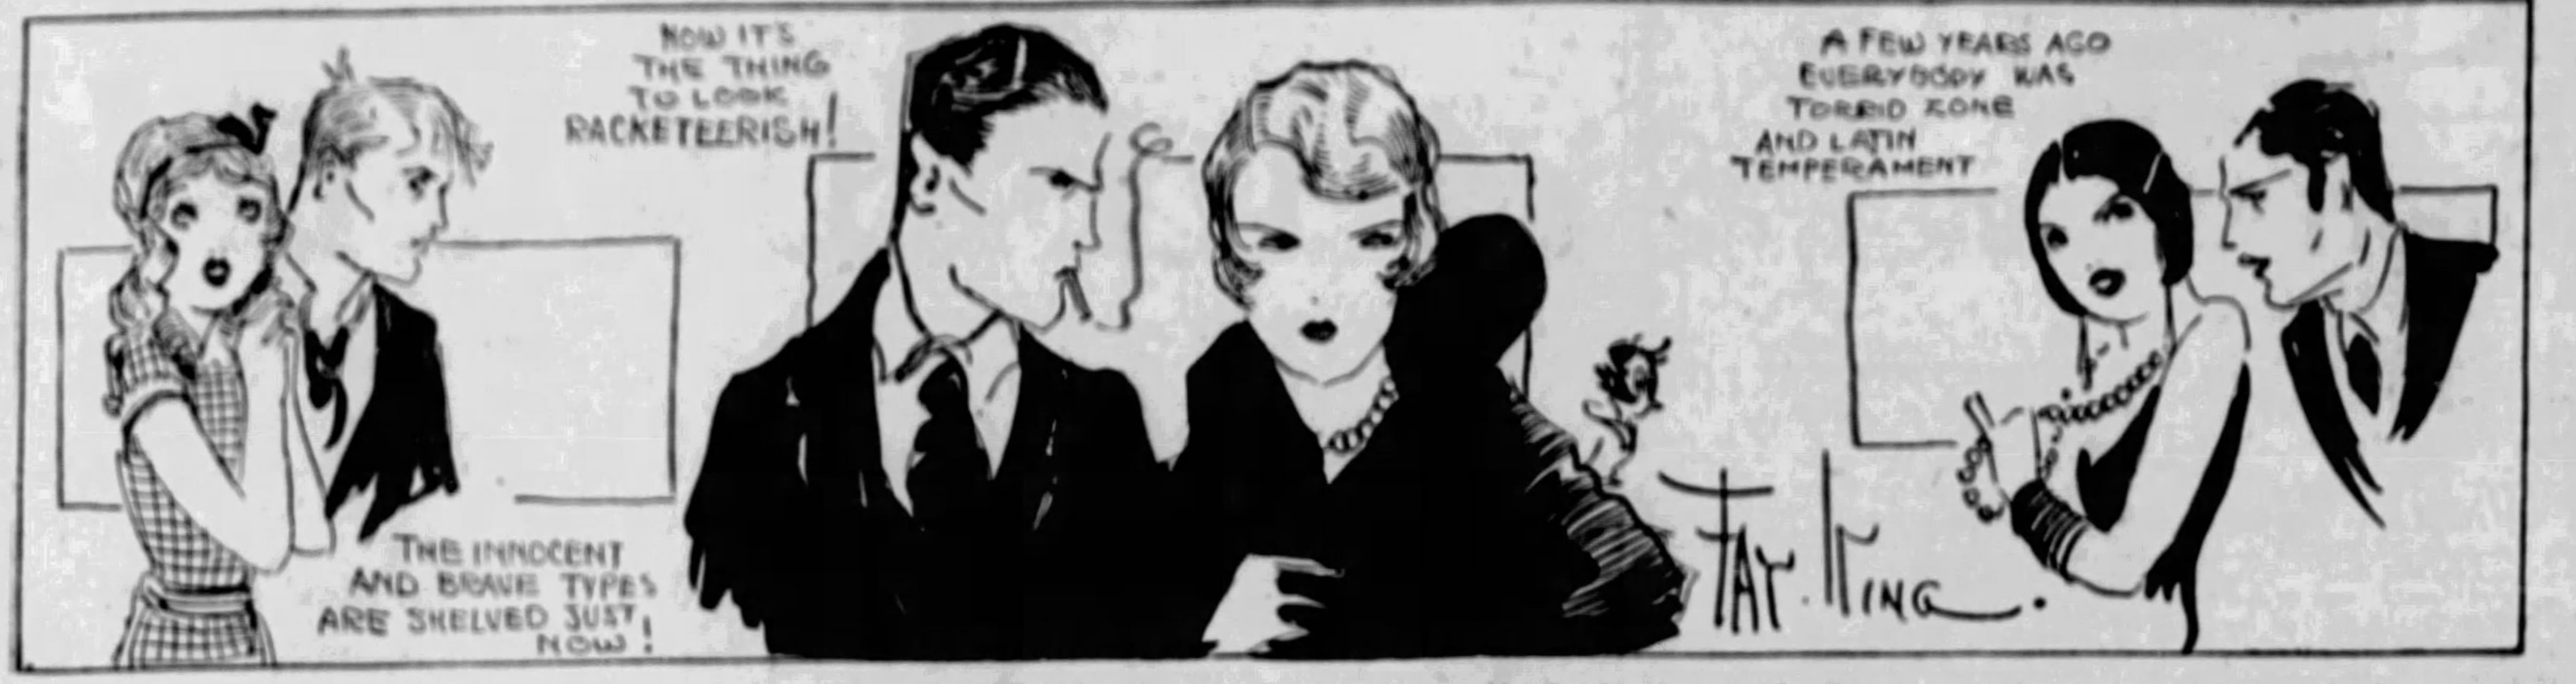
Household Hints

Don't work with soiled irons and expect to get through without smudges on your clothes. It just can't be done. Keep your irons clean.

One housewife mended her leaky refrigerator pan by melting paraffin and pouring it over the crack. She has used it for a year with splendid success.

If the tablecloth wears out around the edge of the table, cut off on this line and use the outside portion to form a false hem about three inches wide. Slip the edge of the cloth between the two edges of the fold and baste together. Then have it hemstitched along the line of bastings. You now have a splendid lunch cloth at very little cost.

Beneath Our Ritzy-Rough Manners Fay King Finds Us Sentimental



THE INNOCENT AND BRAVE TYPES ARE SHELVED JUST NOW!
NOW IT'S THE THING TO LOOK RACKETEERISH!
A FEW YEARS AGO EVERYBODY WAS TORRID ZONE AND LATIN TEMPERAMENT
FAY KING

By FAY KING

Manners are more a matter of mode than mood. Like styles, they travel in a cycle.

Just now the manner a la mode is to be hardboiled and decidely riff-rough.

Conversation is full of crook talk. Master-minding by wisecrackers and defying law and convention is considered current "class."

But we'll soon tire of running around looking and acting like racketeers. Manners will swing around to something else again.

It doesn't actually make much difference whether the current mode of manners is hot Latin romance, rustic shyness, or, as now, the old calculating ritzy-rough stuff.

With the majority the manner of the moment is nothing more than the prevailing gesture.

Beneath it they remain their worthy selves, sincere and sentimental.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Loves Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Travelers Bid Hasty Adieu to Philip Veritzen

"At ten tomorrow!" Lillian repeated Philip Veritzen's promise with an air of enthusiastic approval. "That's the best piece of news Harry will have heard since Lindbergh flew over the ocean. Shall I tell him to have the office chairs dusted and the force lined up with flags and bouquets, ready to strike up 'Hail to the Chief' when you open the door? You'd better get your best frock ready, Madge, so you can lead the line."

Her tone and words were distinctly provocative, and I was not surprised to see Philip Veritzen's eyes flash ominously.

"I beg of you, Lillian," he said, "I know your merry humor, but I trust there is no slightest thought in your mind of letting anyone save your husband know of my return. I must insist upon secrecy until I myself shall go to my office. I—"

"I can be bribed," she said gaily. "This man," indicating the garage attendant, "will be how long?" She smiled at the man changing the spare, as she put the question to him.

"Five minutes, maybe less," the man responded.

"Just time for a hot dog," Lillian laughed. "There's a place just across the street. I spotted it as we came in. If you'll buy me one, Phil, I'll be mum as eight little clamlets about anything you wish me to keep hidden in my buzzom."

She took his arm and walked him briskly away. As soon as my employer was safely out of the garage I cautiously lifted the corner of the blanket beneath which Mary had dived at her first glimpse of Noel's father.

"Are you all right, child?" I asked anxiously.

"Put your handkerchief over your mouth," she muttered chokingly, and when I had obeyed her she emitted a patiently satisfactory sneeze.

"Gee! I needed that," she whispered when she had caught her breath back, adding admiringly: "I sure have to hand it to Mrs. Underwood. She pulled that stunt just in time. I'd have been a 'damned unpleasant body' in another minute, only dry instead of 'damp.'"

"I didn't know you young moderns ever read Dickens," I said idly.

"Noel's a shark on him," she answered as if that explained everything. "You'll let me know when they head this way, won't you?" she added anxiously.

"Yes, I'll tell you," I said. "But you heard what the garage man said. I imagine we'll be turned around with the car headed toward home by the time they get back. Then we'll only have to pick up Mrs. Underwood. There!" as the car was lowered and the jack taken out. "He only has to clamp the blown tire on the spare rack. Better get under again if you're determined not to see Mr. Veritzen."

"I never want to see the old hyena again," she said vindictively as she pulled the blanket over her head again. A minute later the garage man came to the side of the car.

"Everything's O. K. ma'am," he said, and when I had paid him I backed the car out of the garage and headed it toward New York. Lillian and Mr. Veritzen came up to the car a few seconds later, and I hurried our farewells, also our pace down the road until we had rounded the next corner.

"All right, Mary," I called, and she wriggled from beneath the blankets.

"I'm a wreck, also a mess," she said ruefully, "but there's no use my brushing off. I'll only have to dive under again when he passes us, as he's bound to do. In the meantime I'm going to kneel on the seat and watch the road like a hawk."

"You won't have to do that long, Mary," I said. "The very next garage which has a restaurant attached we're going to drive this car inside and have the tire repaired while we wait in the restaurant. There we'll watch for the passing of Mr. Veritzen's car, and only when it is well out of sight will we come out. We'll follow him to New York, instead of preceding him."

"But suppose his car doesn't get fixed for a long time, or suppose he goes in another direction," Mary protested anxiously.

"Did you note the name of that garage?" Lillian asked me.

"Yes." I named it.

"Then," Lillian continued resourcefully, "if he doesn't come past here during the next hour I'll telephone the garage, ask if he's still there, and, with a great show of perturbation, tell him we've been thinking he'd catch up to us and I'm afraid I won't see him, and therefore want to find out where Harry can telephone him tonight. Then we'll figure out something else to do."

"I know what," Mary said triumphantly. "I don't know why I didn't think of it before. Take me to the nearest railroad station. I'll meet you at the hotel."

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Wednesday, October 15

The planetary operations for this day seem to make for a most aggressive campaign directed toward achieving the goal of high ambitions. There will be a fine impetus to make bold strokes toward this end, but this may be somewhat stultified by indulgence in tempestuous and headlong actions. With proper deliberation and conservative manipulation, all affairs should be blessed by increase, advancement and gratifying fruition to hopes and wishes, but be careful if in the employment of others.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year in which high hopes and aspirations may meet splendid fulfilment, attended by increase of finances, personal promotion or preferments and general prosperity and happiness.

A child born on this day should have fine equipment for success, prosperity and high adventure in life.

Woman—Man's Coral Reef

Household Hint: To remove paint, kiss a girl on the cheek. The lip-rouge is probably kissproof.

The first thing a woman misses when she marries is the applause; the first thing a man misses is the exits and the intermissions.

Once in the average man's life, a woman occupies his whole heart, after that he divides it up into little compartments and keeps it constantly filled with transients.

Alas, love is what turns a wild hope into a tame memory, a glittering infatuation into a dull duty, and a big thrill into a little regret.

Marrying a wild woman in order to tame her and "save her from herself" always gives a man a big, noble purpose in life—and a magnificent opportunity for self-sacrifice.

To one girl, who yearns to be a man's guiding star, these days, there are ninety-nine praying to be his "coral reef."

The honeymoon is not over, until the bridegroom glances up, some evening, and wonders just what happened to him, that he should find himself sitting opposite the same girl, every day, at dinner.

"What a woman calls her "judgment" is colored by her emotions, her heart or her vanity; what a man calls his "judgment" is usually colored by his digestion, his gout, or his liver.

When a man marries, he ceases to make a lot of women happy by making love to them—and begins making one woman unhappy by forgetting to make love to her.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

After Dinner Entertainment

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

My husband and I are giving a dinner at a hotel on the evening of our first year anniversary for the bridal party. There are going to be 12 and I am at a loss to know just how to entertain them after we have finished our dinner. We are all in our early twenties.

It would be so kind if you would suggest something for us to do that would not carry much expense. We are going to have a private dining room and are not going to have any entertainment.

B. O'D.

Why not plan to have a late dinner, say half after 8 o'clock, and then have the dinner served leisurely. In the meantime there will be much conversation and general merriment, and it will be 11 o'clock before you know it, and then it will be time for the guests to go home. There isn't any reason why, when you are giving a dinner of this kind, you should plan for any form of entertainment after the dinner. The dinner itself can be so graciously done, especially since you are to have your own room, that this may constitute the complete evening's entertainment. It all depends on the hostess and the host if such a party "goes."

Proper Address

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please let me know which would be the correct way to address a letter to my son's wife? I am a widower, and, my name being John S. Smith, my son's name is John S. Smith, Jr.

I say that her letters should be addressed to Mrs. John S. Smith, Jr., and not to Mrs. John S. Smith, as people may not know that I am a widower or may think I have married again.

J. S. S.

You are correct. Your letters to your son's wife should be addressed to "Mrs. John S. Smith, Jr." Your son is Mr. John S. Smith, Jr. (or "junior," if you spell the word with a small letter), and therefore his wife is Mrs. John S. Smith, Jr.

Calling Cards

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I want to have some new calling cards made and would like to know what is correct. Mrs. John James Smith, or Mrs. John Smith? I do not especially fancy my husband's second name.

READER.

If you do not like your husband's middle name, and if your husband has no objection to your omitting it (as I am sure that he will not have), by all means omit it on your visiting-cards. So many people now disregard middle names, especially if they are not especially attractive.

The Hotel Register

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My mother and brother are taking a trip and will stop at a hotel for one night. Who should sign the register? How should it be signed? My brother is 24 years of age.

A CONSTANT READER OF YOUR COLUMN...

Your brother signs the register without the "Mr.":

John Allen, Los Angeles, Cal.

Your mother signs:

Mrs. Henry Allen, Los Angeles, Cal.

Each may sign the register, or your brother may sign for both."

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Has a Man Any Right to Offer a Soiled Life To a Decent Girl?

Remember "Othello?"

He was the Big, Bold Bozo who wrote to say that he liked his women refined, and who expected some day to settle down with a modest violet who had kept herself away from the Bright Lights, and worthy of that glorious honor.

But was Othello himself content to also wait in chaste seclusion until the Great Day?

No, my dears, he was not! Anything but! Othello was stepping plenty . . . and demanding that certain ladies get wild and step with him!

"For men," said he, "have to have their fling, and they expect certain girls to help them at it. But also they expect others to wait and keep themselves worthy for the day when they wish to settle down."

Then—just so the Waiting Violets wouldn't get discouraged—Othello assured them that they were really the only ones the men respected!

Was his letter welcomed with big, happy sobs of gratitude from the girls? Judge for yourself. Here's Margie, speaking for the outfit:

"Dear Sally:

"This is the first time I've ever written to a newspaper, though I read your column all the time, but I just can't resist the temptation to write and give you my opinion of that nitwit who signed himself 'Othello.'

"Where does he get his gall, anyway? I guess he's just one of those dumb eggs who likes to hear himself talk. Or if he does have any brains, he never uses them.

"Believe me! I certainly would like to meet him, face to face, and just tell him what I think of him! I suppose he thinks he's got special privileges as a 'man' to do just as he pleases. And then he thinks some nice girl is going to simply fall around his neck because he condescends to notice her! Well, I'm warning him, he'd better stay away from this one. I would fall around his neck—yes—with a rope and a dose of rat poison!

"He thinks he can make all kinds of a mucker of himself, and then have the right to marry some girl who has kept herself 'dignified and clean!' Sure! We decent girls are going to keep ourselves that way for the privilege (?) of grabbing off some soiled linen like him—I don't think!

"My private opinion is that he is nothing but just a plain bum out for a good time wherever he can get it. And as for the education he is so careful to mention in his letter, I guess it only consists in being educated to act wild and get along with wild women.

"And why does he pick that kind of girl? I'll bet it's because he is so dumb and stupid that he couldn't interest any other kind . . . . and couldn't converse with an intelligent, clean-minded one. If he could, he wouldn't be wasting his wonderful education (if any) on such. My opinion is that no decent woman would look at him . . . and they certainly wouldn't if they knew how he usually amused himself.

"So this idea of playing 'em wild and marrying 'em pure is 'the truth among men, is 'it? Well, not among the decent, self-respecting men that I know!

"Maybe grandma had to stand for something like that, but believe me, that day is gone forever! Nowadays girls take a pretty good, straight look at a fellow before they murmur 'Yes' to him. And believe me, they don't want anything like him!

"And isn't that fair? If 'Othello' wants a fine clean girl to marry, why shouldn't the girl want a fine clean man? A man who has too much respect for himself to root around in the gutter? Is there anything wrong with that? I'll say there isn't, and that's the only kind I'd ever consider marrying, believe you me! I don't want anything off the Municipal Dump, so this bozo needn't bother 'dropping in' on me. If he does, he'll get a swift kick.

"I am only a young girl, having a good time in a decent and clean manner, and that conceited, contemptible letter he wrote just made my blood boil! In my estimation, he is lower than a rat. And I am not the only one of this opinion. I have quite a few backers, and they're not all girls, either.

"MARGIE."

And that, though Margie didn't know it, is much, much more than one sassy letter from one mad little girl. It's history. Fifty years ago . . . 20 years ago . . . no girl would have written that letter. Plenty had to happen to men and women before a girl dared demand as much decency from a man as he demanded from her.

But now—wised up and jobbed up—Miss America doesn't have to take what comes and be content. She can make her own terms . . . and force Othello to take 'em or leave 'em.

If he doesn't want a second-hand rose—neither does she! Why should she take anyone's leavings?

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Malnutrition and Child's Diet

There is no greater blessing than a mother's watchful care. It is her attention to proper feeding that makes her children build up strong and vigorous bodies. This oversight of their eating should not cease with babyhood but must continue from school age through adolescence.

DR. COPELAND

How is a mother to know whether her child is receiving the proper food and whether his weight is what it should be? One of the very best tests is noting daily whether the child conforms to the standard set up for the average healthy child of the same age and whether he makes a continuous gain in growth and weight.

Books have been written upon the subject and are made available by all libraries. Cards are printed with full data concerning the proper procedure. Or your doctor can guide you in it.

Failure to gain weight points to malnutrition. Malnutrition means underweight and undernourishment. This condition is a real danger to the growing child. If it is not quickly discovered and remedied, the result may be life long ill health or under par condition.

It has been said that approximately one-third of American children are suffering from malnutrition. This is true of the rich, even more so than of the poor.

This condition may result from various causes. Besides insufficient or improper food, it may be brought about by some physical defect, such as decayed teeth, diseased tonsils or adenoids. It may arise from undernourishment caused by a severe illness. It may mean poor health habits—lack of rest and proper sleep, or too little fresh air and sunshine. Any of these will pull down a child's health in quick order.

If your child is listless, lacking in vitality, nervous, fretful, tires easily so that he seems lazy, then something had better be done about it. He should be under a doctor's care. If he is underweight there must be an immediate and systematic building up for health.

Such a child should have a nourishing breakfast with which to start off the day. He should also have a lunch in the morning halfway between breakfast and luncheon. This system will help to make up a greater weight gain and provide for rapid growth.

A normal child requires as much food as does an adult. This fact is not always recognized. So if your growing boy or girl eats voraciously, you will know that the food is really needed.

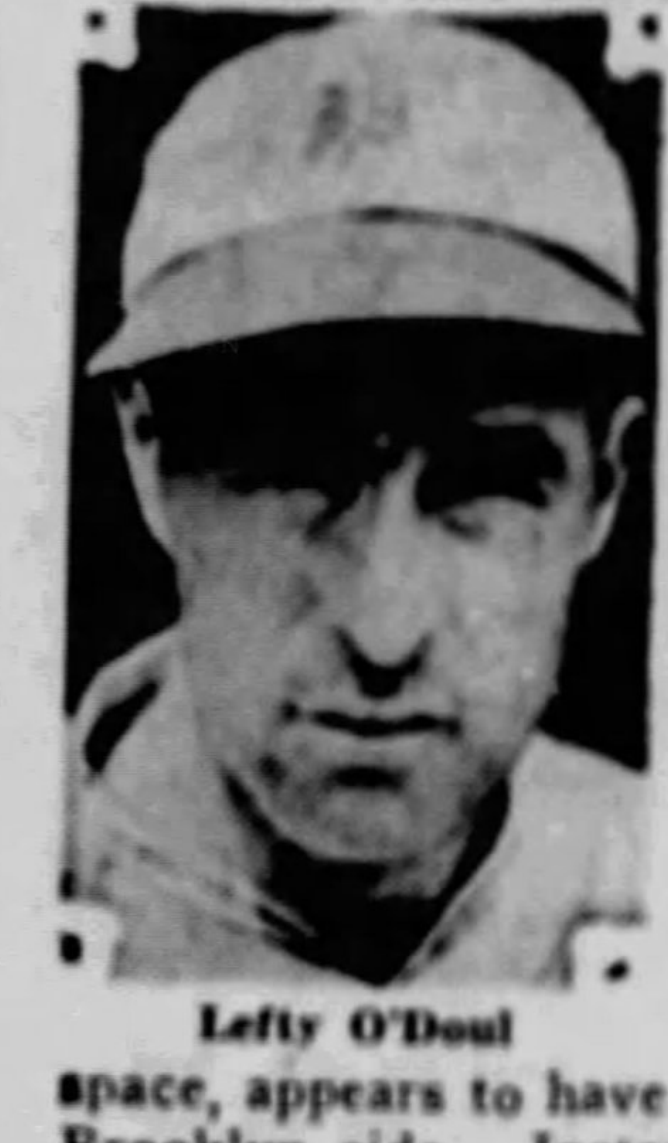
QUAKER OWNER LETS MANY STARS GO

OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT OF the closing of the deal for the transfer of Outfielder Lefty O'Doul and Second Baseman Fresco Thompson from the Phillies to the Robins did not come as a surprise to baseball followers, as it had been known for some time that the trade was all "set" and that its completion was only a question of a few days. Even a denial only yesterday by President Frank B. York, of the Brooklyn club, failed to convince the fans that early reports were incorrect, and his subsequent confirmation of the deal proved that the rumors which had sprung up during the World Series, and published in the Sun-Telegraph at the time, were well founded.



Lefty O'Doul

The delay, aside from the desire of the owners to wait until the World Series was over in order to assure greater publicity and more newspaper space, appears to have been due to a changing of terms on the Brooklyn side. Instead of Dudley Moss, Harvey Hendrick, Jake Flowers and Gordon Slade, as originally reported, the Robins give up Pitcher Jumbo Elliott and Clise Dudley and Outfielder Lee, together with a "cash consideration."

THAT OLD TERM "cash consideration" has a familiar sound in connection with deals made by the Philadelphia club. As usual, President Baker appears to have been actuated more by a desire to take advantage of a chance to sell players for cash than to strengthen his own club. It would be surprising if the Philly owner ever were to make a deal that did not involve money on the side, with himself on the receiving end.

Again he has parted with valuable ball players for a cash consideration, the names of O'Doul and Thompson being added to the long list of others whom Baker has sold for money, a list including Alexander, Killifer, Rixie, Bancroft, Stock, Whitted, Meadows, Rawlings, Stengel, Meusel, Carlson and many others. Elliott, though rated a good pitcher, did little more than break even with a club that was a pennant contender. Dudley did not win as many games as he lost and Lee was used only as a pinch-hitter. Philadelphia has not profited by the trade except in a financial way.

WHETHER THE ACQUISITION of O'Doul and Thompson will bring to the Robins the pennant success which they were in a fair way to realize this year until the Cards invaded Brooklyn late in the season and spilled them for three games in a row, is a question.

O'Doul is only a fair left-fielder, and his defensive value is further lessened by the fact that he has a poor throwing arm. Thompson had a big year in 1929, but 1930 found him in a slump that kept him from ranking among the game's best second sackers, though at that he probably would take a brace in Brooklyn and at least prove more valuable than Finn, Flowers or Moore.

Fresco Thompson

BUT IN A batting way—oh, boy! That Flatbush gang will pack a murderous punch that threatens to make life a burden to many a National League pitcher. Look over the batting order down to the pitcher: Herman, .393; O'Doul, .383; Bissonnette, .335; Frederick, .334; Wright, .321; Lopez, .313; Gilbert, .294, and Thompson, .284. And of the two below .300, it was only a slump during the last few weeks of the campaign that put Gilbert there, and Thompson, judging from his 1929 record, is exactly 40 points better than his average for 1930 would indicate. Hitting alone won't win pennants, but with fair pitching the Robins threaten to make a lot of trouble for other flag aspirants.

QUERIES ARE STILL being received as to why the victory of the A's in the fifth game of the World Series was not credited to George Earnshaw instead of to Bob Grove, inasmuch as Earnshaw pitched seven innings to Grove's two, allowing no runs and only two hits during his term of mound service.

The explanation is that Grove went in with the clubs on even terms, neither having scored, and therefore was responsible for the outcome of the game, win or lose. Regardless of the distance he pitched, as compared with that pitched by Earnshaw, the left-hander was in the position of starting what amounted to a new game.

GROVE HAD PITCHED an inning, the eighth, before the A's in the ninth made the two runs that gave them the game. That made a difference. If those two runs had been scored in the eighth, before Grove went on the hill, the victory would have been credited to Earnshaw, as in that event the game would have been won before Grove ever appeared in it.

Lefty Grove

But as it was, the score was still tied after Grove had pitched an inning. It was his game to win or lose, therefore, just as if he were starting a new one.

THE SCORING RULES provide that "where the relieving pitcher goes in with the score tied on even innings, he must win or lose the game, regardless of the number of innings or how effectively the first pitcher may have pitched. If the first pitcher is relieved with the score in his favor, and later the score is tied up off the second pitcher, then the latter wins or loses. A tie game at any stage, with no one on base, must be considered to all intents and purposes as the start of a new game for the second pitcher. If a pitcher is retired from the game, say, at the end of eight innings, with the score against him, but his team comes first to bat in the ninth and scores enough runs to win, give the win to the retiring pitcher and not to the one who pitches out the last half of the ninth. Where such a condition arises prior to the final inning, award the game to the pitcher who did the better work. If in doubt about this, give it to the man who pitched the greater number of innings." If the A's had scored their two runs in the eighth inning, therefore, before Grove started to pitch, the victory would have gone to Earnshaw, but as they did not win until Grove had pitched an inning there was no course open but to give it to the southpaw.

FOOTBALL STYLES OUT on the Pacific coast are running to dreadnaught backfields this season. Three of the leading teams of California are presenting more weight and power behind the line than has been the case for many campaigns. It is doubtful if all three ever carried such heavy backs in the same year.

The University of California has a ponderous combination in Garrity, Hickingbotham, Griffiths and Gill that will average more than 190 pounds per man, and the University of Southern California is able to duplicate those weight figures with Pinckert, Duffield, Musick and Apsit.

BUT AT STANFORD, Pop Warner has both of his state rivals beaten in backfield weight, presenting in Rothert, Hillman, Caglieri and Simkins a quartet averaging an even 200 pounds per man. With

ROBINS, PHILS, BRAVES, CUBS IN DEALS

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—The winter trading season in the ranks of the major baseball leagues was given an auspicious start today with the announcement of three important exchanges.

In the most important transaction of the day, Frank (Lefty) O'Doul, outfielder, and Fresco Thompson, second baseman, of the Philadelphia Phillies, go to the Brooklyn Robins in exchange for Pitchers Jim Elliott and Clise Dudley; Hal Lee, outfielder, and an unannounced cash consideration. Announcement of the trade was made by officials of the Brooklyn club.

The Chicago Cubs, who lost the National League pennant to the St. Louis Cardinals in the closing stages of the 1930 race, were involved in two deals. In the first they obtained Pitcher Bob Smith and Outfielder Jimmy Welsh from the Boston Braves in exchange for Wesley Schulmerick, outfielder, and William McAfee, Chicago Cub mound recruit, who has been playing for the Los Angeles club of the Pacific Coast League, owned by the Cubs.

The Cubs also announced the purchase of Pitcher Lester Sweetland from the Phillies for a cash consideration.

The addition of O'Doul gives the Robins one of the outstanding sluggers of the National League. In 1929 he led the league in hitting.

ARRANGED AT MEETING

The Brooklyn-Philadelphia deal was arranged at a conference in New York between President Frank B. York, of the Brooklyn Club, and William F. Baker, Phillies' president.

It had been reported for several days that O'Doul, a mighty slugger, and Thompson, a highly valuable infielder, were to go to the Robins. The principal surprise in connection with the deal was the trading of Jumbo Jim Elliott, a huge and capable pitcher, whom the Phillies expect to help solve their hurling problems.

O'Doul was fourth in the National League in batting in the season just past, hitting .383 to finish right behind Terry, of the Giants; Herman, of Brooklyn, and Klein, of Philadelphia. His extra base wallops included 22 home runs. He is 33 years old and has been a member of the Yankees, Red Sox, Cubs and Giants in the course of his career.

Thompson batted .284 and fielded brilliantly. The Alabaman is 27 years old and has been the second baseman of the Phillies for the last four years.

Elliott this season won 10 games and lost 7 for an average of .588. Dudley won two and lost four.

Lee played in 22 games for Brooklyn this year, batting .162.

The amount of the cash consideration given by Brooklyn was not disclosed.

SECOND BIG DEAL

The Chicago deal was the second triangular deal involving Chicago and Los Angeles in as many seasons. Last year the Braves got Walter Berger, their home run sensation, from the Coast League, a piece of strategy credited with having much to do with extricating the team from its traditional place in the cellar.

Smith has pitched eight seasons for the Braves and has a good record. Welsh, who came to the Wigwam from Seattle five seasons ago, cost the club $50,000, but had a comparatively poor season last summer.

In bringing Schulmerick and McAfee to Boston, the club is continuing its policy of obtaining likely youngsters, said Edward Cunningham, secretary. He declined to reveal the amount of cash involved, but said the several trades "about evened it up."

Schulmerick hit for .387 last year, while McAfee, who was farmed out to the Reading club of the International League, won six and lost seven games.

EX-SWAT KING

Batting champion of the National League in 1929 with a mark of .398 in his first full season as a regular outfielder, O'Doul's rise as a slugger has been one of the most dramatic of baseball comebacks. He was a southpaw pitcher when he first sprang into some prominence in 1917, good enough to have a trial with the Yankees, but too wild to make much of an impression in the majors.

O'Doul switched to the outfield while with the Salt Lake club of the Pacific Coast League in 1924. With San Francisco in 1927, he was voted the Coast League's most valuable player, hitting .379, and was drafted by the New York Giants. Late in 1928, the Giants thought so little of him that he was traded, with a bundle of cash, to the Phillies for Outfielder Fred Leach.

The addition of O'Doul gives the Brooklyn club the heaviest hitting outfield in the major leagues, on a basis of the unofficial 1930 batting averages. These show Babe Herman's .393 and Johnny Frederick's .334 as companions for O'Doul's mark of .383.

FRANK CARIDEO AGAIN MEETS M'CURDY

By JESS CARVER

Not the least interesting feature of the coming Tech-Notre Dame (and how it's coming), at South Bend, Saturday, will be the second meeting betwixt Harry McCurdy and Frank Carideo, the rival quarterbacks.

Harry McCurdy

These boys hooked up for the first time in the Stadium here last year, with Carideo emerging with the honors of the day, principally because he was on the winning team and McCurdy was on the losing. At that, the Notre Dame field general sported an edge over McCurdy, and most other quarterbacks last year because he possessed what many of the others lacked, confidence, spelled with a big C.

McCurdy's play to date this year has been a revelation. He acts like a veteran of years of experience. His judgment is excellent; his handling of the ball on Tech's intricate formations accurate and precise. He passes while on the dead run in a manner that recalls Harpster and he's as certain and dependable at the position of safety man as any back I've seen this year.

QUITE A GUY

In short, you may attribute much of Carnegie's sensational success so far this year to the zip and presence of Mac.

Carideo is the same cool, calculating director he was last year, when he made an all-America berth. He's been going great guns for Rockne to date, and it is on the shoulders of him and Joe Savoldi that the great Knute K. is pinning his hopes against Tech. There is no denying that Carideo is a good football player and that he knows how and when to shoot the works.

The Skibos came out of the game with Georgia Tech with only the usual bumps and bruises. Johnny Dreshar was the only one who was anywhere near badly hurt, Capt. Johnny suffering a badly bruised mitt. He probably got that from applauding the Kiltie Band.

Practice was resumed yesterday, a general signal drill being the order of the day. It is not likely that there will be any scrimmage his week, as Coach Waddell is taking no chances of wrecking any of the ball players before he gets 'em to South Bend.

PHILLY GETS ICE PIRATES

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 14.—(INS.)—Philadelphia ice hockey fans will have the chance this season of witnessing major league hockey for the first time. The Pittsburgh franchise of the National League, owned by Benny Leonard, has been transferred to this city and the team in the future will play at the same rinks as have been used by the Arrows, the Philadelphia club in the Canadian-American League.

REPORT CONFIRMED

Attorney James F. Callahan, president of the Pittsburgh Hockey Club, today confirmed the announcement that the local franchise in the National League had been transferred to Philadelphia, and will be operated there until such time as accommodations for the ice sport are greatly improved here.

The decision to transfer the franchise was reached recently when plans for the alteration of the interior of Duquesne Garden fell through.

PORT CHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Clarence H. DeMar, veteran of Keene, N. H., yesterday ran 65 entries into the ground to win the sixth annual National marathon from New York City to Port Chester, a distance of 26 miles. His time was two hours, 46 minutes and 15 seconds.

Nick Flatley, Boston Sports Writer, Dies

BOSTON, Oct. 14.—Nicholas J. (Nick) Flatley, feature sport writer on the Boston Evening American, a Hearst newspaper, died early last evening at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Brighton. Flatley had been seriously ill of high blood pressure since early in July. He was removed to the hospital three weeks ago and failed to respond to treatment.

He was born in South Boston, September 7, 1886, graduated from Boston College in 1907, entered newspaper work with the Boston Traveler, then came to the Boston American in 1913 and had been on the staff of that paper until his illness compelled him to give up work.

During the recent World Series, members of the Baseball Writers' Association passed resolutions offering their best wishes and hope for speedy recovery. He was universally well liked and was known throughout the country as an authority on sports.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Catherine Connell, of Malden, Mass.; one sister and three brothers.

Tiny Smith Victor Over Edwards

Paul Oger, 144½, Washington, won over Hans Roberts, 145, Pittsburgh, in eight rounds. Roberts was floored three times for counts of nine, and on two other occasions for shorter counts.

Joe Wolcott, 144½, Washington, defeated George Peck, 146, Pittsburgh, in six rounds.

GRID OFFICIALS ALL WET

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Not that it makes any particular difference now, but in the cold gray, dawn of the morning after, it has been discovered that one of the Yale touchdowns against Georgia Saturday was not in accord with the football statues, made and provided in such cases.

The miscarriage of justice came at the beginning of the second half when Yale was leading Georgia by a score of 7-to-6 and then increased the count to 14 to 6.

Yale kicked off. The ball struck in the arms of Kelly, Georgia back, who ran a few steps to his own 20-yard line, where he was hit hard by Capt. Vincent, of Yale. With the impact of the Yale tackle's body, the ball bounded from the arms of Kelly, straight into the hands of Barres, Yale end.

Barres caught the ball in his stride and dashed straight ahead over the goal line.

The officials evidently overlooked Rule 6, governing the kickoff, for without a question the touchdown was allowed and the ball placed in position for the try for extra point, which was quickly added by Sullivan's toe. Rule 6 says:

"If the ball is recovered by a player of the receiving team before it is declared dead, he may run with it, pass it backward or kick it; if the ball is recovered by a player of the kicking team the ball is dead at the point of recovery."

Vaccinations Bring Light Grid Drill

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Coach Dick Hanley yesterday called off scrimmage at Northwestern and announced that there would be nothing but signal drill this week. Vaccination of every member of the squad because of exposure to Bruder's smallpox made it necessary for Hanley to revise his plans for shaping his team for the Illinois game Saturday The drill was short, and included walking-through plays and a kicking session for Lee Hanley and Pug Rentner.

Tech Grid-graph to Follow Irish Game

Tartan followers who will find it impossible to make the trip to South Bend for Carnegie's battle with Notre Dame next Saturday will have an opportunity to follow the play almost as closely as those who are in the Irish stadium.

Roland Davis, secretary of the Carnegie Tech Branch Y. M. C. A., has arranged to set his big grid-graph up in the gymnasium and connect it with a private telegraph wire to the Notre Dame stadium. Each play will be graphically unfolded on the mechanical contrivance.

The game is to start at 2 o'clock, Pittsburgh time, and the graph will be in operation seconds after the opening kickoff. A nominal admission fee will be charged, and the gymnasium auditorium is expected to be jammed with Carnegie followers who were unable to make the journey west.

TITLE FIGHT SET

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Maxie Rosenbloom, light-heavyweight champion, will defend his title in Madison Square Garden October 22 in a 15-round match with Abie Bain, of Newark, N. J. The bout takes the place of a match between Justo Suarez and Kid Kaplan, lightweights, which has been shifted to October 17.

PIRATES BUY PITCHER

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

The Pirate management today announced the purchase over the draft route of Pitcher George Grant, of the Rochester Club, of the International League. It was the first move of the Buccaneer owners towards strengthening the team for the next campaign.

Grant, a righthander, is no raw recruit, he having had major-league experience in Cleveland and with the Browns of St. Louis. He is 27 years of age and apparently is built well for his pitching task. The new sharpshooter is 5 feet 11½ inches in height and weighs 175 pounds.

Pitching most of last year for Jersey City, cellar champions of the Class A. A. circuit, Grant could not show his best stuff, but after being acquired by Billy Southworth at Rochester, the pitcher swung into a winning stride. He won five and lost only one game as the Southworth entry forged ahead to another pennant. Grant then followed through in an impressive manner as the Redwings downed the Louisville Colonels in the post-season scrap of the two Class A. A. flag-winners.

Grant was a member of the Cleveland club in the two previous seasons. He made his debut in the majors with the Browns in 1923 and remained with that club through 1924. The Pirate scout who watched him in action thinks he will be a real aid to the club next year.

The drafted player increases the Pirate flinging staff to 13 men, as follows: Bednar, Bivin, Brame, French, Grant, Kennedy, Kremer, Mahaffey, Spencer, Swetonic, Vanusek, Walter and Wood.

Bivin hails from Davenport of

BELATED RALLY SNARES BOUT FOR EMMETT

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

The Rocco of the species is more deadly than the Hard Rock, it appears.

At least, so good ol' Tawm Heeney, the Granite Chin of Australia, discovered last night as he dropped a 10-round decision to Emmett Rocco, Ellwood City Italian, in the main bout before a packed house at Motor Square Garden.

George Panka, of Homestead, who recently lost the duke to Heeney in a close fight at the Meyers Bowl, sat in the second row at the ringside pulling for the Ol' Hard Rock to come through so he could get another crack at him, but now he'll have to fight the winner of last night's battle and make it a round robin. That's a natural aftermath.

RALLY TURNS TIDE

It was a blazing finish by Rocco that pulled the fray out of the fire for him. Off to a bad start in the first two rounds, he rallied to win the next two and then took a pasting in the next two, and, midway in the fight, it would have been a hardy bettor who would have given more than a plugged nickel for his chances.

Then, suddenly, with Referee Al Grayber constantly after him, urging him to quit holding, Emmett made a desperate dying splurge and began to crowd back the stalking Heeney. Soon he was beginning to open the old cuts, of which there are many on the grizzled warrior's face and head.

First came a trickle of blood from the left ear, then the cut on top of Honest Tom's head, that gushed blood in his Panka fight, was reopened and let the crimson seep out. Then the left eye went bad and the ninth round found Tom brushing blood out of the optic with his glove so he could see to carry on. Throughout the tenth, he was a gory mess was Tom, but he was fighting doggedly and futilely on, his head bloody but unbowed right down to the end.

The last four rounds were Rocco's by such wide margins that, coupled with his edges in the third and fourth, there was no doubt about his victory, and the decision was unanimous.

It was a fine comeback for Rocco, who was fighting to regain prestige after a two-round knockout by Tuffy Griffiths in Detroit a few weeks ago. Heeney was at his best through the fifth and sixth rounds. There were no knockdowns. Rocco was warned twice for low blows, the first time for a left and the second time for a right. Heeney had a 17-pound pull in the weights, scaling 205 against 188 at 3 p. m.

Patsy Pirrone, of Canton, O., 180, pounded out a victory over Frank Florian, of Cleveland, 181, in the eight-round semi-final, a drab affair, due to Florian's disinclination to lead. Florian proved himself a good catcher and little else, standing up under many barrages of heavy blows.

TRACY A SENSATION

Outshining all other contestants on the card was Jack Tracey, Negro newcomer from Louisville, who knocked out Tom McCaffrey, of Youngstown, in the first round of the second bout, after McCaffrey last week had stopped Al Becker, of Sheraden, in two rounds in the same ring. Tracey, weighing only 154 pounds against 158½ for McCaffrey, was a boxing and hitting revelation. Not unlike the late Joe Gans in appearance and catlike movements, and blocking and countering with the skill of a Jack Johnson, he outclassed his opponent, catching the latter's punches in midair with both hands and then measuring blows to the chin. He finally sent home a terrific clean left to the body, and McCaffrey went down as if shot. He was counted out getting up, and then a faux pas by the new timekeeper, who was being broken in, almost wound up the show in a riot.

As the referee finished his count, the bell rang and some of the fans thought it had saved McCaffrey. Then, when announcement was made that the round had gone only 2 minutes 33 seconds, they set up a booing and a free-for-all started in one end of the hall. The disorder continued through the announcing of the semi-final bout. What happened was that the new timer thought it was customary to ring the bell as the bout ended, even on a knockout, and he did so with the referee's final toll. The round actually had 27 seconds to go.

Tracey showed so much stuff in his short time in the ring that he should be brought back immediately against a good opponent.

OPENER IS SLUGFEST

Frank Novak, of the North Side, 196 pounds, was awarded the unanimous decision over Len Johnson, also of the North Side, 180, in the six-round opening bout, and the verdict was properly booed. The fight was a young "murder" throughout, with Johnson outboxing Novak in addition to cutting a deep gash in the latter's forehead in the first round and keeping it open throughout.

With the blood streaming from the wound, Novak rallied and sent down Johnson for a count of eight, only to be floored himself shortly afterward for nine. Johnson went down into the ropes for two later, but came back with a rousing right to the jaw as the opening round ended with the fans in hysterics.

Novak came back to outfight Johnson in the second round. Johnson then settled down, with both tired, to outbox Frank the remainder of the way, with the exception of the fifth round, when Novak did the bulk of the forcing. It was a close battle, but the decision belonged to Johnson.

Al Grayber and Joe Keally alternated as referees, with Frank Brown and Red Robinson acting as judges. Max Zeugschmidt and Norman Borland were the timers and Harry Klaas did the announcing. The Buck McTiernan-Bucky Lawless match was announced for next week.

LIONS PLAY ROTARIANS

By VERN SWARTSFAGER.

Edgewood's going to be a busy golfing ground today—and not just because Dave Broudy, the Stanley orchestra conductor, Reeves Espey, Ben Bright and another tried to chase the dew from the fairways bright and early this a. m. It seems that the Rotarians of Wilkinsburg plan on trying to cage the Lions of that same district, if Doc Guy D. Engle is to be believed, but, as they say in the circus, lions are cagey folk and may not wish to be caged—even in a golf team match. If there's anything left of the course after Broudy et al. get through with it, Professional Jimmy O'Donnell will start the Wilkinsburg Civic Club match on its way shortly after noon.

MRS. SHRIVER MEDALIST

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Oct. 14.—Mrs. B. R. Shriver, of Fox Chapel, Pittsburgh, yesterday won the medal with a 90 in the qualifying round of the fall women's championship at the Homestead course.

Lawrence M. Lloyd, of the Greenwich, was medalist of the annual event for men at the Cascade Club, leading with 37-39—76.

FREEMAN-BAKER MATCH

CLEVELAND, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Tommy Freeman, of Hot Springs, Ark., world welterweight boxing champion, has been matched against Sergeant Sammy Baker, in a 10-round non-title fight in Philadelphia, October 27, his manager, Tommy McGinty, has announced.

The Fox's [illegible] Golf Club is still one of the nice places in the eastern sector of golf play. President Harry McIntosh has seen to it that the greens are better than ever.

And now comes scholastic golf—Kiski prep took over Shady Side Academy, 28 to 2, in a team match on the Shady Side course, in Aspinwall, yesterday. Here's how—

Fordham Beats Boston College, 3-0

BOSTON, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—After fumbling away several hard-earned scoring chances, the powerful Fordham Rams got organized late in the final period and battered Boston College inside of the latter's 10-yard line to give Quarterback Frank Bartos his chance to drop-kick the New Yorkers into a 3-to-0 victory yesterday at Fenway Park.

the Mississippi Valley League; Kennedy is from Burlington of the same circuit, while Mahaffey pitched last year for Columbia of the South Atlantic League, the club being a Pirate farm. Vanusek is a lefthanded semi-professional hurler who has been highly recommended.

Manager William McKechnie, of the Braves, in a statement to the Sun-Telegraph today, confirmed the news of the deal involving the Braves and the Cubs.

"I have been working on that deal for a long time," said McKechnie. "We have been on the trail of Wes Schulmerick, of Los Angeles, for some time, and I think young Bill McAfee, a collegian, who pitched for Reading this year, will help us in time. Also we secured some money in the exchange of players and we intend to use this cash in the strengthening of our club.

REMINDER OF WILSON

"Schulmerick is a reminder of Hack Wilson in physique. He is a right-hand batter who punishes the ball and he is quite fast for a big fellow. Kitty Bransfield, one of our scouts, followed Schulmerick for a long time this year and Kitty is convinced that he is the right player for our outfield."

Skipper Bill was oiling his hunting guns when he gave out his statement on the trade. A great lover of hunting and the outdoors in general, McKechnie, in company with Wray Zelt, of Washington, Pa., a lifelong friend, left this afternoon for a remote part of Northeastern Pennsylvania in quest of woodcock. The season on this game bird opens tomorrow.

Wilbur Cooper, former star lefthander of the Pittsburgh club, is in the city. Cooper expects to spend much of his time here in business. He pitched in the Texas League this year.

A brand new shaving principle

Men! Here's news! The first vital razor patents in twenty years! Based on entirely original discoveries, the new patented Gem Micromatic Razor revolutionizes shaving. It virtually antiquates all other razors. It is a real precision shaving instrument. Twist the handle and the razor opens, as illustrated. Twist the handle again and the razor closes. Automatically the blade moves into the correct shaving position and is locked there. No vibration. The razor is all one piece—nothing to take apart—easy to clean and load.

Gem Micromatic Blades are made of a tougher, better metal—surgical steel. This surgical steel takes a far keener edge—and each blade gives you many extra shaves.

Even if you bought your present razor yesterday, you won't know what real shaving happiness is until you enjoy this new experience in shaving comfort.

Your dealer now has the magnificent Gem Micromatic Razor Set—consisting of the new razor and 5 new blades—in a handsome modern box. Built to $5 specifications, this set is now available at the special introductory price of $1.

BETHANY GRID MENTOR BUILDS FOR FUTURE

NOTRE DAME'S SYSTEM GETS TRYOUT

By JESS CARVER,
Staff Correspondent.

BETHANY, W. Va., Oct. 14.—The Notre Dame system of attack and defense, one of the most exacting of all gridiron systems, has found another resting place in the tri-state district. Here at Bethany, John Knight, who comes here from Wheeling High School, succeeding Furman Nuss as head coach, has installed the Rockne style of play.

Bethany, with hardly better than fair material, too unexperienced to warrant any hope of big accomplishments this year, got off to a bad start against Wash-Jeff, being crushed under a 74-0 score and fared even worse against Colgate, losing, 99-0. The half-dozen letter men did all they could, and the aspiring freshmen fought back hard, but to no avail.

MUST DEVELOP

In a system such as the Notre Dame system, in which timing and precision play such an important part, young and inexperienced players have small chance. It takes two years, so they say, to become even a fair player. Coach Knight is working with green men, not especially heavy men and not overly fast men.

Two of the six letter men are backs. Capt. Mike Kasarada, at quarterback, and Fritz Verasi, a fast-moving halfback, form the backfield nucleus. Kasarada is being used at quarterback, with Verasi at one of the halves. Gaughan, Dice, George, Funk, Wilkins, Pollard, Andy Verasi, Gilson and Knoulton are scrapping for the other positions, with honors pretty close to even.

Dice, possibly the best kicker on the squad, is being groomed for one of the backfield positions.

Understudying Kasarada at quarterback are Belcostio, Ramage and McVey. The fullback list includes Jenkins and Creskovich, although Fritz Verasi may be developed into the No. 4 man.

Grenaviski, a letterman, tops a list of some eight end prospects. Hood, Still, Ewalt, Dodrill, Telfair, Ferguson and Thomas are candidating for the wing jobs. Telfair and Ewalt have shown some promise. Whether they will stand up under the difficult schedule remains to be seen.

Buttermore and Dopko, lettermen, and Crum, Bhenke, Johnny and Harry Hickman, Tischler and Andrews are tackle prospects. Buttermore and Dopko, because of their experience, have the edge for the job. All lack weight, but possess fair speed.

DUPKE STANDS OUT

Dupke, possibly the best line prospect on the squad; McQuown and Pruitt compose the first line guard strength. Lewis, Levine, Mann and Fisher form the reserves. Lawton, who has been used as both an end and a guard, is favored for work at the latter position.

Fisher at center has been showing up very well. His passing is accurate; he charges well and is alert and a deadly tackler on the defense. Welsh, Scullion and Johnson form a staff of relief men.

Octoger 25 finds the Bisons opposing West Virginia Wesleyan at Wheeling. Waynesburg will be met in a Tristate Conference game at Waynesburg November 1, and Thiel invades this town November 8. Grove City is to be tackled at Grove City November 15, and the season closes with the annual battle with Westminster November 22.

While the task confronting him is a difficult one, Coach Knight is tackling it with vim and spirit. He is being assisted by George Schomake, a former tackle and three-letter star here. It is the intention of the new mentor to build for the future, and he is taking especial care in drilling his squad in fundamentals and in the ground work of the system he teaches.

SKIBOS DRILL FOR IRISH

The Duquesne ends are coming in for plenty of hard work this week, and the passing mitts of Larry Sullivan, the redoubable Ganzy Benedict and Kass Kovalcheck are being checked and double checked for their accuracy by grueling practice sessions. Carnegie Tech, Ohio State and Penn State must be tackled in a row.

Coach Sutherland, while he and his assistants naturally are looking forward to the Notre Dame and Carnegie games, plans to take 'em as they come. He started his squad working for Syracuse yesterday, and plans a workout for today that figures to be tougher than the game with Western Reserve was last week. That, of course, wouldn't have to be very tough.

The Orange demonstrated power enough in crushing Rutgers to warrant the assertion that Vic Hanson will afford the Panthers a very busy afternoon. They are said to sport a clever running attack, functioning behind a hard charging line. They are SAID to have all this. They may have the running attack, but if the line isn't up to snuff, the running attack isn't going to go so very many places and do so very many things.

In losing Rocco Cutri, Eddie Baker's understudy at quarterback, the Panther were dealt a severe blow right where it hurts most—in its reserve. Walton, second string tackle, was injured in the West Virginia game and Cutri last week. Sutherland may change Bucky Wagner from a fullback to a quarter, or he may put his faith and trust in Zola Alpert, who hasn't looked so bad in the action he's been in so far.

Both Pitt and Tech squads will depart for the scenes of their battles Thursday night, the Panthers heading for Syracuse an hour or so earlier than Carnegie leaves for South Bend.

Bulldogs Next!

Five big moguls will threaten Elmer Layden's Duquesne University Night Riders Friday night under the lights at Forbes Field when the Bulldogs, of Howard College, invade this city from Birmingham, Ala. Coach Eddie McLane, head mentor of the Baptists, will parade the threatening names of Bullard, Sweeney, Levvy, Clark and Estes before the Dukes as he flashes the Notre Dame system in the face of Head Coach Elmer Layden, master of Rambler strategy.

A real intersectional struggle will be on tap when the Steel City of the South clashes with the Steel City of the North. And Howard College is sending a football squad which is said to be the flashiest and most versatile which ever went out of Birmingham under Crimson and Blue colors. The forward passing game will be the mainstay of the Bulldog attack, built around the quintet of stars in whom Coach Eddie McLane places his faith.

Two triple threat backs will see action against the Night Riders, for Potts Levy, star quarterback, and Sweeney, understudy to Levy, will get into the game, according to the orthodox tenets of the Notre Dame system. Sweeney can run, pass and kick with plenty of ability. Ray Bullard, former prep school star from Florida, is a big sparkplug in the Bulldog backyard.

those four giants, Pop expects to be able to worry along without the aid of Fleishhacker and Smalling, stars of 1929 who were lost by graduation.

Thus far, the huge backfields have not been delivering in proportion to their weight, as California and Southern California have been defeated by Washington State, and Stanford has been held to a tie by Minnesota. It would be interesting to see this year's sensational Washington State team pitted against Stanford after beating California and Southern California, but the elevens are not to meet.

Vincent Richards

TENNIS NOW LOSES one of its brightest stars of the last 13 years. Vincent Richards, a professional luminary after a long career in the amateur ranks, announces his retirement from competition. "I am entering business the first of the year," he says, "though I have not decided yet between brokerage and hotel management. I played the best tennis of my career when I won back the professional championship from Karel Kozeluh last month, and I am at the top now, but my legs will no longer stand the gaff of nine solid months of play and teaching. I am retiring when I can still break into another field of livelihood. From now on I shall swing a racquet only for exercise." Richards, now 27, won his first title at the age of 15 when he shared in winning the national doubles with Bill Tilden at Longwood in 1918. He won 28 national titles and was Olympic champion in 1924. He turned professional in 1926 and captured the pro crown in 1927, 1928 and 1930.

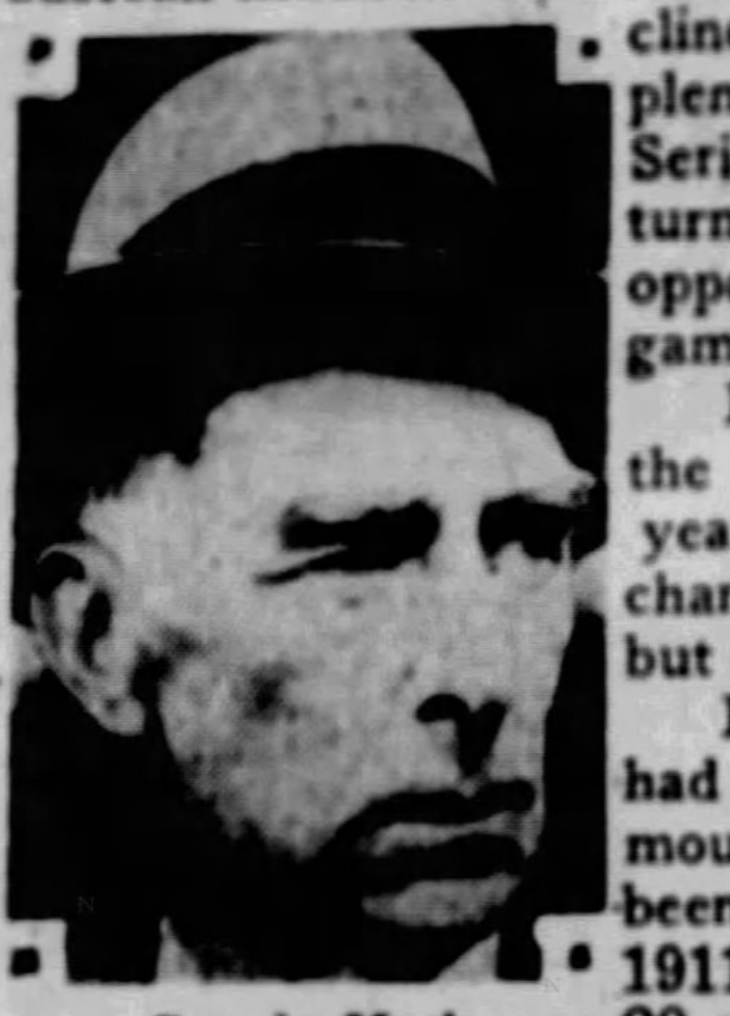
MY FIFTY YEARS IN BASEBALL

By CONNIE MACK,
Manager, World Champion Philadelphia Athletics

INSTALLMENT NO. 32.

It was the first time the Athletics ever had won two pennants in a row and Philadelphians realized that they had a baseball machine that was going to last. The champions had clinched the pennant early and we had plenty of time to think about the World Series of 1911. I was glad when it turned out that the Giants would be our opponents, as that defeat in the 1905 games still galled Philadelphians.



Connie Mack

Public sentiment and the opinion of the experts had greatly shifted in a year's time. Nobody considered our chances before the games with the Cubs, but it was different this fall.

Baseball followers knew that we had been good enough to smash the famous Cub machine and that we also had been equal to making a runaway of the 1911 pennant race after Detroit had won 20 out of the first 22 games.

Therefore, we had the confidence of the public when we squared off to face the Giants for the highest honors in baseball. We had to start this series with one regular missing, for Stuffy McInnis, who had been such a brilliant batting and fielding performer at first base, injured a hand a short time before and could not play.

M'INNIS OUT OF SERIES

I therefore had to call on Harry Davis, whom I had retained as captain and reservist, to play first base. Instead of being a hindrance to the young team, the veteran played some of the best ball of his career throughout the series and his bat played a big part in our triumph.

We lost the first game, which was a great pitching duel between Bender and Mathewson, 2 to 1. Bender fanned 11 and really outpitched the great Matty and deserved to win, but bad support beat him.

The Athletics won the second game, which was another pitchers' battle, under the most dramatic circumstances. It was a duel of left-handers with Eddie Plank opposed to Rube Marquard.

BAKER WHALES HOMERS

With the score a 1-1 tie the game was decided in the sixth inning. Two were out when Eddie Collins socked a double to left. Up came J. Franklin Baker, the home-run king of his day, who rammed a spectacular homer over the right field wall.

That hit decided it, for there was no more scoring after that. Plank was so much master of the situation that he held the Giants to three singles and a double. This double was the result of a misjudged fly by Oldring and gave New York its only run.

The Athletics scored their first victory in a World Series against Mathewson in the third game. Matty was leading, 1 to 0, when the ninth began, and it looked as if Coombs' sound pitching was to be wasted and Matty would get a shutout triumph.

The first hitter was Collins, and he was retired. Baker, the hero of the previous day, then stepped to the plate and lashed the ball into the right field stands for a homer that knotted the score. That was the turning point, and, in the eleventh inning, the Athletics tabbed two more runs to win, 3 to 2.

Matty had beaten the Athletics in four straight World Series games before they lowered his colors in this tense, extra-inning fight.

The third game was played October 17, and then followed the longest recess ever known in a World Series. It rained continuously for fully a week and the games could not be resumed until October 24.

The fourth game was played in Philadelphia and the Athletics won, 4 to 2. I picked Chief Bender for this game and Manager McGraw took advantage of the long layoff by sending Mathewson back.

This time Bender clearly outpitched Matty and we now led the series, three games to one.

New York came back and won the fifth game, which lasted 10 innings, 4 to 3. Coombs and Marquard were the starting pitchers and the Athletics had an early lead by scoring three runs in the third and driving Marquard to the showers.

It looked like an easy victory and the end of the World Series when Coombs strained his side in the ninth and the Giants tied the score before anybody realized he was seriously hurt. Plank went into action in the tenth and the Giants batted in the winning run.

BEATEN IN 1912

The final game, which was staged in Philadelphia the next day, was a rout, the Athletics retaining the world championship by blistering the Giants, 13 to 2. Bender held McGraw's men to four hits and won his second victory of the series in hollow style, for the Athletics whaled Ames, Wiltse and Marquard all over the field.

Few World Series have resulted in keener battling than this one. Every game but the last one was close to the finish and two of them required extra innings to decide. Bender with his pitching and Baker with his winning home runs were our heroes.

One of the biggest shocks I ever had in baseball was the failure of the 1912 team to come through. We had won two pennants in a row and it did not seem possible we could be stopped.

I considered the 1912 team the best I ever handled up to this time for the fact that by virtue of two straight World Series conquests the players had acquired the experience and confidence to win.

It must have been because two or three players got the idea that they had accomplished everything in sight and became careless in their habits. It was necessary to suspend them.

I always will feel that our team would have won five straight pennants had it not been for those players who would not take care of themselves.

A LONG SERIES

The Red Sox winners in 1912 were a mighty club and deserved their honors. I don't want to take anything away from Boston because we did not happen to win.

Washington also played brilliantly and finished second, while we had to be content with third place. Even if our players had attended strictly to business, it might have been possible for these two teams to finish ahead of us.

The World Series of 1912 beat all records for length, it taking eight games for Boston to beat New York.

South High School's football team is the talk of local scholastic circles this fall, with its two upset victories over Peabody and Schenley High, the latter last year's champion. MRS. HILL GOLF MEDALIST

By E. W. KRAUCH,
International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 14.—Playing the tricky North course in two shots under par, Mrs. Opal S. Hill, Kansas City star, shot a 79 to capture qualifying round honors in the 1930 national women's golf championship here yesterday.

One stroke behind came Helen Hicks, 19-year-old player from Inwood, N. Y., with a fine 80, followed by Glenna Collett, defending champion, of New York; Maureen Orcutt, of New Jersey, and Virginia Van Wie, of Chicago, who tied for third with 81s.

All outstanding players qualified for the championship flight, although several shot in the high 80s. Mrs. Hill's great round was, of course, the big feature of the day. She had no less than five birdies, being out in 40 and playing the last in 39. Her card against par:

Parr Out	554	354	463—39
Mrs. Hill Out	454	555	453—40
Par In	544	543	555—42	—81
Mrs. Hill In	444	552	555—39	—79

Mrs. L. G. Riley, of Pittsburgh, bearing the colors of the Edgewood Country Club, negotiated the course in 96, thereby failing to enter the select group. Mrs. Riley was out in 46, and a poor 50 on the return caused her to be eliminated. The scores of the qualifiers:

Mrs. O. S. Hill, Kansas City	40	39—79
Helen Hicks, Inwood, N. J.	40	40—80

Readers Tell How to Bring Better Times

By B. C. FORBES

THE MENTAL AGITATION existing throughout the country is reflected by the unprecedented number of people who are sending to this column suggestions for remedying the troubles now afflicting so many. The letter writers embrace all classes, employed and unemployed workmen, Communists, Socialists, salaried workers, executives, presidents of institutions and of corporations.

B. C. Forbes

Since it is always well to know how public sentiment is functioning, brief extracts from recent communications are timely.

A. J. THOMAS, Lancaster, Pa.:

"Business can be revived if those who hold the purse strings would say to their legitimate clients—manufacturers and middlemen, 'things are cheap. Here is money. Go out and buy goods. We are with you.' What are our 'best minds' waiting for? Do they want to see greater distress? Have they any sense of values? If credit is not safe when commodities are selling below production costs then when is it safe?"

BY AIR MAIL from San Francisco comes this:

"Why don't our big industries publicly announce that they do not intend to close down? Reassured employes will immediately buy the things they need but have been afraid to buy. Furthermore, if brokers want to get the public in again, let them announce that for the time being they will carry debit balances at the call money rate. Many a man would then buy good stocks that would carry themselves if he got the difference between call money and the dividend, which now goes to the broker. Our nation's leaders should come out in the open and declare a definite policy."

JOHN E. RUSSELL, New York:

"I'd be a fool to decry short selling, for it, of course, fulfils a function. But I do feel that when short selling is threatening the morale of our country, which is in turn causing unemployment, frightening businessmen and generally tearing down our economic fabric, it is time it was stopped. You newspapermen are missing a big bet by not publicizing the bears more. Why not give these destructionists a little free publicity that would be most undesirable to them—and perhaps cause them to hibernate for a while and allow the country to nurse a little much-needed optimism and a return to normalcy?"

WALTER BROWN, of the Cleveland Worsted Mills, Cleveland, offers this personal observation:

"Our business leaders should take space in the papers to give all the information possible regarding the cause of the depression and why so little is being done to get things moving along an even keel. If our leaders have not the courage, enterprise or spirit to do more about it than they have, then it is up to the initiative of the middle class to show them the way.

"Factory workers have been hardest hit, and therefore are not in a position to start buying, but there are plenty of men earning $40 a week and up who, if properly approached, will do their bit in helping to break this depression. Every progressive city has an advertising club. Why not get every advertising club to spend some money urging the middle class to buy no.., n.ming specific articles. If this were done in every important city, and if there were set a definite time to buy, I feel confident the response would exceed expectations and be the means of speedily bringing business back to normal.

HERBERT LITTLEPAGE, Chicago, who signs himself "Yours for Fascism," writes:

"America's four greatest men were and are, Washington, who freed us from England; Lincoln, who freed the Negro; Ford, who freed the mule, and Hoover, who freed the working man from work. Since there is no engineering work for me to do, I am out preaching Fascism. And I am quite sure that if the Wall Street racketeers could hear the expressions I hear from doctors, lawyers, small merchants, to say nothing of workmen, they would quake in their boots."

And there follows a lot more in the same vein.

W. H. SCHENDORF, Real Estate, writes in part:

"I have benefited more and acquired more knowledge and balance in the past three years of depression than I did in my previous 15 years of normal or boom business. I believe this readjustment period is a blessing in disguise for this entire country."

But isn't it a very questionable blessing to millions of breadwinners to be unable to earn a living week after week and month after month and for others to become poorer and poorer? Haven't we had enough adversity? Isn't it time for all of us to do whatever lies within our power to get things going again in the right direction?

REICH'S CREDIT TO COST 6%

BERLIN, Oct. 14.—Details of the Reich treasury $125,000,000 loan, include two years maturity interest of 4¾ per cent commission of 1¼ per cent and total cost for Germany of 6 per cent. German banks contributed $15,000,000 of the total, and the rest was given by American, Swedish and Dutch banks. Germany will receive proceeds immediately after the bill concerning re-payment has been passed by the Reichstag. This probably means the end of November.

The bill enables the government to repay all floating debt inclusive of present loan in three years, making yearly payment of 420,000,000 Reichsmarks. Financial difficulties for the treasury will thus be avoided.

OIL PRORATION LAW UPHELD

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—The Oklahoma Supreme Court upheld the constitutionality of the state oil conservation laws and the jurisdiction of the state corporation commission to administer them in the form of proration of the output of flush oil fields.

The decision was issued in a suit brought by the C. C. Julian Oil and Royalties Company, seeking to restrain the corporation commission from enforcing its proration orders in the Oklahoma City field as to that company.

John Head, attorney for Julian, attempted to withdraw the case recently when a similar decision was announced here by a federal court of three judges, but Attorney General J. Berry King, who headed defense of the conservation laws, protested against dismissal and the court declined to drop the case.

The Julian Company has joined hands with the Champlin Refining Company to attack proration before the corporation commission.

TULSA, Oct. 14.—The Champlin Refining Company has reduced the price of mid-continent crude oil, ranging from 25c to 31c a barrel according to gravities.

U. S. Steel Corporation's Common Meets With Long Pull Buying

Houses which always have been looked upon as representing important interests in U. S. Steel common report that evidence has appeared of long pull buying in the stock. Most of the orders have been on a scale, but the stock has been taken out of the Street. Thus far, the volume purchased has not been especialy heavy, and the effect, therefore, has been negligible on the market for the premier industrial. However, it is contended that if the demand continues, it eventually must have influence, for it will reduce the floating supply in Wall Street. Those who executed the orders state that the stock is not likely to come back into the market during any minor rally.

Among the low-priced stocks, U. S. Pipe and Foundry is well liked in quarters which have been close to the company for a long time. Earnings this year have been highly satisfactory thus far, and the prospects are considered bright. The company is getting its full share of the going business, and with plans calling for extensive work by municipalities, it is argued that the future will show satisfactory results. The stock, like all others, suffered from necessitous liquidation at times during the disturbing declines in the general market.

Investors have been showing some interest in Allied Chemical recently. The stock was in supply with the remainder of the market during the weakness and reacted sharply at times. Much of the scale buying represented accumulation for cash by small investors. The odd-lot demand was larger than in several years, according to one leading investment firm. Around $200 a share, the stock yields approximately 8 per cent on the $6 a share annual cash dividend and the 5 per cent in stock being paid, providing, of course, that the latter distribution is continued and the additional shares disposed of in the market.

Traction shares generally, whether they represent companies in this city or other cities, are not likely to be highly popular in the near future, because in most instances they must feel the effects of business recessions and unemployment in traffic and earnings. However, Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit is one issue which is favored in that group. Students of the various unification plans are inclined to consider B.-M. T. as having the best prospects. Manhattan Railways modified guaranteed stock also is being given favorable consideration.

Not in years has the market been confronted with so many unfounded rumors as were circulated recently. Many of them were disturbing and had considerable influence, bringing about liquidation at a time when the general list was weak, and causing an increased supply in the face of only a limited demand. Because one or two of the reports which had been heard proved to be correct, a natural tendency developed to pay more attention than usual to all rumors. Investigations made privately by a number of houses failed to provide confirmation for stories, but they were overlooked during the periods of extreme pessimism.

Talk of a probable increase in the dividend of any company is exceptional at this time. But such discussions have been heard concerning Woolworth. Some of the rumors have indicated that the rate would be raised to $3 annually from $2.40 now being paid. Since dividend action was taken by the directors only a few days ago, it will be three months before the subject is considered again. Woolworth is likely to benefit from lower costs on a large variety of the goods it handles. In addition the reduced purchasing power of the individual probably will bring additional business. Therefore, it is argued that the outlook must be considered satisfactory, despite the business depression in other directions.

Chain Store Sales Up for 9 Months

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Fifty-two chain store companies reporting their results for September showed aggregate sales of $310,535,660, a decrease of 4.16 per cent from $324,017,661 for September, 1929, Merrill, Lynch & Co. reports. Sales for the first nine months this year totaled $2,904,181,652, an increase of 1.65 per cent over $2,856,902,559 for the corresponding period last year.

Most Foreign Securities Sound, Bankers Told

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

NEW ORLEANS, Oct 14.—Soundness of the great majority of foreign issues was emphasized in the report of the foreign securities committee at the convention of the Investment Bankers Association yesterday.

Robert E. Christie of Dillon, Read and Company, in summarizing the report in the absence of Harry M. Addinsell, chairman, declared:

"It is common knowledge that, from a statistical standard, a large number of them are better than many of our domestic issues, as they have much larger factors of safety in physical property and earnings.

"Recent German elections have caused some uneasiness on the part of holders of German dollar securities. An analysis of the election results and the numerous comments of American bankers' representatives and correspondents abroad have satisfied your committee that there is nothing in the political situation which jeopardizes the safety of German external dollar obligations."

Latin-America Hard Hit

THEN THE committee's report goes on to Latin-American financing, and points out that during this last year, with the exception of Chile, these countries have had an abrupt halt put to their economic progress on account of the severe decline in commodity prices and particularly staple goods such as wheat, sugar, coffee and cotton, and for this reason it is obvious that foreign loans to Latin-America so far this year have been devoted to giving relief to some of the pressing problems due to the overproduction of these staples.

The report then speaks of recent revolutions in the Argentine, Bolivia and Peru, and of the most recent one, in Brazil. The committee says the uprisings are of such recent date that it does not feel capable of interpreting them, but that in most of these cases there has been no such degree of violence or disorder as is usually associated with revolutions. Nevertheless, the news in each case has been sensational and the effect on the bonds has been a greater drop in prices than such movements have probably justified.

Benefits Under New Regimes

WHERE CHANGES in government have actually taken place, Argentine, Bolivia and Peru, the report says it appears to be very generally conceded that at least in the majority of cases the new administrations should prove beneficial both from a political and financial standpoint. These new governments apparently have done everything possible up to the present to avoid permanent damage to their external credit.

The report of the committee on investment companies was heard with exceptional interest. In discussing the sudden change in this phase of the investment business, the committee referred to its warning against the dangers of inflation in investment trusts which it issued a year ago at Quebec. The report further said that its prediction had been realized to a greater extent than was expected. Investment management which a year ago was commanding a premium of 30 to 100 per cent over book value is today being offered at a discount averaging 25 per cent.

Not Wholly to Blame

THE REPORT indicated that management was not entirely to blame. It said:

"One question which naturally presents itself in looking back over the wreckage of the last 12 months is the performance of the managements here during this period. To what extent are they to blame and what should be expected of them in the future? In regard to the latter, it must be obvious that in order to justify its existence, an investment company's management must be expected to obtain a good average return at all times, and secondly, to make more money in good markets and to lose quite a lot less money in bad markets than the average individual investor. As to the culpability of the managements for the enormous losses which the American public have suffered in the last year due to the shrinkage in value of investment companies shares, there can be no question but that the liquidating values of the large investment companies did not suffer nearly as great a decline as the market value of their shares, and in most cases we find that this decline in liquidating value was less than the general average of the market."

Warning On Methods

THE DISCUSSION of fixed trusts was confined to a note of warning concerning the methods used in selling. The summary stated that, just as in previous reports, there has been emphasized the importance of both dealers and investors satisfying themselves as to the honesty and ability of management, where there is management. It should be pointed out that in the case of fixed trusts an equally careful examination is necessary.

The report declared that, as in all types of securities, the fixed trust is sound to the extent to which it is fully understood; it is unsound to the extent to which the investor is misled. Circulars should state the facts fully and clearly, and where provision is made for the return of principal it should be stated and in a way which will not confuse these payments with income in the investors' mind. Furthermore, these trusts, as in the case of management companies, are justified only in cases where they are set up and operated for the benefit of the investor, with a fair charge for services rendered and out-of-pocket expenses. They are distinctly unjustified when the sponsors, through depositor companies or otherwise, take advantage of the investor through unreasonable commissions, interest differentials, or any other charges against funds which properly belong to the investor.

Sinclair Sees No Earnings Increase

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Harry F. Sinclair, chairman of the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation, said on his return from Europe that while he had no definite figures he had no reason to believe the company's earnings in the final half of the current year will be better than in the first six months. Mr Sinclair said that merger negotiations with Prairie Oil and Gas Company and the Tide Water-Associated Oil Company are still pending. For the first six months this year the company reported earnings equal to 49 cents a common share, against $1.02 a share in the first half of last year.

Reserve's Security Shows Big Decrease

WASHINGTON, Oct 14.—The Federal Reserve Board's condition statement as of October 8, shows loans on securities of $8,268,000,000, a decrease of $215,000,000. All other loans aggregated $8,545,000,000, an increase of $15,000,000.

Stocks on London Market Weaker

LONDON, Oct. 14.—The stock markets opened the week idle and weaker. Brazilian Traction fell to $22 on the decision to pay a scrip dividend, but later recovered to $22.62½. Brazilian bonds showed renewed weakness, with declines of ½ to 1 point.

BERLIN, Oct. 14.—The Boerse apparently had been expecting much worse than has happened at yesterday's Reichstag opening, for its initial prices today were firm, and the close was strong, with gains ranging from 1 to 4 points.

Asks O. K. to Issue Additional Shares

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—Peoples Gas, Light and Coke Company announced it would seek authority to issue an additional $6,254,000 of capital stock. It will be offered at par to stockholders of record December 15, on the basis of one for 10. At the current market price of $233 a share, the rights are worth approximately $11.19 a share, or a total of $6,998,226.

TELEPHONE NET SHOWS GAIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—American Telephone and Telegraph Company for nine months ended September 30, shows net income of $123,400,756 after charges and federal taxes, equal to $8.13 a share on 15,184,389 average shares outstanding during the period, compared with net income of $120,970,306 in the similar 1929 period, or $9.24 a share on 13,080,578 average shares.

Net income for September quarter was $41,728,949, equal to $2.55 per share on 16,323,854 average shares in the quarter, against $40,868,268 or $3.10 a share on 13,184,120 average shares in the third quarter of 1929.

President Walter S. Gifford stated that present volume of business is favorable when compared with the level of the general industrial activity. Each month of the year has shown a gain over 1929 and for nine months of 1930 the increase amounts to 3 per cent.

The number of shareholders has increased 70,000 since January 1. The total on September 30 was 540,000.

Would the Mellon National Bank be interested in my account ?

. . . a question not infrequently asked by men of modest income. Of course, the answer is emphatically: Yes. The Mellon National Bank has no requirements as to the size of new accounts opened by individuals . . . the size does not matter.

The Mellon Bank itself had a small beginning. Many of its largest accounts were opened with a very modest deposit and grew through the friendly cooperation of bank and customers. Even now a very considerable number of the bank's accounts are of modest size. But such accounts are always welcome . . . the Mellon National Bank is never too big for any account.

Trading Turns Quieter As Shares Make Steady Recovery; Blocks Dumped

NEW YORK, Oct. 14—(AP.)—Trading turned relatively quiet, and share prices made steady and broad recovery in today's stock market, after a flurry of liquidation at the opening, representing an accumulation of selling orders over the week-end, and possibly the final jettisoning of weakened accounts.

Sale of large blocks, several individual transactions running from 5,000 to 12,000 shares, during the first few minutes depressed prices close to the lows of last Friday, but the resistance met at that level was impressive and prompted extensive short covering. In this connection it was notable that economic advisory services in their weekly advices to customers cautioned against being frightened into disposing of good securities, and at least one of the larger services advocated substantial investment of funds in selected stocks around recent levels.

The first flurry of selling depressed prices about 1 to 5 points, but by early afternoon, there were numerous net gains of like extent, most pivotal shares showing advances. Trading was in fair volume, but failed to reach the proportions of last Friday or Saturday. U. S. Steel declined 3¼ points to 144⅞.

American Telephone converted an early loss of more than 2 into a gain of 3. Allied Chemical dropped nearly 4, then rebounded to show a gain of about 3. General Motors sold off a point to 34¼, and was one of the few prominent shares reaching new low ground, but it quickly rallied.

NEWS REASSURING

News of the day and the week-end was largely reassuring. Further selling pressure in the grain markets was one of the few adverse influences. Brokers stated that the two-day week-end closing had permitted the financial community to make a sane appraisal of the stock market situation, and that conclusions were in the main cheering.

The reduction of $215,000,000 in loans on securities by weekly reporting Federal Reserve member banks was accepted as indicating that real cleaning out of troublesome situations had been extensive. This reduction was considerably larger than the drop of $158,000,000 in brokers' loans. In recent months brokers' loans have fallen much more rapidly than bank loans on securities, indicating a mere transfer of loans from brokers to banks. A reversal of the tendency was regarded as decidedly cheering. As these statements were for the period ended last Wednesday, statements for the week covering the huge selling wave last Friday may show much further progress.

EARNINGS UP

American Telephone's third quarter earnings statement showed a little improvement over both the preceding quarter and the like quarter of last year, and was markedly better than had been expected in some quarters. Earnings per share of $2.55 were substantially less than the $3.10 of the same period a year ago, owing to large capitalization, but showed that the year's dividend was being earned by a substantial margin.

Other corporate news included a statement by President Sargent, of Chicago Northwestern, that September earnings were the best of the year. United States Rubber reported production of tires last month was 22 per cent greater than August, and that it is planned to continue this schedule through October; Sheet steel producers in Chicago reported shipments in the first 10 days of the month as nearly double those in the like period a month ago.

Call money remained steady to firm at 2 per cent.

SCORE CAPITAL PYRAMIDING

NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 14.—An appeal for the elimination of pyramided capital structures of public utilities was made and a warning against the dangers of concealing inter-company transactions was issued in the report of the public service securities committee read before the Investment Bankers' Association today.

While there is a definite tendency toward the simplification of financial structure, many of the groupings are still complicated and involved beyond any apparent reason or need, the report said. The virtues of simplicity of financial structure increase with size and should be constantly sought for as one of the greatest aids to fair market judgments of values and in the raising of cheap money, the committee declared.

The report insisted that bankers, as well as operators, are at fault for the existence of pyramided companies and for the lurking suspicion in the public mind that these structures are not to its best interests.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Curb prices shifted irregularly today. Liquidation was general at the opening when some of the leaders sold close to last week's lows, but when the accumulation of holiday week-end selling orders had been exhausted the market began a slow improvement that erased early losses of a couple of points in many of the active shares.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—Sharp setbacks in Liverpool wheat quotations resulted in a decided early downturn today of all grain values here. Every delivery of wheat in Chicago touched a new low price record for the present crop. General timely rains in Australia and lower exchange rates from Argentina were bearish factors, together with cheap Canadian and Russian offerings of wheat abroad. Some complications in Chicago trading resulted from a change of rules so that dealings were both in new and old style contracts, but brokers quickly adjusted their operations to fit the altered circumstances.

Opening 1½-3c a bushel lower, wheat afterward recovered somewhat.

Corn started 1⅛-2¾c off and soon rallied to a moderate extent.

General List Sags Back As Further Offerings Hit Prominent Issues

Securities on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange felt the influence of the break on the "big board" at the opening of business following the Columbus Day suspension. As has been the case in all sessions recently, Lone Star Gas was the dominant issue in the market here.

The big fuel leader started the session with a small fractional decline, but this was extended as the trading proceeded and more stocks came on the market. The selling was induced, of course, by technical conditions arising out of the further lowering of values in New York. Outright holders of stock who have become timid over the market situation contributed a portion of the supply and this was augmented by stock from weakened margin accounts which have suffered steady collateral shrinkage over the past six weeks.

After mid-day there was a mild rally in Lone Star and the greater part of the forenoon loss was recovered.

Industrial issues were lower at the start, but initial prices were the lowest of the day. The sharp rally in New York during the afternoon served to check the somewhat pessimistic sentiment evident early in the day.

Exchange Asks Data On Brockway Trades

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—The New York Stock Exchange has sent out a questionnaire to members asking for a report by noon, October 17, on transactions from August 15 to October 4, inclusive, in Brockway Motor Corporation common stock. It is understood information is desired in connection with an underwriting of 75,000 additional shares of common stock at $17.50, sold to a syndicate at that time.

Sheet Steel Gains In Chicago Market

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—Sheet steel producers in the Chicago territory report shipments in the first 10 days of October nearly double tonnage delivered in the like period of September. Prices now obtained are slightly higher than in September.

YOUNGSTOWN, Oct. 14.—Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company's Western Reserve sheet plant at Warren has suspended operations indefinitely, due to protracted weakness in demands for sheets for which the plant has an annual capacity of 85,000 tons. Approximately 100 men are affected.

Directors Approve Martin-Parry Sale

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—A letter to stockholders of the Martin-Parry Corporation says the management has an opportunity to sell its Indianapolis plant and the inventory and equipment used in the commercial body department in that plant to General Motors for cash "on terms that the directors feel under present conditions are to the advantage of our stockholders." Directors have approved the sale and a special meeting of stockholders will be held October 21.

Rubber Company Maintains Schedule

DETROIT, Oct. 14.—Daily production schedule 22 per cent greater than August was maintained during September by the tire department of U. S. Rubber Company. It is planned to continue this schedule through October.

The increased schedule is unusual at this time because tire production usually tapers off toward the end of August and is at a seasonal low ebb for the remainder of the year.

Plymouth Oil Co.'s Profits Holding Up

Plymouth Oil Company's new well in the deep sand on the Big Lake property, Regan County, Tex., is reported doing about 3,250 barrels of 61 gravity oil per day. Total production from the deep and the Texon sand is now about 17,000 barrels. Earnings of the company are said to be running at a rate well over the dividend requirement of $2 a year.

Output of Steel Gains in Britain

LONDON, Oct. 14.—British steel ingot production in September totaled 580,000 tons, against 451,300 in August. Pig iron output during September totaled 425,000 tons, against 416,700 in August. There were 104 furnaces in blast at the end of September, the same number as a month previous.

More Cottonseed Reported Crushed

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Cottonseed crushed in the first two months of the cotton year, August 1 to September 30, was placed today by the Census Bureau at 727,395 tons, compared with 609,071 tons for the same period a year ago, and cottonseed on hand at mills September 30 was placed at 695,033 tons, compared with 588,948 tons a year ago.

Stocks on hand September 30 were: Seed at plants, 695,033 tons; crude oil, 79,280,326 pounds; refined, 174,207,919.

Marland Oil Notes To Be Redeemed

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—The entire $7,500,000 principal amount of series C 5 per cent gold notes of the Marland Oil Company, now the Continental Oil Company, dated June 15, 1927, and due June 15, 1931, has been called for redemption December 15 next. The notes will be paid off at $1,002.40 for each $1,000 principal amount of notes upon presentation and surrender, with all unmatured coupons attached.

Seeks Approval On Stock Issue

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—The board of directors of the Commonwealth Edison Company voted to apply to the Illinois Commerce Commission for authority to issue additional capital stock to the extent of 10 per cent of the present outstanding stock, approximately $14,250,000 par value.

If the issue is authorized it will be offered at par to stockholders of record December 15, payment to be made before February 2, 1931.

Payment Suspended By Peruvian Bank

LIMA, Oct. 14.—The Bank of Peru and London, of Lima, Peru, has been permitted by government decree to suspend payments until October 19 because of a heavy run.

Canadian Wheat Payment Reduced

WINNIPEG, Oct. 14.—The initial wheat payment has been cut by the Canadian Co-operative Wheat Producers, Ltd., to 55 cents from 60 cents a bushel, effective at once.

Peseta Continues Drop at Madrid

MADRID, Oct. 14.—The peseta continued to decline today, touching 50 to the pound sterling and 10.27 to the dollar, with actual transactions in banks mostly around 10.22.

BUY THIS FARM
Positively the finest proposition for a country home in the state; located 25 miles from Pittsburgh on the beautiful Mars and Evans City cement boulevard, in the Borough of Callery; railroad station on property; trolley line within 3 minutes walk; a house of 8 rooms that needs some repairs to make it up to date; a very large barn and a small house; a very fine spring house. Price for quick sale $21,000; might take a small property in part payment. This would make a great chicken farm and could be laid out in acre lots and a big profit made.

NO. 461.

AN ORDINANCE—Authorizing and directing an increase of the indebtedness of the City of Pittsburgh in the sum of One Hundred and Fifty Thousand ($150,000.00) Dollars, and providing for the issue of bonds of said City in said amount to provide funds (including engineering and other necessary expenses) for the improvement of Lake Carnegie in Highland Park, including the construction and equipment of a municipal swimming pool and bath houses, and providing for the redemption of said bonds and the payment of interest thereon.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same. That the indebtedness of the City of Pittsburgh be increased by the amount of One Hundred and Fifty Thousand ($150,000.00) Dollars, to provide funds (including engineering and other necessary expenses) for the improvement of Lake Carnegie in Highland Park, including the construction and equipment of a municipal swimming pool and bath houses.

SECTION 2. That bonds of the City of Pittsburgh in the aggregate principal amount of
ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND ($150,000.00) DOLLARS
be issued for the purposes aforesaid. Said bonds shall be in denominations of
ONE HUNDRED ($100.00) DOLLARS EACH or multiples thereof; shall be dated as of the .... day of .... 19...., and shall be payable in ten (10) equal annual installments of FIFTEEN THOUSAND ($15,000.00) DOLLARS EACH;
one of which shall mature on the first day of .... in each of the years 1931 to 1940, inclusive. Said bonds shall bear interest at the rate of four and one-quarter per centum (4¼%) per annum, payable semi-annually on the first days of .... and .... in each year, without deduction for any taxes which may be levied thereon by the State of Pennsylvania pursuant to any present or future law, the payment of which is hereby assumed by the City of Pittsburgh. The principal and interest of said bonds shall be payable in lawful money of the United States of America at the office of the City Treasurer of said City. Said bonds shall be coupon bonds, exchangeable at the option of the holder for a registered bond or bonds of the same maturity and of the denomination of ONE HUNDRED ($100.00) DOLLARS or a multiple thereof, not exceeding the aggregate principal amount of the coupon bonds surrendered in exchange therefor, by surrendering such coupon bond or bonds with all coupons not yet due, at the office of the City Controller, and the City Controller is hereby authorized and directed to cause such coupon and registered bonds to be engraved and to issue the same in the name of the City of Pittsburgh, the expense to be charged to Appropriation No. 42 (Contingent Fund). Registered bonds shall be registered with the City Treasurer, and shall be transferable only on the books of the said City Treasurer. Said bonds shall be signed by the Mayor, countersigned by the City Controller and sealed with the corporate seal of the City of Pittsburgh, and the coupons attatched thereto shall be authenticated with fac simile signature of the City Controller. In case of the absence or disability of any of such officials, the bonds shall be signed by the City official authorized by law or by resolution of Council to act in his place. Each of said bonds shall be known and designated as
LAKE CARNEGIE IMPROVEMENT BOND, 1930.

SECTION 3. That said bonds shall be sold by the Mayor and the City Controller, at not less than par and accrued interest, after giving such notice of sale as may be required by law.

SECTION 4. That until said bonds, issued as herein provided, shall be fully paid, there is hereby levied and assessed annually upon all subjects now by law liable, or hereafter to be made liable, to assessment for taxation for City purposes, an annual tax, commencing the first year after said debt shall have been increased or incurred, namely the year 1931, sufficient to pay the interest on said bonds as the same shall accrue and become payabe, and any tax on said interest which by the terms of said bonds is assumed by the City and also an annual tax commencing in said year equal to ten (10%) per centum of the total amount of said bonds hereby authorized, to be set apart as a sinking fund for the payment of the principal and redemption of said bonds as they become due and payable according to their terms, and the same is hereby appropriated out of the revenue of said City for the payment and redemption aforesaid.

SECTION 5. That all bonds issued by the authority of this ordinance and the Acts of Assembly authorizing the same shall be and become part of the funded debt of the City of Pittsburgh, and shall be entitled to all the rights, privileges and immunities thereof, and shall be free from taxation, as aforesaid, and for the payment of the principal of said bonds and the interest thereon semi-annually as the same shal become payable, the faith, honor, credit and property of said City are hereby pledged.

SECTION 6. That the form of coupon bonds issued in pursuance of this ordinance shall be substantially as follows:

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA
COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA

City Controller.

The registered bonds issued in pursuance of this ordinance shall be substantially in the following form:

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA,
CITY OF PITTSBURGH,
LAKE CARNEGIE IMPROVEMENT BOND, 1930.

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS, That the City of Pittsburgh, a municipal corporation created and existing under the laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, is indebted to.................. in the sum of.................. Dollars ($..............), lawful money of the United States of America, which sum the said City of Pittsburgh promises to pay to the said.............. legal representatives or assigns, at the office of the City Treasurer of said City on the first day of.............. A. D. 19.... with interest thereon at the rate of four and one-quarter per centum (4¼%) per annum, payable at the same place on the first days of.............. and.............. of each year without deduction for any taxes which may be levied thereon by the State of Pennsylvania pursuant to any present or future law, the payment of which is hereby assumed by the City of Pittsburgh. And for the true and faithful payment of the principal of this bond and the semi-annual interest thereon, as aforesaid, the faith, honor, credit and property of the said City of Pittsburgh are hereby pledged. This bond is transferable only on the books of the said City Treasurer.

This bond is of a series of bonds amounting in the aggregate to
issued by the City of Pittsburgh for valid municipal purposes by virtue and in pursuance of an Act of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania entitled, "An Act to regulate the manner of increasing the indebtedness of municipalities, to provide for the redemption of the same, and to impose penalties for the illegal increase thereof," approved April 20, 1874, and the several supplements and amendments thereof; and by virtue of an Act of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania entitled, "An Act for the government of cities of the second class," approved March 7, 1901, and the supplements and amendments thereof; and an Act of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania entitled, "An Act to authorize the registry or transfer of certain bonds, approved May 1, 1873; and in pursuance of an Ordinance of the City of Pittsburgh entitled, "An Ordinance authorizing and directing an increase of the indebtedness of the City of Pittsburgh in the sum of One Hundred and Fifty Thousand ($150,000.00) Dollars, and providing for the issue of bonds of said City in said amount to provide funds (including engineering and other necessary expenses) for the improvement of Lake Carnegie in Highland Park, including the construction and equipment of a municipal swimming pool and bath houses; and providing for the redemption of said bonds and the payment of interest thereon," duly enacted by the Council thereof and approved by the Mayor thereof on .... 19.... and duly recorded and published in the manner required by law.

It is hereby certified and recited that every requirement of law affecting the issue hereof has been duly complied with; that provision has been made for the collection of an annual tax sufficient to pay the interest and also the principal hereof at maturity; that the total amount of the indebtedness of the City of Pittsburgh, created without the consent of the electors thereof, including the entire issue of the above mentioned bonds, aggregating of which this is one, is less than two per centum (2%) of the last preceding assessed valuation of the taxable property therein; and the entire indebtedness of the City of Pittsburgh, including the entire issue of the above mentioned bonds of which this is one, is less than seven per centum (7%) of the last preceding assessed valuation of the taxable property therein; and that this bond and the debt created thereby are within every debt and other limit prescribed by the Constitution and Laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Given under the corporate seal of the City of Pittsburgh, signed by the Mayor thereof and countersigned by the City Controller, as of the .... day of ...., 19....
(Seal of the City of Pittsburgh)

DAILY TRUE STORY

'Here's Your Hat'

"Here's your hat," Florrie Mears said.

She had had a tiff with Harlan Judkins.

She picked up Harlan's "genuine $5 panama" from the marble-topped hall table and handed it to him.

She noticed his initials in his hat. He always put his initials in his hats, great big initials he made himself out of some of the paper-thin metals he was forever puttering around with.

Harlan took his hat away from her and put it back on the hall table.

"I'm in no hurry—there's a lot to say yet, Florrie."

"Not to me; you can say it to yourself — you're wasting words with me—you're a good small-town boy, Harlan, but who wants to be a small-town girl and a small-town boy's wife?"

"You do, only you don't know it."

"But I don't, Harlan, and we aren't engaged and you can't make me change my mind about getting out in the world and amounting to something. If you had any gumption you'd do the same. I don't see why you can't accept Uncle Ben's offer and go back to work in his novelty factory in the city.

"In the first place, he isn't your Uncle Ben—"

Continues to Experiment

"He's my stepmother's uncle—"

"Which makes the wheelbarrow walk upstairs backwards," Harlan said, with a grin.

"You aren't even funny."

"You aren't even sensible, Florrie. In the first place, this bozo you call Uncle Ben is as crooked as a corkscrew with cramps, and he's swiped two little things of mine that I invented, which is twice too much—"

"Things you invented? That's a hot one!"

Harlan picked up his hat.

"Good-night," Florrie said.

He turned the inside of the hat to her.

"See those initials?"

"It's no great treat," she said, sullenly, "to see silver initials."

Harlan Judkins smiled a rather patronizing smile at Florrie Mears.

"It's something I'm working on for novelties and cheap things supposed to have sterling silver on 'em. There isn't a grain of silver in those initials—and I'm going to do big things with this and some other things."

"Going to! You're always puttering around your silly workroom in your mother's shed when you might be working in the city—and as I'm going to the city."

Florrie snatched his hat again from the hall table.

"Here's your hat!" she said, and turning she ran upstairs, calling down, "Good night."

Harlan Judkins took his hat and went home.

He seemed to be calm enough, but he wasn't. He was very much depressed.

Start for City

Harlan Judkins continued to experiment with his metals and his little novelty inventions. Now some of his ideas were salable and often brought him enough to keep him for a year or so while he kept on with his experiments.

Florrie Mears was going to the city with Gertie Wilson, whose aunt ran a lodging house there. Florrie and Gertie were sure they could get some try-outs and become moving picture actresses, or at least they could do something or other that would lead to fame and a brilliant marriage.

And so they went.

Harlan went to the station to see Florrie off.

"Send me word any time and I'll come and get you," Harlan said.

Florrie picked up his hat, handed it to him and said:

"Here's your hat!"

Then she hopped up the car steps.

Florrie and Gertie didn't startle the world. No movie directors rushed after them.

They did get a look-in with a certain revue producer's casting man. Gertie landed a job.

Florrie could have done so, if she had been willing to pose behind one small ostrich plume. Florrie didn't care for that.

Gertie got along amazingly well for a while, so well that she stopped dancing, and when they came and took away the car and the jewels and the furniture, the benevolent old man had given her, just because he had embezzled the money that paid for them, it was terribly embarrassing to Gertie, who had grown too fat to dance. She's not too fat to wait on tables—which is what she is doing today. However, this is a story about Florrie.

Florrie landed a place as checkroom girl at a cafe. Florrie was smart and attractive. The place didn't pay much. She got a better position at a cabaret, one of the smart places that posed as a night club.

Still, she wasn't piling up any great fortune, but she was too proud to go back home—too proud to write to Harlan Judkins. Even though the work was hard and her feet ached and the small share that came her way on the percentage basis wasn't getting any better—there was her "pride."

Florrie made a little more money after this cabaret became a sure-enough night club, because she got the midnight-to-dawn shift, for it was then that the patrons loosened up.

Two years in the city—and she was sick of it.

She hadn't seen Gertie for nearly a year. She learned about Gertie and kept away.

It was one of those stuffy nights in May when there is so often a week of real July weather to take all the joy out of living.

Disgusted With Life

Florrie arrived for the midnight shift. Everything was dead wrong, her boarding house drove her frantic, her cheap new shoes hurt, she didn't have enough saved up for a summer outfit.

She went to put a coat hanger back in place and saw a hat on the floor, a real classy pearl gray fedora. She picked it up and turned it to look for the check.

Inside were two long initials: H. J.

These initials seemed to be made of thin sterling silver.

"Harlan!" Florrie said sharply.

She went down to the wide doorway and looked around. There he was, with two men. They all looked prosperous.

Florrie smiled and sighed. "Poor Harlan—still trying to interest capital in his silly inventions," and then she choked a little. Sight of him made her think of her home town and the civilized hours they kept and the comfort she had there.

And she thought of Harlan, too.

She dodged back because Harlan and the men were coming out.

"Here's your hat, Harlan," she said, softly.

"Florrie!" he cried as he recognized her.

One of the men tried to draw him aside.

"Watch out," the man whispered.

"Girl from home," Harlan said. "See you in the morning about those contracts." The men went on, grinning. But they had guessed wrong.

"Harlan, I'm fed up—I want to go home," Florrie said.

He looked down the narrow room, all men's hats and coats except in a far corner was a girl's hat and coat. He knew it must belong to Florrie. He lifted the barrier and brought it out.

"Here's your hat," he said.

YOU MEAN AN INFERIORITY COMPLEX?
THAT'S IT. THE VERY THING. AND THERE'S A LOT MORE OF IT GOING AROUND THAN PEOPLE SUSPECT, TOO. YOUR FATHER HAD A SIEGE OF IT ONE TIME. BUT HIS WASN'T AN INFERIORITY COMPLEX. IT WAS, NATURALLY, JUST THE OPPOSITE.

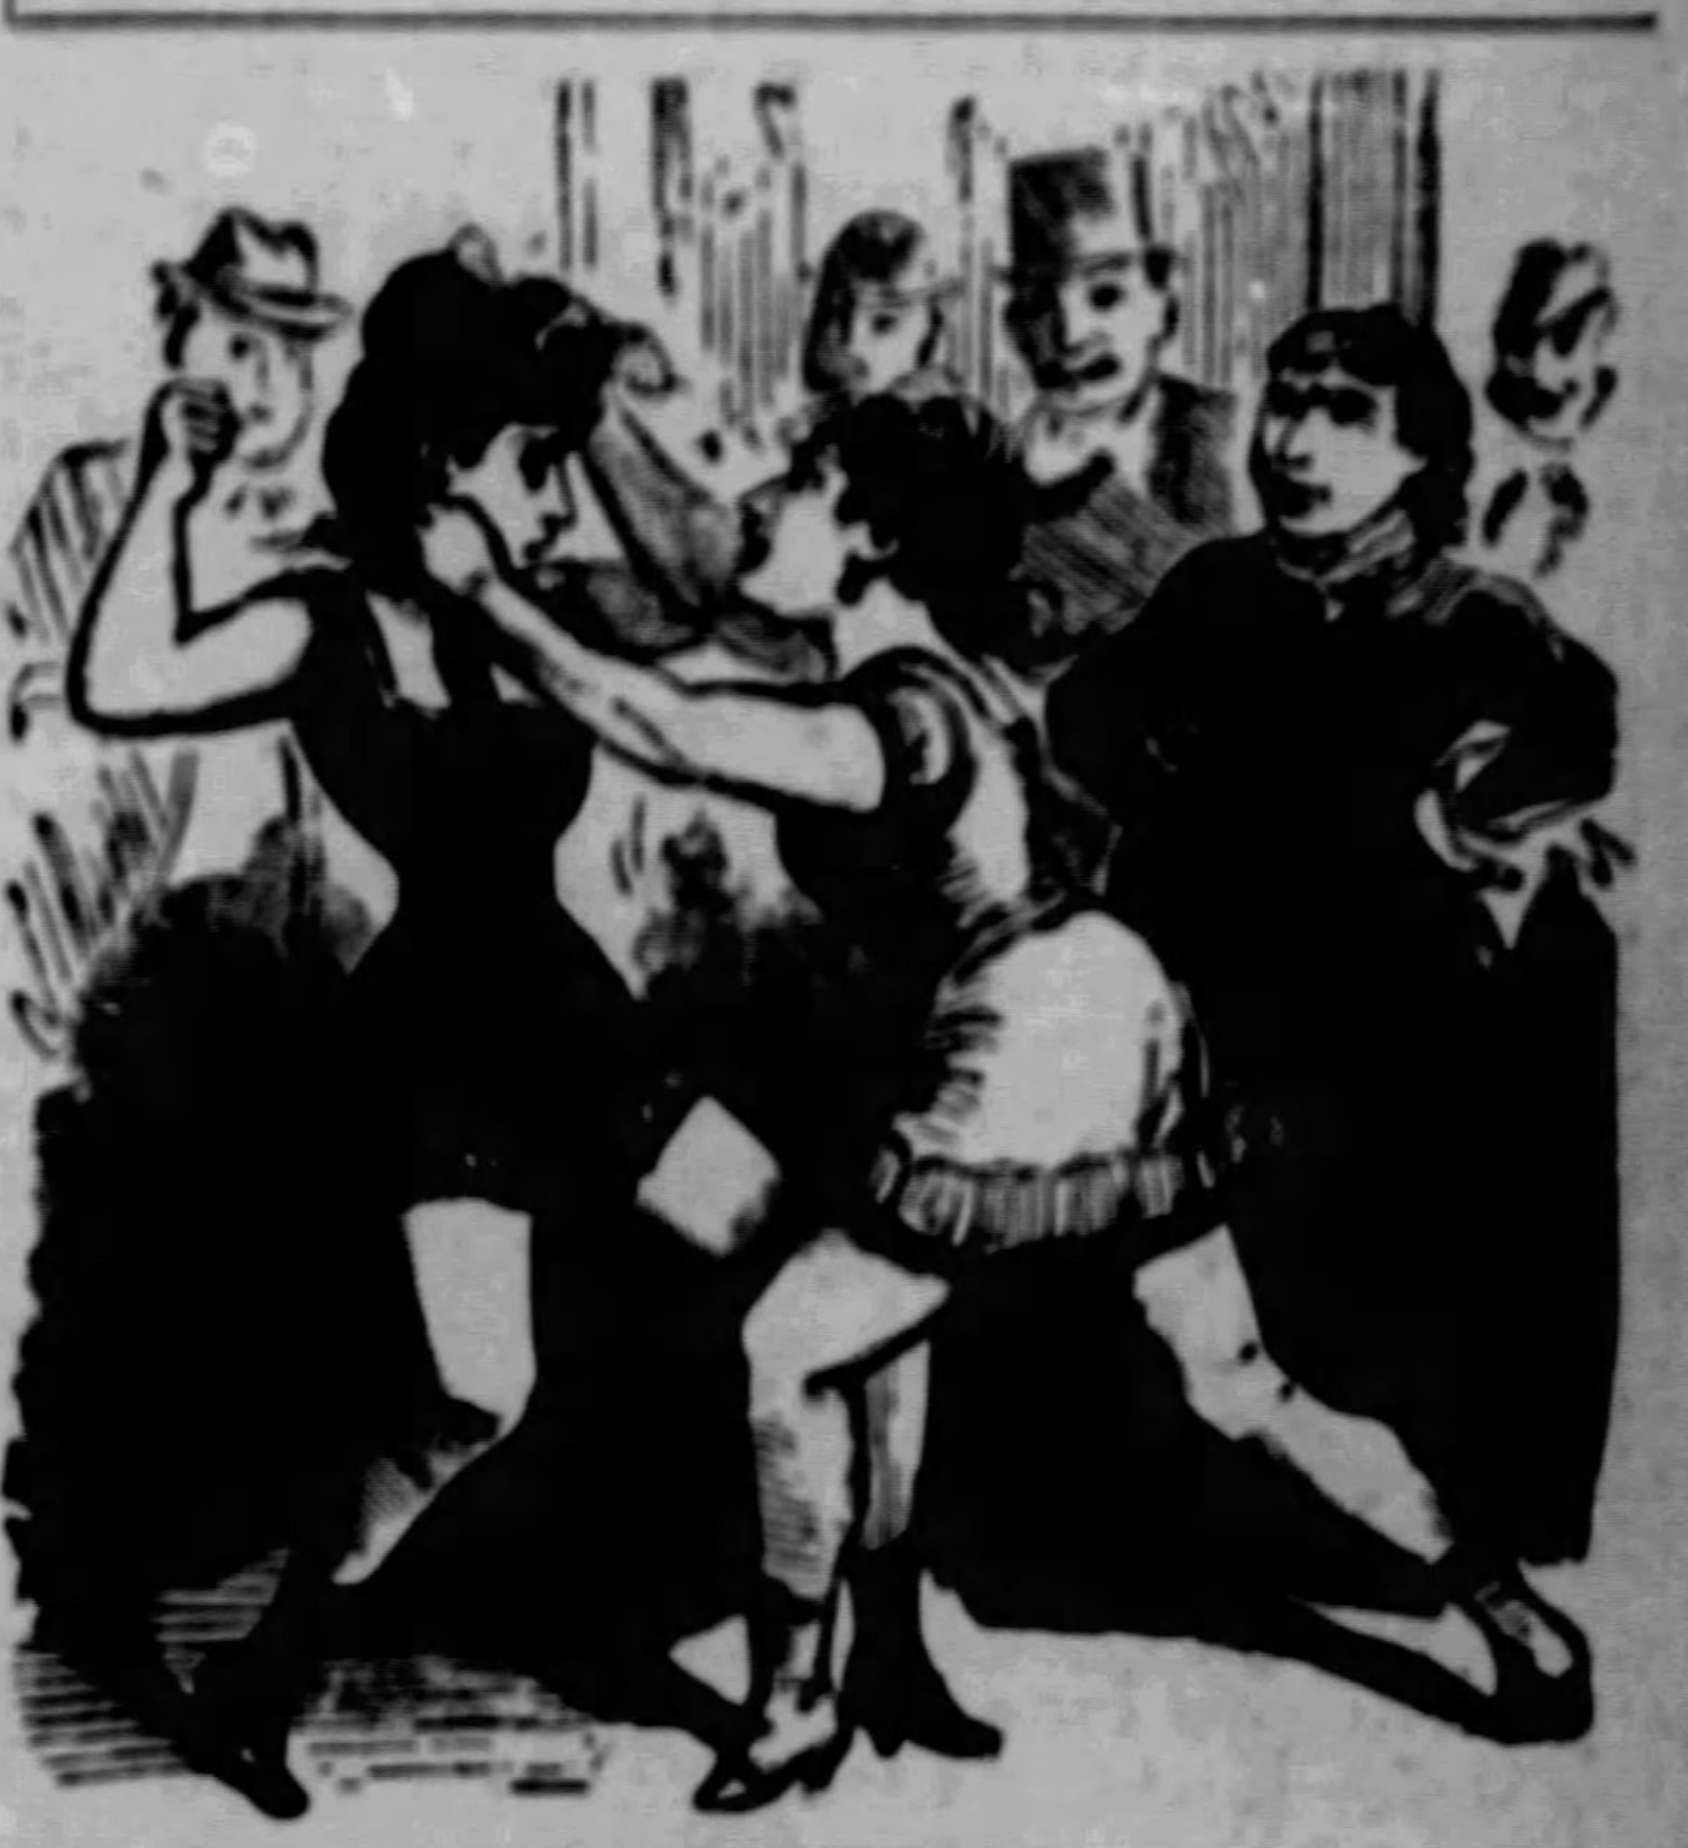
MOTHER TURNS AGAINST HER OWN DAUGHTER



(Illustrated Editorial.)

Here, boys and girls, is a picture to wring your leathery young hearts. It shows the struggle for dress reform which is constantly going on and which (in this case) has turned a mother against her own daughter. Isn't it about time that the little ones be permitted to do as they please in the matter of dress? We think so. The class struggle has gone far enough. If we will all quit complaining and put our noses to the grindstone we will find that prosperity is just around the corner.

According to Dr. E. Tulley Younge, British scientist, chemical elements control personality and couples should never marry until a blood analysis has shown how the union will turn out.

But that's not enough. What we really need is some method of judging what marriage will do to the chemical elements.

Homestead's Jubilee Recalls Great Strike

Homestead is celebrating its golden jubilee this week, and that calls for a review of its 50 years of history. The outstanding event in Homestead's history was the great steel strike of 1892. It is worth while, perhaps, to recall a few of the important facts of the strike for their possible bearing on present conditions.

One thing that is worth remembering is that the strike played a part in the election of Grover Cleveland as President of the United States. Two years before the Republican Congress had passed the McKinley Tariff Act "to protect the wages of American workingmen." When the Homestead steel workers engaged in one of the bloodiest and most desperate strikes in the country's history because, as they said, of the inadequacy of their wages, it had an adverse effect on public sentiment in regard to the tariff. The strike occurred shortly before the election and contributed to the defeat of President Harrison, the Republican candidate.

The strike attracted the attention of the whole world, for the strikers used cannon, fought a pitched battle with 200 Pinkerton detectives, and killed 10 of them. Thank goodness, we have had no more strikes like that.

Pennsylvania Becomes Happy Hunting Ground

What would you think of a man who shot a tame deer confined in a 10-acre lot, had his picture taken with gun in hand and foot resting on the neck of the prostrate animal, brought the carcass home, and proudly announced that he had been deer hunting?

For a hundred dollars or so one could have done those very things not far from Pittsburgh some years ago. An owner of tame deer offered to let people shoot them on payment of a price. Happily people were too sportsmanlike to be much interested in the offer.

If there was little excuse for being interested in that kind of "hunting" then, there is less now; for wild deer have become so plentiful that the state is arranging to have does as well as bucks killed this year to keep the number down and protect farmers from their forays on grain fields.

The abundance of deer is surprising in view of the warfare that is waged against them. The number of Pennsylvania's licensed hunters alone last year (517,793) was over four times as great as the total enlisted strength of the United States Army, and there were many other hunters besides, farmers who are not required to take out licenses to hunt on their own lands.

Pennsylvania has truly become the happy hunting ground.

"The Law's Delay" Is Less in Evidence Here

Attorney Louis Little told a jury the other day that it costs the taxpayers of Allegheny County $100 a minute to run the courts, for every minute they are in session. Mr. Little's figures may not be mathematically exact, but they are close enough to the cost to let the people know it is to their advantage that the courts crowd as much work as possible into those precious minutes.

The taxpayers as well as the judges and lawyers are to be congratulated, therefore, on the fine showing made by Common Pleas Court last month. The volume of business transacted was greater than in any previous month. At least seven judges were on duty daily.

The courts resumed last month after two months' suspension of jury trials. There was an accumulation of cases, the judges were fresh and vigorous after a long vacation, and several new judges mounted the bench. These considerations all made for speed. It may be that the pace will not be maintained. It is to be hoped it will, for Common Pleas Court is a year or more behind schedule.

Attorneys can help to make "the law's delay" less of a by-word. As Mr. Little suggests, they can do so by discouraging litigation over unimportant matters.

Communists' Attack On Freedom of Speech

When our local Communists get arrested for holding unlicensed meetings or for distributing inflammatory handbills in violation of the law, they raise a great ado about the interference with their right to freedom of speech. So it was decidedly unseemly in them to interfere with the Socialists' freedom of speech as they did at the meeting in the Pitt Theater Sunday, when they heckled the Socialist speakers and called them abusive names.

The incident is interesting as showing the hostility that exists between different groups of radicals and the necessity for distinguishing between them in appraising their doctrines. The Socialists and Communists both derive their tenets from Karl Max, yet quarrel as bitterly as the Baptists and Methodists do in some of the backwoods sections over the question if baptism should be by immersion or sprinkling.

How Anarchists stand in relation to the Communists is shown by the fact that two Communists were shot and killed by an Anarchist at a Communist meeting at Avella a few months ago. The Communists believe in too much government; the Anarchists in no government at all.

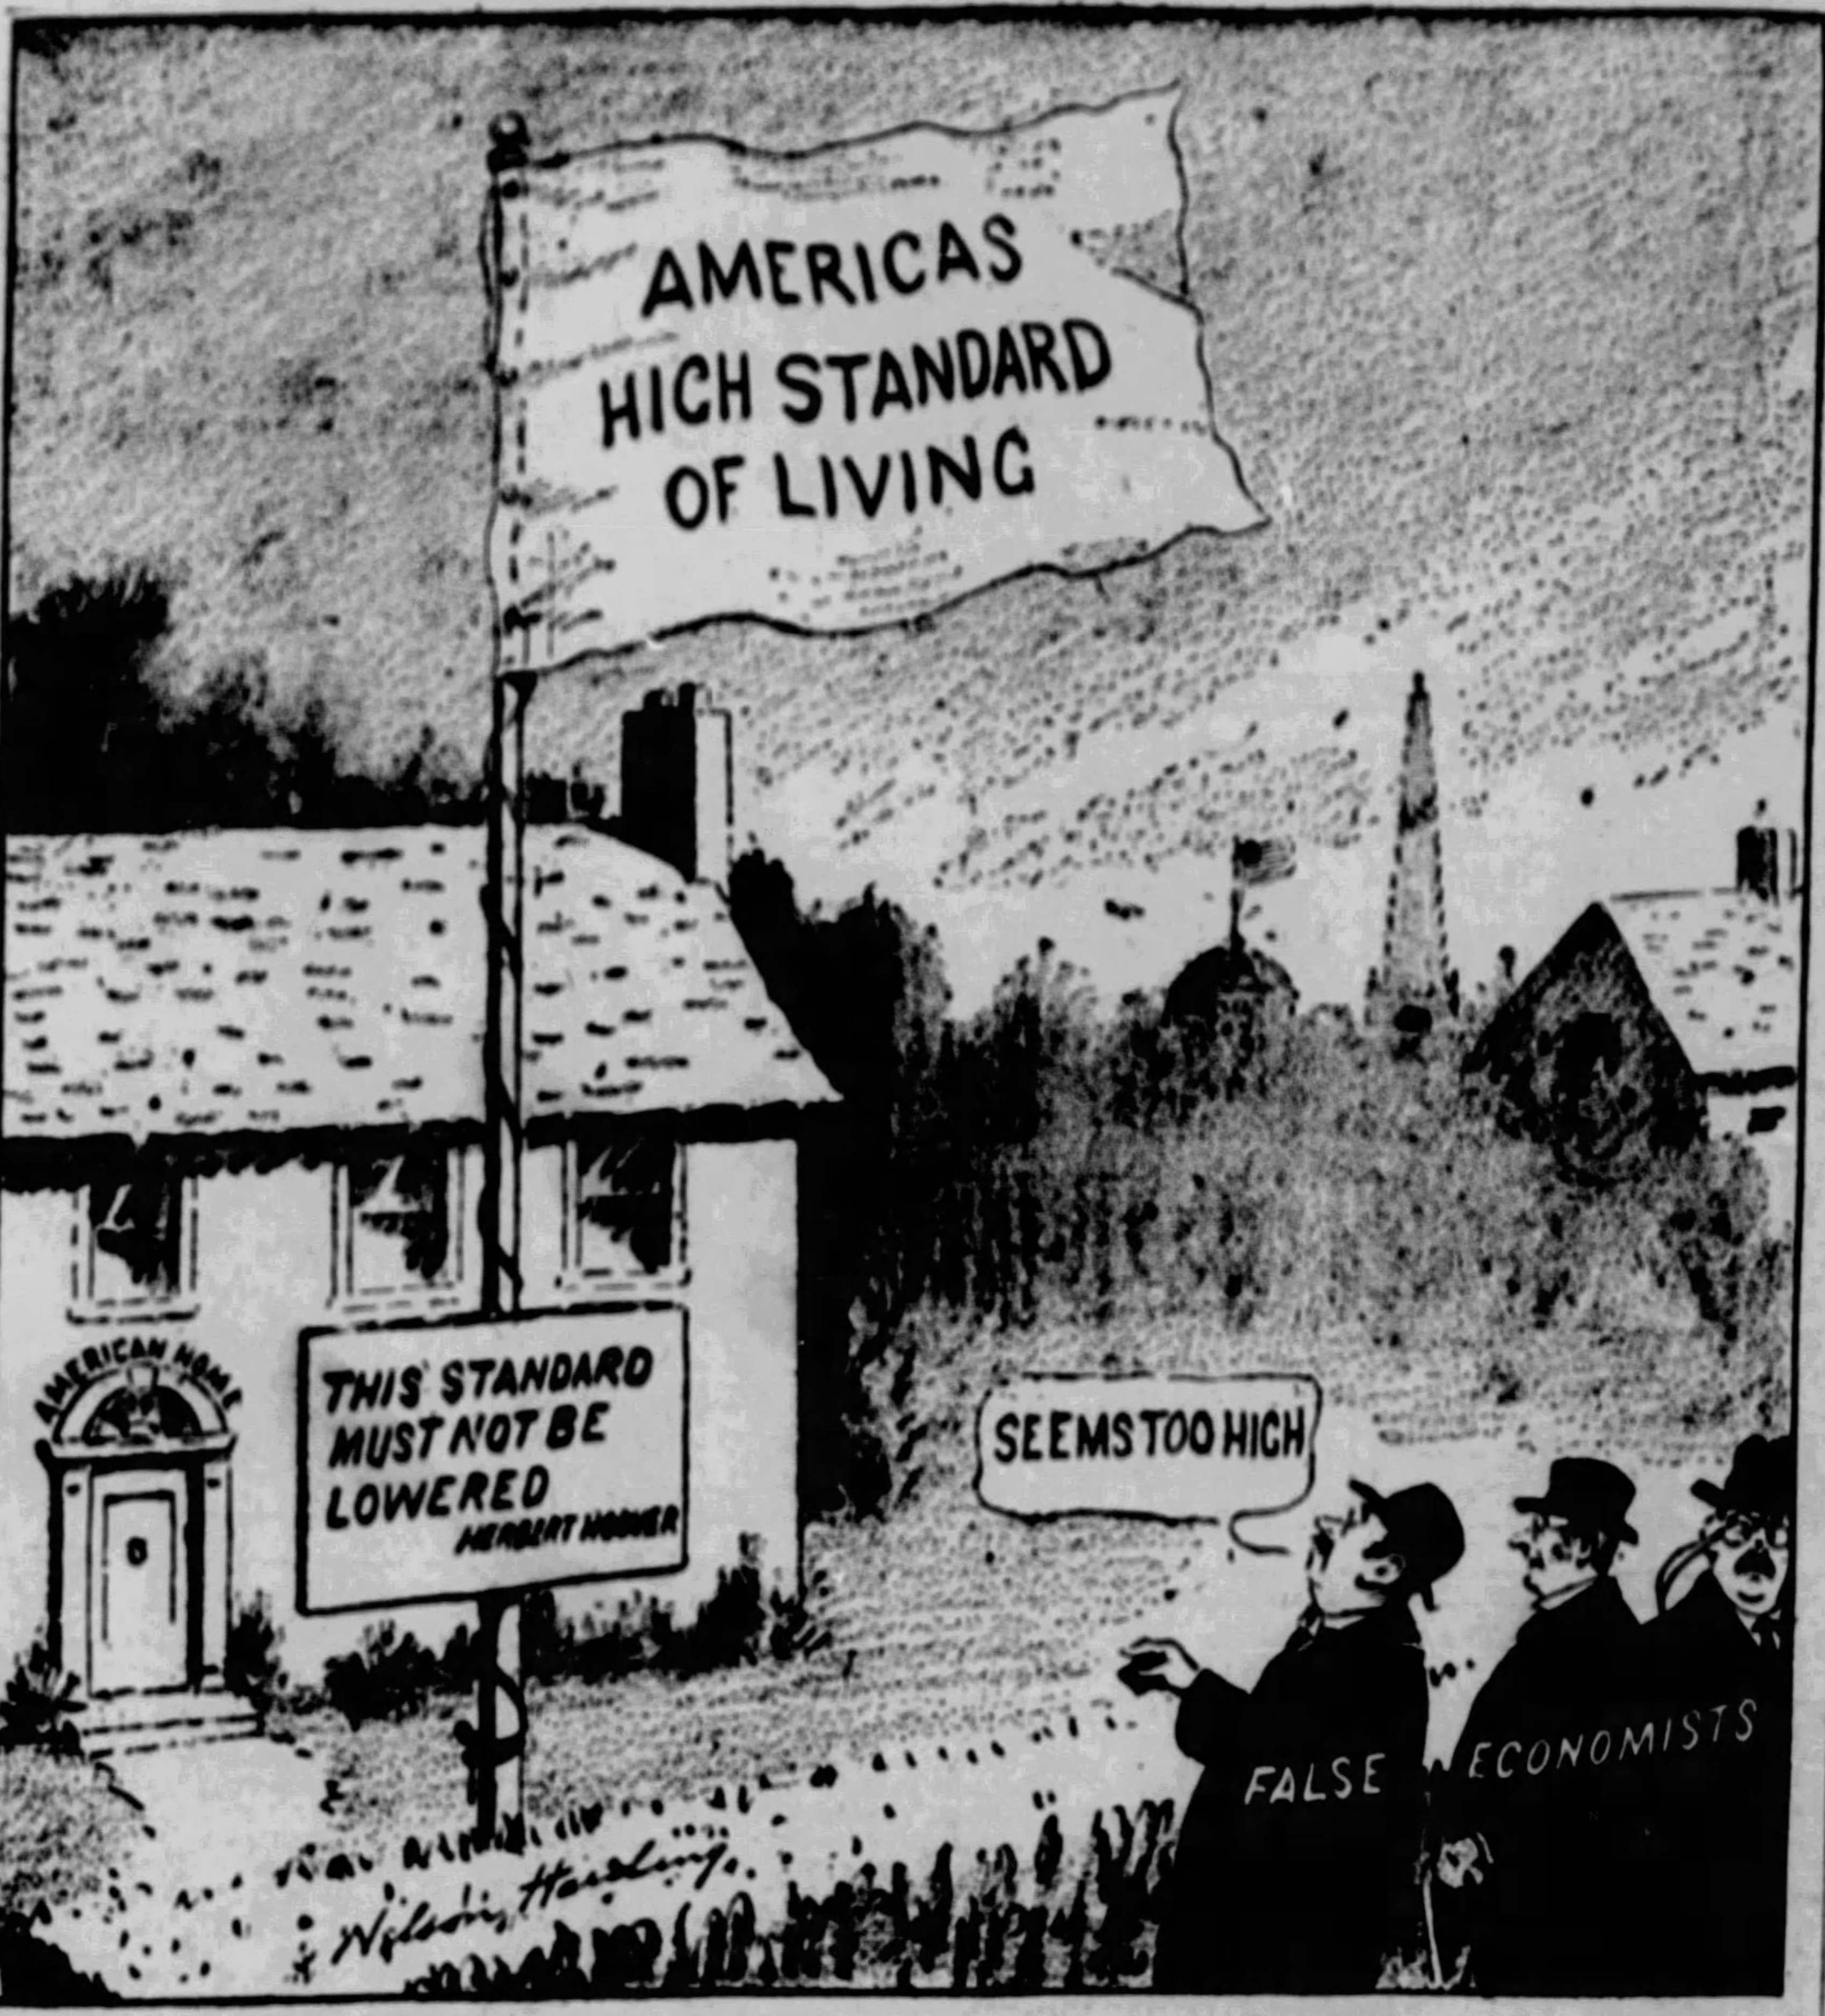
Never To Be Lowered

By Nelson Harding



The false economists are told
That flag must high remain,
And if they think it should come down
They'd better think again.

Our standard shall not lowered be;
The time for that is past
For we have raised it where it is
And nailed it to the mast.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Foot by Foot

Having acquired athletic foot, we are getting plenty of medical advice that doesn't fit any diploma.

Mr. Root, of Seattle, says it is an Oriental germ acquired along the Asiatic coast where it is known at Hong Kong hoof.

He hopes that it is only the toes. And not the whole heel.

If that's one of those full-length mirror remarks, it's an insult.

When Mr. Root says the whole heel it sounds as if he had met us some place.

Mr. Joe Connolly, of New York, says that it is locker foot and is acquired while standing on one foot in front of another golfer's locker while waiting for him to come up for air.

If the contents of the other golfer's locker are very old and very valuable, and have been certified by two public bootleggers, then locker foot is not contagious. You must go out and inherit your own.

Mr. Lyle, of Indiana, states that he has suffered from athletic dogs while standing in a cold street car waiting for a crowded corner to come along. His idea of the ailment is that it was brought into America by visiting diplomats and that it will not attack artichokes.

But it doesn't last long as the germ will speedily desert a sinking arch and doesn't like patent leather shoes with the sun shining on them.

But it puzzles the doctors very much. We think that it is a marvelous thing that America has become a nation of over a hundred million copies when you go into a druggist's shop with a prescription.

The druggist fills the prescription. You drink it or chew it, all depending on whether the drugs are stale or fresh. The marvelous thing of it all is that no druggist can understand a doctor's handwriting.

The reason why doctors all scribble hen-tracks is that they don't want anybody to know that they have subscribed the wrong medicine.

They write playful diagnoses of locker foot without knowing what it is. It's all in fun. Which is the reason why leopards have long teeth. So they can have more fun.

We have received 58 letters of advice and six different jars of ankle cosmetics guaranteed to remove the germ from the foot and the foot from the premises. And the location of the germ makes it very difficult to work into conversation.

When a man gets a crack on the head he can take off his hat and say, "See that lump?"

A SCIENTIFIC TRUCE

By Archibald Henderson

Three years ago, when the British Association for the Advancement of Science met in Leeds, the Bishop of Ripon suggested in a sermon that it might be well for the world if science were to take a scientific holiday for 10 years. Although at the time the suggestion was regarded as semi-jocular, the idea has since cropped up again and again in public discussion. To scientists generally the suggestion seemed fantastic, and was greeted with a patronizing smile. But is it so fantastic, after all? Science has been and continues to be a pacemaker for the thought and action of the world. But the question which naturally arises is: Hasn't science forced the pace? Aren't we being driven too fast for comfort by that relentless master, science?

In one respect, certainly, public opinion and public action might well call a halt upon the steady progress of science in the production of death-dealing weapons, lethal instruments, poison gases. We have international conferences pointing toward a general reduction and limitation of armaments. These conferences, thus far, have accomplished little in actual reduction. At least they are putting a temporary stop to competition. They point along a highway which leads toward peace.

Scientists might have international conferences designed to study world problems, and agree upon uniform programs of action in place of cut-throat competition. Population problems are beginning to loom large upon the world's horizon. Legislation upon the subject of birth control, as a limiting force on population, seems imminent. Questions of quota in matters of immigration are now definitely established by law. It is conceivable that science, by international agreement, might lay down a population quota for each nation, in order to avoid the great danger of overpopulation.

Suppose, however, the nations of the world were to place an embargo on all scientific inquiry. The losses to the world would be incalculable and irreparable. What ravages of plague, fire, disease, the menace of insects to crops and vegetation, floods, natural disasters of all sorts that might occur, were science not allowed to advance and provide new remedies for accumulating evils? How many losses to science might occur, the value of which could not be foreseen?

Pasteur, on the basis of the studies of his predecessors, made profound investigations in the effort to discover the cause of fermentation. In so doing, he little knew that, by these investigations, he was laying the foundation of modern medicine. When Pierre and Marie Curie, the physicists, made those extended researches which resulted in the discovery of radium, they never dreamed of the invaluable therapeutic uses to which radium was destined to be put.

No, the world cannot afford to take a scientific holiday. Taking science as a pacemaker, the other departments of human knowledge and human activity must move faster. We must try to emulate science. We must try to catch up with science.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

You know this verse. You've carried it for years, perhaps, thrilling to its brave swing.

"It matters not how strait the gate,
"How charged with punishment the scroll,
"I am the master of my fate:
"I am the captain of my soul."

A great and gallant verse, and you want to believe it. Yet, as the years go on, you find yourself doubting. Can a man really be master of his fate? Yes, he can . . . but first he must understand just what that mastery means.

It does NOT mean that you can do anything or be anything you wish, merely by setting your mind upon it. You have certain equipment wherewith to face life. It is good equipment. You can go far with it. But you can't do everything or anything. Each nature has its limitations. Lincoln was a clever and indomitable man, but he could never, by any chance, have become a toe dancer. It's as silly for most of us to struggle to be great artists, actors, writers or captains of industry as it would have been for Lincoln to struggle to be a toe dancer.

If you wish to be master of your fate, it's as necessary to recognize the things you can't be as to fight for the things you can be. Otherwise you're going to waste precious time and voltage.

And you're not only limited by your own nature—you are also bound by circumstances. No matter how carefully you may plot your life, circumstance will come along and mess up your program. There are things in life over which you have no control. It is hard for a spunky American to acknowledge this, but sooner or later you must face the fact.

Yet, in spite of these handicaps, you can be master of your fate. You cannot always make life into what you wish, but you can take it as you wish. And it's the taking that counts, for we live in our feelings. Our happiness does not depend on the things that happen to us or the things we accumulate or achieve—it depends on our own inner attitude toward these things.

A man may have a sick or crippled body, he may have a limited mind, he may be bound by poverty and the heaviest responsibility, yet he can, by his own attitude, surmount any limitation of body or handicap of position. Outwardly he may seem poor, unfit and obscure, but inwardly he may experience as much beauty as a Michael Angelo, as much power as a Mussolini, as much drama as a Barrymore, as much adventure as a Byrd.

Stevenson's body was riddled with tuberculosis, but his soul fared far into gorgeous adventure. Milton's eyes were sealed in blindness but the mysteries of heaven and hell unrolled before him in his darkness. Socrates was a shackled slave, but the richest, proudest and most powerful Greeks were not as free as he, in his wisdom.

Life for these men was rich and free not because they had exceptional talent. Many have exceptional talent yet lead frustrated lives. Life, for them, was rich and free because they had learned that a man CAN be captain of his soul and can master any fate that can attack him.

Their names are famous, but obscure souls have done as much. There are men and women working with you in the same office who have learned the same secret. Their wages are as low as yours, their condition as exasperating, their work as tiresome, yet there's a glow in them. They have the strangle hold on fate.

BEAUTY AND POWER, DRAMA AND ADVENTURE, ARE WITHIN THE REACH OF EVERY MAN, BUT HE MUST REACH FOR THEM WITHIN HIMSELF, FOR THERE, ALONE, MAY THEY BE FOUND.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

The Constant Heart

The constant heart needs neither wiles nor lures,
Nor any witchery of smiles and tears,
For changelessly its loyalty endures
Through all the changes of the flying years.
It sees youth's beauty after youth has fled,
Finds added loveliness that time has lent
To eyes grown dimmer and to graying head.
For it grace lingers, though the form is bent.

There is a tranquil bearing which invests
A mortal, with the lengthening march of time,
Until in age on all the being rests
A trace of something sacred and sublime.
This charm is added unto every part
As love grows lovelier to the constant heart.

"Next?"

Cuba Talks Revolution.

PRESIDENT GERARDO MACHADO.

Brazil has a civil war. Argentina and Peru have recently changed Presidents. Rumblings of revolt are heard in other South American countries, and from Cuba, just over the horizon from the United States, come hints that President Machado's days as "dictator" are numbered.

North Americans who pay scant attention to South American affairs nevertheless wonder what the outcome will be in Cuba, for Cuba is nearby, it is a tourist resort for thousands from the mainland, since the Spanish War it has been virtually a ward of the United States, and more than a billion dollars of American money is invested there.

Machado, able President, took office in 1925. He has had the Constitution amended, extending his term, and unless unseated he can legally hold office until 1935.

Cubans out of office, and some Americans, call him a despot. Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, hinted broadly the other day that the United States should intervene to oust him. The United States will not do that unless a REAL disturbance threatens. But it has power to intervene, under the Platt Amendment, and it has intervened before.

The American government and the American people will watch Cuban affairs closely for the next few months, hope that Cuba can set her house in order without assistance, but will not be surprised if they read some morning that President Machado is "Next."

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—A de luxe New York restaurant is where the male of the species shows his wide yellow streak. With scarcely any exceptions he is thoroughly bluffed by a razzle dazzle from the time the head waiter gives him a cold eye at the entrance until he negotiates timidly for his hat, departing.

The more expensive the place the greater the fright. One satined salon profits $25,000 yearly by placing three olives and a sprig of celery the size of Joe Weber's chin whiskers at each plate. The charge is $1.50, touched or not, and if protested is removed in hurt silence that makes one feel a perfect worm.

Many are wise to the polite pillage and order the dish removed, but the majority submit without a chirp. Even in some cafes where there are no Paul Whitemans or Moss and Fontanas they continue to charge 75 cents for a pint of table water which cost the brigands exactly 6 cents.

Gyp cafe men know their game. Their establishments are patronized largely by young show-offs out to make a sharp impression on a beautiful lady. No matter the size of the gouge, they do not want to appear cheap skates. There are many elders suffering from a similar and absurd introversion.

French menus, so confusing to many, are a source of amazing profits to cafes. A well selected meal in a tony spot costs about $8 for two if ordered from the menu. But it is so baffling that many ask the captain to make the selections. And bang goes all his restraint.

There are, of course, scrupulously honest cafes, but any number balloon the intake by indirect addition. Less than 20 per cent of the patronage adds up checks. They indulge a quick glance and pay. The rewards of such flim-flamming are stupendous. It is proverbial only the rich total a chit.

As a general thing, where liquor is sold, the robbery by "split lead pencil" is amazingly high handed. A customer, alcoholically animated, rarely remembers the drinks ordered or is likely to be disputatious about over-charge. If he grows belligerant anyway there is always a Mickey Finn in the kitchen.

There is fruity lore of Harry Lauder's niggardliness, when he is generosity itself. Not only with friends and family, but in charities. He lives at best hotels on tour and books the most expensive steamer suites and Pullman drawing rooms. He tips extravagantly. Rudy Valce is also said to be a big tipper. But the bell boys' favorite is Al Jolson. There is a loose one.

It possibly happens once to everybody. This morning I passed a gentleman with whom I once quarreled, neither speaking. After a few separating steps, we both turned at the precise second to look back. In the ensuing embarrassment he tripped over a water plug and I nearly crashed smack into a fat lady.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You find it hard to concentrate.

It is such an effort that you seldom give all your thought and attention to any one subject.

In a superficial way you are a quick thinker and given to snap judgment.

This characteristic may have won for you the reputation of being very bright.

But you, yourself, know that you have made many serious mistakes in your life time and you wish for a more balanced intelligence.

Some days you make several errors, one after the other, before you can get down to brass tacks and control your head work.

In doing one thing you were thinking of another—perhaps several flashes along different lines cross your consciousness in less than a minute.

You are disgusted and chagrined at the foolish mistakes to which this leads in your work.

But you can trace this trouble to the fact that you have not schooled yourself to focus your attention all upon one point.

By this time you ought to know that if you ever get control of your thoughts you must begin and only if you begin now you master your mental machinery.

You cannot be successful if you aren't in control of it.
